

Two years of operation

Sex service has grown

by Stella Shelton
Staff Writer

Lots of birthdays fall in October: John Lennon's, Brigitte Bardot's, Marcello Mastroianni's, Joan Crawford's, the late Dwight D. Eisenhower's, the Human Sexuality Information and Counseling Service's, Annette Funicello's. The list is endless.

Of all these birthdays, only one can claim to be the first student-operated counseling service in the U.S. in the area of total human sexuality—UNC's own Human Sexuality

Information and Counseling Service (HSICS).

Today HSICS celebrates its second birthday.

And they've come a long way for a two-year old. HSCIS now has a successful educational Outreach program—that is, a group of people available to show films and facilitate discussions in dorms, fraternities, sororities and other community organizations.

According to HSCIS Director Robert Diamant, Outreach has gone to Chapel Hill High School, Morrison and Joyner dorms, and has been imported by Meredith College.

Diamant said HSICS currently handles around 65 cases a week. In 1972, only 15 per cent of the cases came by the office for face-to-face counseling. Now one-third of the cases are walk-ins, Diamant said.

Twenty-two trained volunteer counselors compose the service's staff, Diamant said. After Thanksgiving, any student can have a chance to be a counselor. HSCIS will then begin screening people. Diamant suggests if you're interested, call HSCIS and leave your name.

Diamant hopes that the training program now being designed will be distributed in the United States as a "model training program for human sexuality."

The Campus Governing Council has approved an allocation for the purchase of 10,000 birth control and VD handbooks, Diamant said. One thousand of each are expected to arrive in November and the rest will probably arrive in January, Diamant continued. These books will be distributed free of charge, he said.

Diamant describes the primary function of the service as being "a health education center." He said, "We supply information that should be readily available to all people."

UNC students are welcome to come by Suite B of the Union from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. or from 7:30-9:30 p.m. on Monday through Thursday or from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. on Friday or call 933-5505 anytime at all.

Vacant CGC seats to be filled Oct. 31

Special elections will be held Wednesday Oct. 31 in two districts to fill vacancies on the Campus Governing Council.

The elections will be held in undergraduate on-campus district VII and graduate district IV due to the resignations from the council by Bill Putnam and Gary McLean.

District VII consists of the Upper Quad and Henderson Residence College. District

IV represents graduate students in the departments of Medicine and Education.

Candidates for the seats must turn in petitions signed by 25 residents of their district by Oct. 24. The petitions can be obtained in Suite C of the Carolina Union.

Polls will be open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. in Connor and Ruffin dorms for District VII and in the Health Sciences Building and Peabody for District IV. Elections Board Chairman Tom Goss said Wednesday.

Police seize undergrads in drug raid

Three UNC students were arrested this week on drug charges by Chapel Hill detectives, according to police.

Arrested on felony warrants were Donald C. Rudisill, sophomore from Lincolnton, who lives in 201 Teague dorm; his roommate Adrian Wood, a senior from Great Britain; and Ralph Howard Gray, a senior from Charlotte. Gray lives in Carolina Apartments in Carrboro.

Police said Rudisill was arrested at 11 p.m. Tuesday and charged with possession with intent to distribute more than five grams of marijuana and with possession of LSD. His bond was set at $1,000.

Gray was arrested at 1 a.m. on Wednesday and charged with possession with intent to distribute more than one gram of hashish. Bond was set at $1,000.

Wood was arrested at 4:50 a.m. on Wednesday and charged with possession with intent to distribute LSD. His bond was also set at $1,000.

Law school recruits minorities

by Ethel Johnson
Staff Writer

A program designed to bring more minority students into UNC Law School will be held Saturday, Oct. 27 at the law school. The project which started last year is the law school's only formal minority recruitment program. Recruitment is primarily directed toward college-level blacks and Indians.

James A. Beatty, project director, outlined the following as goals of the project:

- to interest minority students in law and careers in the legal profession.
- to interest them in applying to law school, and to prepare them to meet entrance requirements.

Beatty said the number of participants last year totaled approximately 115 and he hopes for 150 this year.

The format for this year includes the administering of a sample LSAT to the students, a panel discussion and representative participation by the other three law schools in North Carolina.

The sample LSAT will be administered by a UNC Guidance and Testing Center counselor; the students will be given the same time periods that are given on the actual test.

Beatty said the law school received approval for this undertaking from the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, New Jersey.

A panel discussion is designed to inform students on the different types of law study one can pursue, such as civil, criminal, or corporate law.

The group will consist of Mayor Howard Lee of Chapel Hill, Clay Knight of Durham Legal Aid Society, Professor Charles Day of UNC's law school and other minority lawyers from North Carolina who are engaged in various fields of the legal profession. They will discuss "Minorities in the Law: A Realistic Perspective."
