North Carolina's defense was resurrected from the dead Saturday before 37,500 non-believers in Kenan Stadium, as the Tar Heels romped over the Demon Deacons, 42-0, recording their first shutout of the year.

It was the first Atlantic Coast Conference victory this season for the defending conference champion Tar Heels. Carolina's offense was slow to get started in the high scoring affair, driving deep in to Wake Forest territory in the first quarter, only to be repelled.

Starting on their own 28 after receiving the opening kickoff, the Tar Heels pushed steadily towards the goal, getting as far as the Wake Forest seven-yard line before quarterback Nick Vidnovic was sacked twice for combined losses of 32 yards.

The Tar Heels were forced to punt to the Deacons who took the ball on their own 13 and drove as far as the Carolina 18-yard line before being bogged down by the Tar Heel defense.

Chuck Ramsey then tried for a 35-yard field goal that sailed wide to the left of the goal.

Carolina was unable to get a stable offensive drive before the second quarter when the Tar Heels set out on an 86-yard drive that began with a 51-yard pass play from Vidnovic to wingback Jimmy Jerome and ended with a two yard plunge across the center of the line by tailback James Betterson for the touchdown.

Ellis Alexander's extra point gave Carolina a 7-0 lead with 11:47 left to play in the first half.

The Tar Heels capitalized on a Wake Forest fumble with 8:17 left in the second quarter, linebacker Jimmy DeRatt forcing Clayton Heath to cough up the football on the Deacon's own nine-yard line where Tom Embrey recovered for Carolina.

Six seconds later Vidnovic found end Charles Waddell in the end zone for another touchdown pass and a 14-0 lead.

The Deacons immediately turned the ball back over to Carolina as quarterback Bill Armstrong attempted a pass which defensive back Earle Chesson picked off and returned to the Wake Forest 25-yard line.

After one incomplete pass, Vidnovic passed to wingback Ted Leverage for 25 yards and a touchdown which gave the Tar Heels a 21-point lead that they took with them to the locker room as the half ended seven minutes later.

Carolina continued its onslaught in the second half of play as the Deacon defense continued to fall apart.

Taking possession of the ball with 5:36 left in the second period, the Tar Heels drove 44 yards in six plays to boost their lead to 28-0, Johnson scoring for Carolina on a two yard run around right end.

The fourth quarter opened with North Carolina in the midst of a 96-yard drive that used up seven plays and 2:58 of the clock.

Stuck deep in their own territory after Ramsey booted a 42 yard punt for the Deacons that was downed on the Carolina four yard line, the Tar Heels began their drive with a 55 yard run by Johnson around the left side of the line.

Carolina drove the rest of the way to the Deacon end zone behind the running of Johnson and Mike Voight. Voight scored on a five yard run off the left side.

Behind 35-0 with 14:27 left to play in the game, Wake Forest took to the air but was unable to get a first down and was forced to punt to the Tar Heels.

Carolina took possession of the ball on its own 47 and began driving for its last points of the game.

Billy Paschall, rotated in at quarterback, opened with a 16-yard pass to Charley Williams, then handed off to Johnson for 12 yards.

Voight hit for 11 more in two plays followed by a three yard gain by Johnson down to the Wake Forest 10 yard line.

Carolina's final points of the game came on a 10 yard pass by Paschall to end Ray Stanford with 9:50 left in the game for a 42-0 lead.

Johnson was the game's leading rusher with 171 yards in 24 carries that gave him a firm lead for the ACC rushing title going into the last week of the league schedule.

Wake Forest was held to 184 yards of total offense while the Tar Heels racked up 323 yards on the ground and 201 yards passing for 524 yards total offense.

AWS publication out today

SHE asks Hunt's dismissal

by Stella Shelton
Staff Writer

An editorial calling for the immediate resignation or firing of UNC Affirmative Action Officer Douglass C. Hunt is included in the latest issue of SHE.

SHE will be available in coed and women's dorms, sororities, the Union, the Undergraduate Library and the Y after 9 a.m. today.

Published by the Association of Women Students (AWS), the SHE editorial says Hunt is not committed to the goals of affirmative action. Hunt "implied" the position of Affirmative Action Officer (AAO) was forced on him, the editorial said.

SHE claimed that Hunt as a vice-chancellor cannot be a full-time AAO and that he finds duties of the two positions conflict. The editorial calls for the appointment of a full-time AAO, more committed to affirmative action's goals than Hunt.

AWS chairperson Amelia Bellows said today's issue is more controversial than other issues.

SHE will feature UNC Tanner award winner and writer Doris Betts, who discusses her writing, teaching, women's liberation and marriage.

Today's SHE is the fourth issue of the publication. Issue 3, "The Women's Handbook," has been delayed because of numerous problems in printing, labeling and mailing, said SHE editor Scottee Cantrell.

Cantrell said the handbook should be mailed to all graduate and undergraduate women within the next two weeks because it is a special edition of SHE. It contains information useful to UNC women.

SHE has returned to its usual 3,000-copy printing and eight-page format, Cantrell said.

Bellows commented on SHE: "The kinks are out of putting it together. We've proven that it can be done. Now SHE is well-known."

According to Cantrell, another issue of SHE will include stories on Judy Collins and Lily Tomlin and an issue almost entirely devoted to the Women's Festival scheduled for February.

BSM to march in honor of Cates

A memorial march and service sponsored by the Black Student Movement in honor of James Cates, a black killed on campus three years ago, will be held today.

The activities will begin with a gathering at Silent Sam at 1 p.m. The group will march through town and back to the Union, where a memorial service will be held in the Great Hall at 1:30 p.m.

The march and service will be led by BSM chairman Willie Mebane, black UNC Chaplain Preston Jones, Harold Wallace and the Rev. Leon White of the Committee of Racial Justice.

The BSM gospel choir will sing at the service.

Cates died on Nov. 21, 1970 of stab wounds inflicted during a disturbance outside the Student Union following an all-night dance sponsored by the Union and the BSM.

Three members of a white Durham motorcycle gang were charged and later acquitted of the slaying.

1.6 grade average upheld by trustees

by Janet Langston
Staff Writer

The UNC Board of Trustees voted Sunday to uphold a 1.6 projected grade point average for grant-in-aid scholarships despite a recent ruling by the Atlantic Coast Conference (ACC) to abolish an eligibility average for athletes.

The 1.6 GPA requirement was dropped recently by the ACC, after the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) eliminated the average last year. Each school may choose to follow the change or maintain their present requirements.

Students who "possess special aptitudes and talents may be granted admission on a selective basis," the committee decided. They must be reviewed by the Admissions Committee before final acceptance at UNC.

Presently, the admissions office at UNC compiles applicants' high school averages and Scholastic Aptitude Scores (SAT) to project a student's college average to predict his college success.

The ACC and NCAA now only require a 2.0 high school average and SAT score of 800. Other ACC member schools will not require any additional criteria.

The trustees' approval means that UNC will continue to accept student-athletes and other grant-in-aid candidates by its own average, although it is not required to do so.

Special admissions are desirable, said Chancellor N. Ferebee Taylor, because some students are highly competent in a specific area, such as instrumental music, but are weak in math and science disciplines. These students should not be denied admission solely on this basis; hence, a review by the Admissions committee is desirable.

UNC Athletic Director Homer Rice said, "We depend on the Admissions Office to direct us and advise us" on students capable of successful work within the University.

The athletic office does not want to recruit students with a predicted grade point average below 1.6, added Rice, as it would be unfair to the student.

The Admissions Committee made the recommendation to guide coaches in recruiting for next year, Dean James R. Gaskin, committee chairman, said.

Poll shows student vote heavy in Nov. elections

Student turnout in the Nov. 6 Chapel Hill city election may have been the highest of any voting group in the state.

Over 85 per cent of the UNC students registered in Chapel Hill cast ballots, according to a preliminary survey by UNC student Gerry Cohen, who was elected to the Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen. Cohen said this compares favorably with the 92 per cent student turnout in November, 1972 and the 81 per cent student turnout in the May, 1972 Democratic primary.

Cohen compiled the survey by comparing names of students in the pollbooks against the registration list in the Country Club precinct, a predominantly student area. Of the 287 students registered, 245 cast ballots. Cohen said an additional 90 students were on the voter rolls from 1971 and 1972, but a check of student records showed they were no longer living in Chapel Hill.

Official city-wide turnout in the election was 49 per cent, although Cohen said about 58 per cent of the registered voters who still were in Chapel Hill cast ballots.

Weather

TODAY: Partly cloudy and damp. The high is expected in the upper 60's. The low tonight is expected in the low 40's. There is ten per cent chance of precipitation. Outlook: warmer and drier.

Dogs have personal problems too, like the one Dwight Ayscue is escorting down Columbia Street. The dog had undergone an ear operation and Ayscue is doing everything he can to help lift the dog's spirits. (Staff photo by Gary Lobraico)
