

Can the worm turn?

Deacons host Carolina tonight

by Elliott Warnock
Sports Editor

Well, well... the worm turns. Remember when the North Carolina Tar Heels made a perilous journey into Cameron Indoor Stadium? Carolina managed to sneak away with a tight two-point victory after Bobby Jones stole an inbounds pass with scant seconds left to play and lay the ball in for the win. Sheer insanity amongst the Tar Heel faithful. Right after that happened, the Demon Deacons of Wake Forest stormed into Cameron and waltzed away with a 19 point upset of Duke's Blue Devils. Now that's real insanity. Tonight the Tar Heels travel to Winston-Salem for the first time since 1970 to meet Wake forest on the Deacons' home court. The last time Carolina played in Winston-Salem, the Heels lost 96-84, and since then, Wake has scheduled its home game against Carolina in the Greensboro Coliseum. The gametime of the Atlantic Coast Conference match-up is set for 8 p.m. in front of a sell-out crowd of nearly 8,000 fans. There will be a preliminary game at 6 p.m. between the North Carolina and Wake Forest junior varsity teams. "Four days after we beat Duke by two points at Durham, Wake went to the same court and whipped Duke by 19," says Tar Heel head coach Dean Smith. "That's proof enough that Wake Forest is capable of beating anyone. We face a real challenge on Wake's home court." Most ACC fans have heard it all before, one way or another. Any team in the ACC is capable of beating any other team in the ACC, or the top twenty for that matter, on any given night.

The Deacons have nothing to lose while having everything to gain if they can knock off the fourth best team in the nation. Carolina has everything to lose if the game falls to the Deacons, including that number four ranking. After the Tar Heels defeated the Maryland Terrapins in Chapel Hill last Saturday, 82-73, Carolina sealed its hold on the national number four spot while firmly entrenching the Heels into second place in the ACC standings behind North Carolina State. The Tar Heels now have an overall record of 13 wins and only two defeats, both of those to State, while having a 5-1 record in the ACC. Wake Forest will be shooting to level off the Deacons' league record at the .500 mark if they down the Heels. The Deacons have an ACC record of 2-3 plus an overall record of 9-6. Carolina has already won the initial meeting between the two rivals this season, beating the Deacons by a deceptive score of 95-78. When the Tar Heels hosted Wake earlier this season, the Deacons managed to stay close most of the contest, mainly due to the outside shooting of guards Skip Brown and Tony Byers. Byers has been averaging 18.5 points a game for the Deacons so far this season, so don't be too surprised if Wake tries to beat Carolina from the outside. After all, worms do turn, but they sometimes get stepped on while they're going about it.

Women cagers top arch rival UNC-G

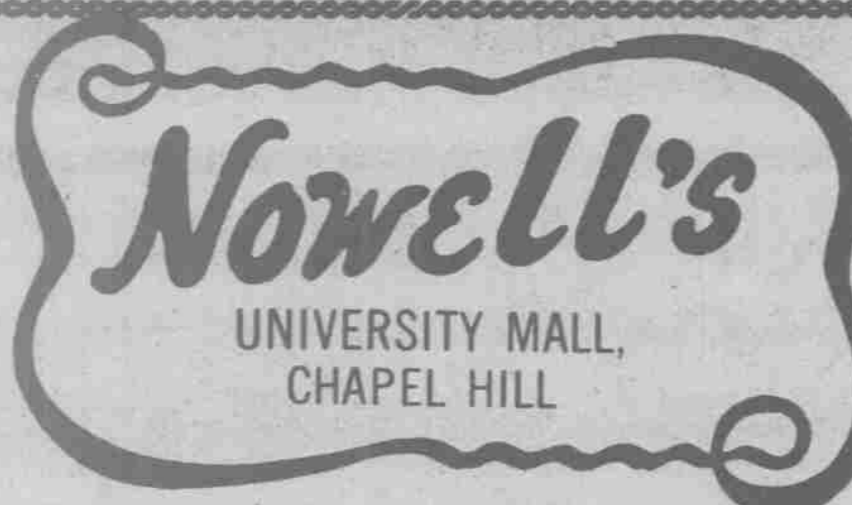

Carolina's female cagers muscled past arch-rival UNC-G, 54-44, Tuesday night in Carmichael Auditorium, to push the Heels' record to 3-1 and handed UNC-G its first defeat. Accented by tenacious defense, the Heels dominated the entire contest with junior Marsha Mann leading UNC with 20 points and 15 rebounds. "We looked like a different team tonight," said head coach Sue Cannon, recalling last week's loss to Winthrop College. "Defense was the name of the game, and we worked together." The Heels staggered UNC-G with a scrappy 2-1-2 zone. UNC never trailed the Lady Spartans and confined the Spartans' Rita Wiggs to nine points. The Greensboro club tied it at 23 early in the second half, but never threatened again, as the Heels opened up for a 17-point command with about 4:33 remaining in the game.

Frontcourt muscleman Lee Foye shows a fancy for rebounding form to State's Burleson in the Big Four Tournament. Wake Forest dropped this game, but the Deacons will be going for blood at home tonight against the North Carolina Tar Heels. Game time is 8 p.m. (Staff photo by Bill Wrenn)

Waldrop still best miler

UNC's Tony Waldrop notched his third consecutive sub-four-minute mile in defeating Marty Liquori by a step in Philadelphia Monday night in what was the first four-minute mile in the history of the Philadelphia Track Classic. Waldrop and Liquori were both clocked in 3:58.9. Waldrop was in third place in the final lap when he turned on the burners and caught Liquori in the final 30 yards. By virtue of his outstanding back-to-back victories over Liquori, Waldrop remains the fastest miler in the world. Tickets for Saturday evening's home basketball game against ACC foe, Clemson, will be available tonight at 5:00 p.m. at Carmichael Auditorium. Golf coach Mike McLeod has announced that all interested candidates for the golf team should attend a meeting at 5:00 p.m. Thursday in Room 304 Woollen.
