

Carolina vs. State: this is the game

"The players will be up for the Carolina game this Saturday for one reason," said N.C. State coach Lou Holtz, "because it will simply be the Carolina game. That's all they need to know to get up for the game."

Carolina coach Bill Dooley has much the same attitude.

Dooley commented, "I expect full well the State football players will be ready to play, just as I expect full well that our players will be ready to play."

Carolina will be up; State will be up; the fans will be up; ABC television will be up.

Everyone will be up. There can be little doubt... this is the game.

North Carolina vs. N.C. State, Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

It's safe to say that the UNC-NCSU rivalry has taken its place at the top of the list of priorities for most sports fans at Carolina.

After all, revenge is sweet, and it's hard to forget the 28-26 loss to State in Carter Stadium last fall, plus the three straight losses Carolina's basketball team has taken at the hands of State.

The games between Dooley and Holtz have always been close. A William and Mary team coached by Holtz came to Chapel Hill in 1971 and lost by one point, 36-35.

Holtz went to State in 1972 and lost to Dooley again in Chapel Hill by one point, 34-33.

State finally got its way in 1973, taking the win in Carter, 28-26. So in three games, the total point spread was four points.

Holtz is proud of the fact his State team has never lost at home, never lost at night, and never lost wearing red game jerseys.

Just between you and me... State will not be playing at home, will not be playing at night, and will not be wearing red game jerseys.

And another little note... Holtz has never won in Kenan Stadium.

Holtz wants to win the game, so does Dooley, and the desire to win has created some tension between the two. As Holtz said, "It's a natural thing to feel like that. It's a big game between these two schools. It wasn't like this when I was at William and Mary; I came down here to play once; I don't think we recruited against each other all that much. But now, we're playing in the same conference."

As Dooley put it, "No matter what the records or the rankings of the two teams, this is always a big game. There is a lot of emotion involved."

Emotion aside, Dooley thinks that the toughest defensive team will be the winner. "The game will be decided by defense," he stated. "The team that plays the best on defense will win the game."

Dooley continued, "I have confidence in our defense." Holtz thinks steady, solid play will be the key.

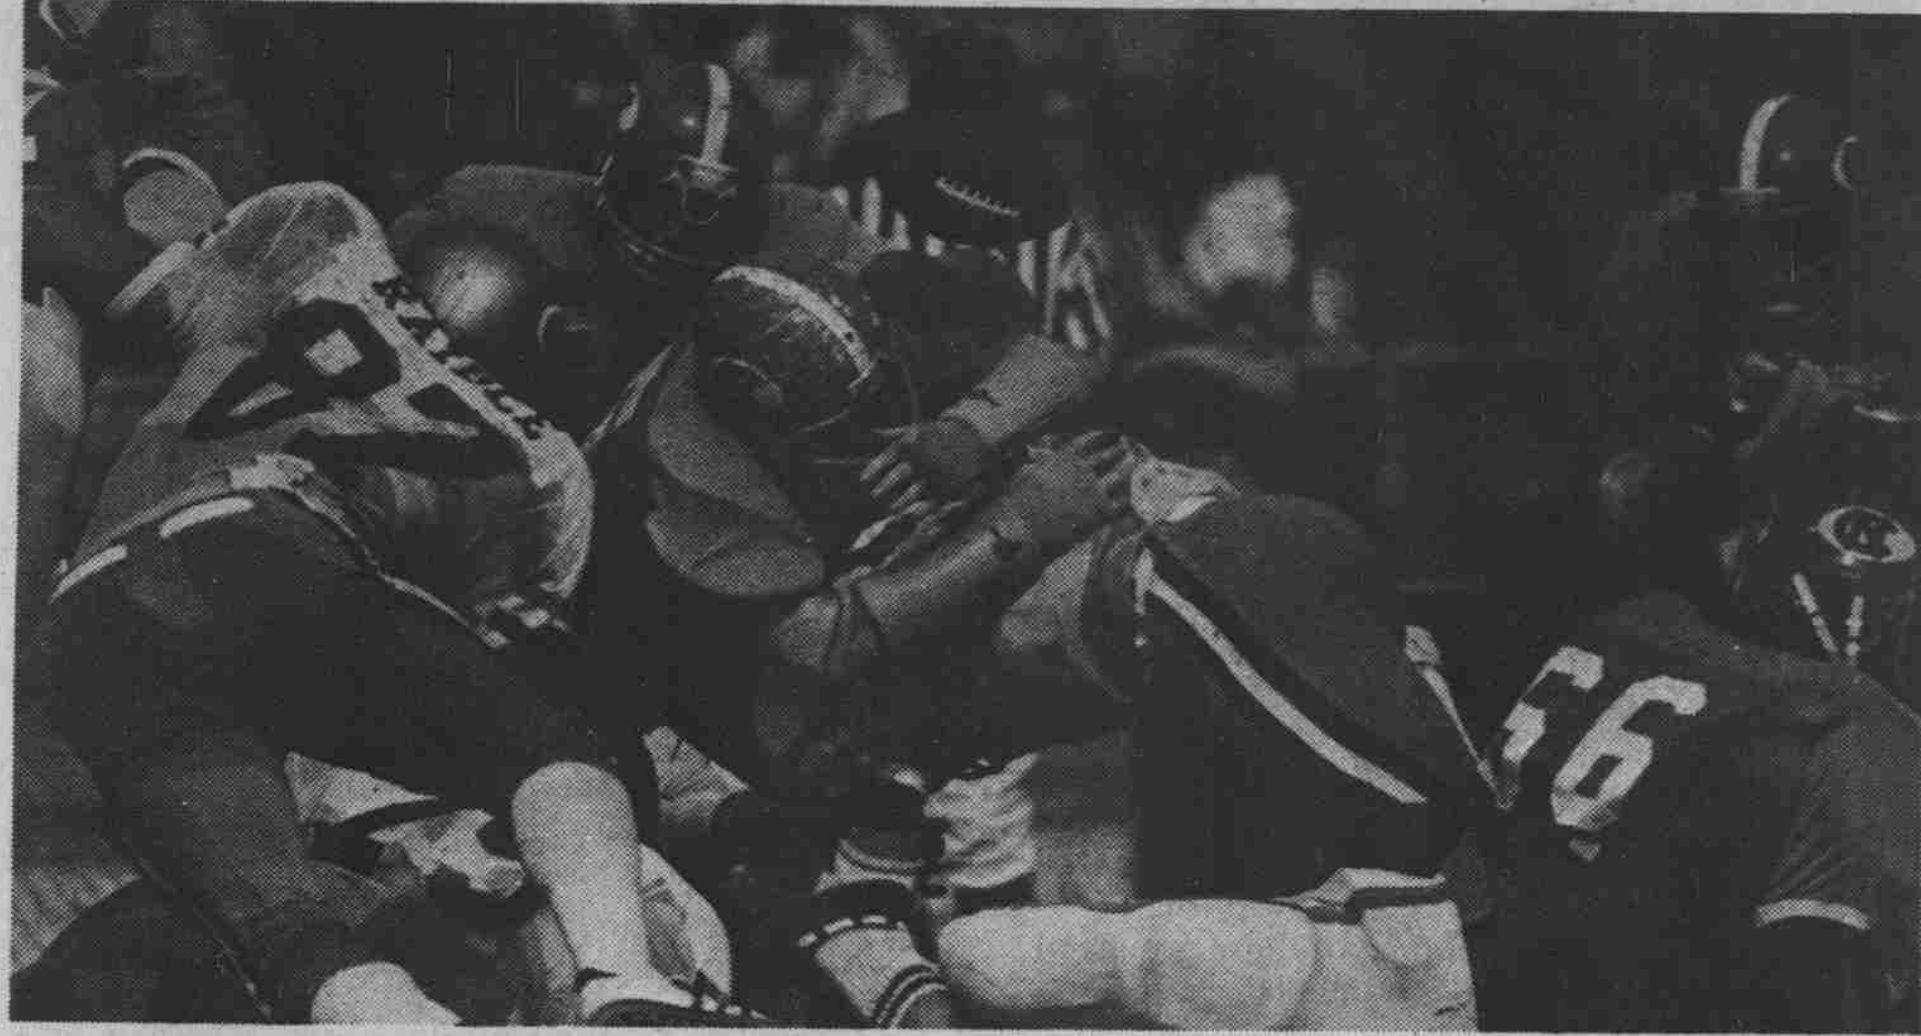

"The team that makes the fewest mistakes Saturday will win the game," said Holtz. "I am sure we will play up to our capabilities."

Holtz went on to say of the Tar Heels, "They make very few mistakes," citing UNC quarterback Chris Kucek and the Carolina running backs as main reasons for the Heels' stability.

There is an extra goal at stake for this game.

If State wins, it will be the 15th straight ACC win for Holtz and he will tie Dooley's record, set in 1972. The last ACC game Holtz lost was to Carolina, 1972 in Kenan Stadium.

Little doubt that this is the game.

Dooley: defense will decide the game

Golf team does well in southern tourney

by Bill Kay Sports Writer

The Carolina varsity men's golf squad finished twelfth out of the 22-team field in the sixth annual Dixie Intercollegiate Golf Championship in Georgia.

The three-day, 54-hole event, inaugurated the fall season for UNC.

Coming up next is the Maryland Invitational in two weeks.

As expected, Wake Forest captured team honors, besting second place Georgia by 12 strokes.

Wake ended with a total of 866, Georgia was next at 878, Florida 883, Georgia Southern 892 and N.C. State finished at 893, good enough for fifth place.

UNC finished with a disappointing 915. "The fall is experimental," said UNC coach Mike McLeod. "We want to find out who our best six players are for the spring season."

Even though the fall season isn't as important as the Atlantic Coast Conference (ACC) tournament in the spring, McLeod expressed displeasure over finishing so high but not beating ACC rivals N.C. State and Clemson.

Wake's Curtis Strange won individual honors with a three-day total of 206, 10 under par. He fired a record-tying 66 on the 7,000-yard layout in the second round.

UNC finished as follows: Freshman Bill Sibbick: 78-76-72 for 266. Freshman Wes Minton: 73-78-76 for 227. Captain Pete Wallenborn: 77-76-76 for 229.

Marc Bope: 82-76-75 for 233.

The scores of Mark Andrew and Bill Anderson were not counted since only the top four scores are included in the team total.
