

IFC sparks varying opinions

Some fraternity presidents say it's worthless

by Greg Nye
Staff Writer

UNC fraternity presidents disagree over whether the Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC) is meeting their needs.

During recent interviews, some of the fraternity presidents who make up IFC said the organization is almost worthless, while others said it was doing a good job.

"The IFC is helpful in establishing contacts with the community, but we aren't doing the job in bringing fraternities together," Bob Wilson, Sigma Nu president, said. "And we're failing to establish a relationship with the student body."

"We aren't doing anything about the anti-fraternity feelings on campus. Fraternities are as good as living alternatives as dorms, but the IFC isn't letting students know about it, and we should."

Set up by campus fraternities to express their needs to the University and coordinate inter-fraternity activities, IFC seeks to bring fraternities closer together and decrease the rivalry between them, IFC president Joe Husted said.

But Husted admitted, "We're doing a less than adequate job in bringing fraternities closer together. The rivalry is traditional, and we haven't come up with any workable plan to do away with it yet."

"The IFC cannot possibly bring fraternities closer together when we can't even get a quorum at our meetings," Wilson said. As many as 10 of the 27 fraternity presidents are absent at each IFC meeting, he said.

Chi Phi president Ralph Pitts doesn't see enough interaction among fraternities in IFC. "Each house keeps pretty much to itself."

"We stereotype one another and badmouth each other during rush," Phi Delta Theta president Guy Graves said. "This conflict can be carried on throughout the year, and it's most often seen between the large and small fraternities."

One way in which the rivalry between fraternities is supposed to be lessened is through IFC sponsored activities involving all fraternities. A lack of such activities, however, is the cause of much of the dissatisfaction among IFC members.

"The IFC is preoccupied with this Title IX business," Graves said. "Because of it, there haven't been any unified projects or activities."

Phi Sigma Kappa president Ken Gray also sees Title IX as occupying too much of IFC's time. "They're pushing Title IX too hard," he said. "The IFC has got to forget about Title IX before it will get anything done."

Most IFC members agreed the council has done a good job expressing itself on Title IX, but some wonder if anyone listens.

"The administration doesn't listen too much to students," Phi Kappa Alpha president Will McCain said, "no matter what organization is speaking for them."

All fraternity presidents interviewed, no matter how dissatisfied, agreed that the IFC is a necessary organization for fraternities.

Kappa Alpha president Lee Hasty said his fraternity has no close relationship with the IFC, but "fraternities need some sort of central organization, some cohesion. The IFC provides this — although there is room for improvement."

The IFC is most useful to fraternities during rush. "The IFC sends information to incoming freshmen, letting them know about fraternities at UNC," Chip Morris, Phi Kappa Phi president and IFC secretary said. "We also publicize rush and help coordinate the whole affair."

The Inter-Fraternity Court, a branch of the IFC, is responsible for solving disputes between fraternities that get out of hand. IFC elects 13 fraternity men to the court, which hears cases brought to it by fraternities or individual fraternity members. The court has the same power to settle disputes as the campus Student Court System.

Rub Griffin, chairman of the court, said Thursday the court has been settling disputes between houses by forcing them to work together. "Our biggest problems come from houses that are close to each other," he said.

"In one case this year we had people throwing bottles, playing pranks on each other and shouting obscenities across the lawn. We solved the problem by forcing members of both houses to arbitrate their own situation. Gradually, the two houses have learned to cooperate with each other."

Some council members think the IFC is doing a good job in promoting inter-fraternity relationships. McCain believes the IFC "serves as a forum for discussing common problems. Just meeting every two weeks is bringing us closer together than we were."

"The IFC is trying to change student attitudes about fraternities through publicity," Husted said. "But in the end, opinions are formed by the reality of the system. If we want to change student attitudes, we have to improve the fraternity system."

United Fund short of goal

by Laura Toler
Staff Writer

As Wednesday's deadline for contributions to the local United Fund fast approaches, $104,000 has been raised — $38,000 short of this year's $142,000 goal. "I think we will not be that short of our goal when all returns are in," fund drive chairman and UNC associate student affairs dean James O. Cansler said Monday.

"If we don't reach our goal, I will be very sorry for the services, whose activities will have to be cut back in proportion to how short we are," he said.

Mitchell Simon, publicity director for the drive, expressed disappointment in the drive's results.

"I view it as a peculiar kind of apathy in some segments of Chapel Hill," he said Monday. "But we will go right to the last day and hope we come near the goal."

But despite lagging contributions, community reaction to the drive was much better this year, Simon said. He attributed the greater interest to radio announcements and person-to-person efforts to re-educate people about the various member agencies and what they do.

Among the 20 community services aided by the local United Fund are the Community Residence for Infant Mothers' Beginnings, a home and training center for unwed mothers; the North Carolina United Community Services, a state agency that has provided such local assistance as a study of Chapel Hill day care centers; the United Health Services of North Carolina, sponsor of various drug counseling programs; the local Childrens Home Society; and Neighborhood House, an activity center built between a black community and a white community in attempt to bring the two together.

"They're mainly human services," Simon said. "Without the United Fund, they would be quite destitute and might even become defunct."

Other United Fund-aided programs are the local YMCA, Y-Teens, The Orange County Association for Retarded Children, the Orange County Mental Health Association, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Inter-Church Council, American Red Cross, Salvation Army, Home Health Agency of Chapel Hill, Inc., Switchboard (a service of the Drug Action Committee) and four area day care centers.

Funds for this year's drive, which began Oct. 27, were collected by over 400 community volunteers working within local businesses. Retired citizens were contacted on a residential basis.

Cansler said anyone who has not been contacted by a solicitor can mail his contribution to United Fund of Chapel Hill-Carrboro, P.O. Box 845, Chapel Hill. Further information can be obtained by calling United Fund Headquarters, 929-7273.

News briefs

Minority recruitment

North Carolina minority students interested in studying law may attend the annual Minority Recruitment Weekend Conference Saturday.

Discussions will include practical aspects of gaining law school admittance, helpful undergraduate curricula and financial aid sources.

Long-range aspects of admission will be covered, so participation by freshmen and sophomores as well as by upperclassmen is encouraged.

A panel discussion on the "Social and Political Dimensions of the Lawyer's Role" will also be part of the conference.

Students may register between 8 and 8:50 a.m. on the day of the conference. The program is not directed specifically toward recruitment for the UNC Law School.

Christmas drive set

The 24th annual Christmas House Inc., which provides clothes, toys and food for needy families at Christmas, will be held Monday, Dec. 9, in the basement of University Presbyterian Church, campus coordinator Tom Capps said Monday.

Capps said this is the first year a campus drive has been attempted. He said financial contributions and volunteer workers are needed.

Volunteers needed

The program is sponsored by the Chapel Hill Junior Service League, which has helped 177 families with 475 children last year, Capps said. Capps can be reached at 942-7828 or the campus YMCA for more information.

Volunteers needed

The campus YM-YWCA is starting a nursing home volunteer program with the Interchurch Council, and volunteers will be needed to supplement the efforts of the area convalescent homes.

Activities directors are especially interested in student volunteers who promise to devote a minimum of two hours each week to the program, in service to the nearly 250 residents of the Chapel Hill convalescent and nursing centers, Oak Hill Manor and Hillhaven-Orange Nursing Center.

Volunteers will supplement the professional staff of the homes, joining forces with the staff to become a therapeutic team in the care and treatment of the elderly. Warmth, kindness and a diversity of experience will provide a beneficial contribution to the effectiveness of this team.

Anyone interested in volunteering may come by Room 102 in the Y Building and sign up.

Plaza 1
NOW 3:00-5:00
7:00-9:00

I DID IT FOR ALVIN!

ALVIN PURPLE
IN COLOR

Plaza 2
NOW 3:10-5:15
7:20-9:30

"HARRY & TONTO"
ART CARNEY

Plaza 3
3:00 & 8:00

GONE WITH THE WIND
CLARK GABLE
VIVIAN LEIGH
LESLIE HOWARD
OLIVIA de HAVILLAND

abc southeastern Theaters

2:15 6:45
4:30 9:00

CAROLINA
ALAN BATES
GLENDA JACKSON
OLIVER REED
JENNIE LINDEN
D. H. LAWRENCE'S "WOMEN IN LOVE"

The Current Affairs Committee of the Carolina Union as part of the Colloquium on Rights presents
A Look At Students' Rights
including: Dr. Dan Pollitt, UNC Law School with AWS, BSM, SCAU, PIRG, Student Gov't.
and Student Legal Assistance Committee
Tuesday, Nov. 5 Snack Bar 7:30 p.m.

Varsity
NOW 2:20-4:00-5:40-7:20-9:00
FLESH GORDON
Peter Locke & Jim Buckley Present
A Mammoth Films Release
NOT TO BE CONFUSED WITH THE ORIGINAL "FLASH GORDON"
Starring JACOB WILLIAMS, SARAHNE FELLES, JOSEPH HODGINS and WILLIAM WATT
IN METRO COLOR

FALL SALE!
Round 7
Super
Gift Books!

Picasso 347
the famous erotic prints,
book was $150.00,
now only $59.95!

Facing East
James Michener and Jack Levine. Limited edition, signed. Was $600.00,
now only $59.95!

Great American Shooting
Prints, was $25.00,
now only $12.95!

Michelangelo the Painter, was $75.00,
now only $19.95!

... and this is only a sample, chum. Come browsing and see 'em all!

The Optimate Bookshop
University Mall and Downtown Chapel Hill
Open 'til 10

Campus Calendar

- Today's Activities
- 10:00 AM: NC PIRG rally at a consumer and environmental protection organization? Come and bring a piece of M&M's apple pie to munch on during an open mike question and answer session, noon today, the PL.
  - Physical chemistry seminar, Professor Donald Truhlar, University of Minnesota, "Trajectory Studies of Threshold Energies and the Production and Utilization of Vibrational Energy by Chemical Reactions," 308 Venable, 4 p.m. today.
  - Photographic Arts Society meeting, 7:30 tonight, Allied Arts Building, 810 W. Proctor St., Durham. Workshop on contrast control in b/w photography.
  - Philosophical Club lecture, Professor Donald S. Kuzell, UNC, "Moralism and Marginal Freedom in Pop Art," 7:30 tonight, Day Hall faculty lounge.
  - Learn about your rights! A panel of student rights with speakers from BSM, AWS, PIRG, SCAU, Student Government and Student Legal Assistance Committee, and Dr. Dan Pollitt, UNC Law School, 7:30 tonight, Snack Bar.
  - There will be a meeting of the Forum committee, today, second floor, Union.
  - Career Planning and Placement seminar, "Career Opportunities in Social Service," 3:30 p.m. today, 210 Gardner. All interested students invited.
- Items of Interest
- The history department invites interested undergraduates to a coffee hour, 3-5 today, 508 Hamilton.
  - The Campus Governing Council will meet at 7:30 tonight, Union. Everyone is invited to attend.
  - UNICEF Christmas cards and calendars will be on sale 2-4 p.m. today, YW-YWCA.
  - The Full Gospel Student Fellowship invites everyone to the Presbyterian Student Center for worship, 7:30 tonight.
  - Union music committee will meet 4:15 p.m. today, Frank Porter Graham Room. A note to all present and prospective members: the music committee meeting time for next semester is 4:15 Tuesdays.
  - You are invited to attend a reception for Rev. Ralph Abernathy following his 8 p.m. lecture Wednesday, second floor lounge, Union.
  - Chapel Hill ECOS will sponsor Brad Davis of the North Carolina Division of State Parks, who will describe the Unstead State Park plan. The meeting, which is free and open to the public, is at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, 215-215 Union.
  - Chemistry Colloquium: Dr. G.L. Elchorn, National Institute of Health, on "The Effect of Metal Ions on the Structure and Function of Nucleic Acids," 9 p.m. Wednesday, 207 Venable.
  - A Christian Emphasis Week planning rally will meet 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Great Hall. Sponsored by CCC, CCF, BCF and Navigators.
  - The Outing Club will meet 7:30 p.m. Wednesday 204 Union. All those interested in going to Room 102, must attend. Also sign up for other trips. Slides of climbing will be shown.
  - Neuroendocrine control of thermal acclimation in the fiddler crab, Uca pugilator. Lecture given by Dr. D.U. Shvachkin, assistant professor of physiology at the Medical University of South Carolina, 4:15 p.m. Wednesday, Department of Zoology, 107 Wilson. Coffee and tea in first floor lobby at 4 p.m.
  - Psychology Colloquium Series: Dr. Earl Schaeffer will speak on "A Socio-Ecological Perspective on Psychological Research: Monads, Dyads, Triads and Ecosystems," 4 p.m. Wednesday, 301 Davis Hall.
  - A discussion on "Nonviolent Lifestyles and Alternatives" will be held 8 p.m. Wednesday, 108 Purvey Rd. Bring a dish to share for supper. Call 928-2607 for further information.
  - A program on alternative Christmas gift-giving through the Vietnamese Children's Fund will be held 8 p.m. Wednesday, Presbyterian Student Center. Sponsored by the Chapel Hill Peace Center and the Vietnamese Children's Fund.
  - There will be an organizational meeting for all persons interested in forming consciousness-raising groups 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, 201 Peabody Hall. All interested men and women are urged to attend. If you cannot attend but are interested, please call or come by the AWS office and leave your name and phone number.
  - All-campus billiards tournament: men and women eligible, entry free, must be UNC student. Trophies to winners and free trip to represent UNC in Regional Tournament. Sign up in Union billiards room until noon Friday. Competition begins Monday, Nov. 11.
  - This is your last week to get Yack pictures taken. Make appointments through Friday, Suite D. There's no charge and you may wear what you like.

Three arrested for pot

Chapel Hill police reported Monday the arrest of three persons over the weekend for possession of marijuana.

Louis Jones, 24, 731 Pritchard St., and Robert G. Martin, 29, 304 W. Franklin St., were arrested and charged with felonious possession at 10:35 p.m. Friday, Chapel Hill police Lt. Arnold said.

The pair was arrested in the parking lot on Rosemary Street beside Foushee Realty, Gold said, taken to the county jail in Hillsborough and held under $800 bond.

David Smernoff, 302 Teague dorm, was arrested at 3:05 p.m. Saturday in Kenan Stadium, Gold said. Smernoff was held under $200 bond and released Saturday night.

Wording suit dismissed against amendment No. 2

by George Bacso
Staff Writer

Constitutional amendment number two on the Nov. 5 election ballot has been the subject of a storm of controversy which resulted in a court challenge of the proposed amendment's wording.

The amendment would enable county governments to issue revenue bonds for private industry. The bonds would be used to attract new industry or improve environmental controls on existing ones.

The proposal is for a "constitutional amendment to create jobs and employment opportunities and to protect the environment by authorizing the issuance of revenue bonds."

Although they were not opposed to the amendment, environmental groups took the proposal to court because they objected to its wording.

Wake County Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey dismissed the suit Friday but agreed the amendment's language was "consciously slanted to induce people to vote for it."

"Every instinct I've got says this is one of the worst things I've seen," Bailey said, "but the general assembly has the right to phrase the wording any way it chooses."

In 1967 and 1971, the general assembly passed legislation in an attempt to allow local governments to subsidize industrial development, but the state supreme court struck the legislation down both times.

The major complaint to the actual intent of the amendment, as stated by state treasurer Edwin Gill, is that the tax-exempt bonds it authorizes would compete with state and local government bonds authorized for such public purposes as financing schools and roads.

environment by authorizing the issuance of revenue bonds."

Although they were not opposed to the amendment, environmental groups took the proposal to court because they objected to its wording.

Wake County Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey dismissed the suit Friday but agreed the amendment's language was "consciously slanted to induce people to vote for it."

"Every instinct I've got says this is one of the worst things I've seen," Bailey said, "but the general assembly has the right to phrase the wording any way it chooses."

In 1967 and 1971, the general assembly passed legislation in an attempt to allow local governments to subsidize industrial development, but the state supreme court struck the legislation down both times.

The major complaint to the actual intent of the amendment, as stated by state treasurer Edwin Gill, is that the tax-exempt bonds it authorizes would compete with state and local government bonds authorized for such public purposes as financing schools and roads.

Labor leader Wilbur Hobby also criticized the amendment, saying it would provide special favors for industry.

James F. Harrington, secretary of the state department of natural and economic resources, however, said passage of the amendment would increase North Carolina's chances for further industrial development.

Supporters also claim the bonds would not saturate the bond market. If a school — or road — bond issue is going out at the same time as the industrial revenue bond issue, local governments could hold back the latter.

Among the state senate candidates, Democrats Russell Walker and Charles Vickery support the amendment as an attractive force to bring in outside industry.

Republicans Ed Tenney and Michael Budd oppose the amendment, claiming it benefits only big industry.

State house Democratic incumbents Trish Hunt and Edward Holmes also oppose passage of the bond issue, while challenger Francis Henry is in favor of it with some reservations.

Crossword Puzzler

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

ACROSS

- 1 Cry
- 2 Anglo-Saxon money
- 3 Chastise
- 4 Impassive
- 5 Tract of land
- 6 Chemical suffix
- 7 International Labor Organization (abbr.)
- 8 Imitate
- 9 Rodent
- 10 Aeriform fluid
- 11 Matur
- 12 Exist
- 13 Word of greeting
- 14 Prevent from free speech
- 15 Calling
- 16 Before
- 17 Combat
- 18 Mails
- 19 Macaw
- 20 Emmet
- 21 Pronoun
- 22 Musical instruments
- 23 Cognizant of
- 24 A state (abbr.)
- 25 Certificate of indebtedness
- 26 Let it stand
- 27 Occurrence
- 28 Plague
- 29 Fruit drink
- 30 Bow
- 31 Later
- 32 Simpler
- 33 Things, in law
- 34 Genus of cattle
- 35 Everyone
- 36 Direction
- 37 Parrot
- 38 Greek letter
- 39 Join
- 40 Greek letter
- 41 Parrot
- 42 Part of "to be"
- 43 Writing fluids
- 44 Music: as written
- 45 Greek letter
- 46 The ural
- 47 New Zealand parrot
- 48 Greek letter
- 49 Part of "to be"

DOWN

- 1 Algonquian Indian

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.