

Town requests funds to buy 7 new buses

The Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen requested additional transportation funds in December to purchase seven new buses and to aid in covering the cost of construction of a bus maintenance and operations facility.

The funds, totalling $539,720, will be requested in an amendment to the original grant application to the Urban Mass Transit Administration (UMTA). Approval of the amendment by the aldermen came only after it was stipulated that UMTA receive notification that the proposed garage site on Plant Road was subject to change.

Alderman Alice Welsh objected to the $300,000 in additional funds which was allocated for grading and preparation of the garage site. She maintained that the Plant Road site was selected hastily when the town submitted plans to UMTA.

However, Mayor Howard Lee and Transportation Director John Pappas pointed out the reduced gas expenditures for buses driven to the Plant Road site rather than a more remote one.

In casting the only negative vote on the amendment, Alderman Tommy Gardner commented that the town needs more transportation experience before ordering the new buses.

Mayor Lee cited the town's responsibility to provide a good transit system for its citizens and said that even the seven new buses might not be adequate. The size of ridership on the bus system has gone from zero to third in the state in the past three months, Lee said.

Alternate sites for the garage will be submitted to the board by the town manager at the earliest possible date.

In executive session later on Dec. 16 Mayor Lee appointed Aldermen Welsh, Gardner and Shirley Marshall to serve with him on a committee to meet with the Amalgamated Transit Workers Union early in 1975.

Formation of the committee was prompted after Lee met with Wilbur Hobby, president of the N.C. AFL-CIO, local Transit Workers Union representatives and three Chapel Hill transit employees who asked that the town officially recognize the Transit Workers Union.

The town was requested to sign a working agreement with the union and to initiate a "check-off system" for workers in which they can sign a card to join the union and have their dues deducted from their paychecks monthly and sent to the union.

The town can not legally sign any contracts with the union or enter into collective bargaining, Lee said. He added that he wanted a no-strike clause in any agreement with the union. He cautioned all governmental departments that they were not to hinder the organization of the transit union in any manner.

ZBT house to hold campus-wide 'Hora'

All-Campus "Hora," a campus-wide band party, will welcome the spring semester tonight beginning at 8:30 p.m.

The party, sponsored by Zeta Beta Tau (ZBT) fraternity, will be held at the ZBT house on Finley Golf Course Road. The group has chartered a bus to bring students who wish to attend from campus.

Buses will leave Chase Cafeteria starting at 8:30 p.m. every half hour until 1:00 a.m. Thursday.

Stops will be made at Teague Dorm, the Scuttlebutt, Granville Towers, and Winston Dorm to pick up students. The buses will also furnish transportation back to campus.

The bus ride, as well as beer while riding, will be free. Beer will also be available at the party for those who wish to purchase it.

This is the third year ZBT has had such a party. Last year the party was called All Campus Boogie; the year before, Spring Spirits.

The Lonely Drifters Band from Raleigh will provide music for the get together. Jeff Sellers, in charge of planning the party, described their music as "beach and rock and roll."

He said over 2,000 students attended last year's party and they expect 5,000 this year.

Foushee found guilty of assault

Alderman to file appeal

by Mike Horne
Staff Writer

Carrboro Alderman Braxton D. Foushee was found guilty over the break of assaulting a minor at a UNC football game in Kenan Stadium on Oct. 5.

District Court Judge C.C. Cates found Foushee guilty of assaulting a minor and resisting arrest. Cates found Foushee innocent of a third charge of disorderly conduct. Foushee said yesterday the case will be appealed to the Orange County Superior Court on Jan. 13.

Police Lt. Manley Dawson said he tried to arrest Foushee after seeing him strike the youth, 13-year-old Tony Farrington, on the face and throw him to the ground.

Foushee denied striking Farrington. He said he asked Dawson to eject the youth for withholding the game money he owed Foushee from selling soft drinks at a game the previous week. Foushee has sold concessions at UNC football games for the past 18 years.

Dawson, refusing to eject the boy, said Foushee stated if the police would not get rid of the boy, then "I'm going to do it myself." Dawson said he left when he saw Foushee knock the boy to the ground and returned with Lt. Robert Frick. Foushee asked the officers to go with him to talk with assistant athletic director Joseph Hilton. Dawson said that as the three began leaving the stadium, Foushee ran back into the stadium cursing and waving his arms.

Dawson said four officers struggled to subdue Foushee as he was taken to the police station. Foushee said a UNC regulation states that if anyone steals from a concession stand he should be ejected from the stadium. Dawson and Frick said they had never heard of such a regulation.

Bill Lovingood of the UNC athletic department denied yesterday that there is such a written regulation.

"I think the whole thing was a misunderstanding. I think the policeman who was involved in the incident probably wasn't as familiar with our procedures as someone who has been working with us for say 15 years," Lovingood said.

Newsroom gets new brass

New personnel have filled several key editorial positions on the Daily Tar Heel this semester.

David Klinger has become news editor, Jeanie Hanna, assistant news editor, and Lu Ann Jones and David Ennis, associate editors.

Klinger, a 20-year-old junior from Winston Salem, replaced Joel Brinkley as news editor. Klinger's experience includes two years as a DTH general assignment and town beat reporter and a summer internship and a "stringer" job with the Winston Salem Journal in 1974. He is a journalism/political science major.

Brinkley and Kevin McCarthy, former managing editor, will continue as contributing writers for the paper. Brinkley had been news editor since last May. McCarthy has been with the DTH for three years.

Tar Heel editor Greg Turosak will take over as managing editor, in addition to his other duties. Jeanie Hanna, a senior journalism major from Lake City, Fla., has worked for the Tar Heel advertising staff. She worked for the Lake City Reporter in 1972 and for the Associated Press on the last election night. She replaced senior Ted Mellnik as assistant news editor.

Lu Ann Jones and David Ennis have replaced Barbara Holtzman and Gary Fulton on the editorial page. Holtzman will continue as a staff writer.

Jones is a junior journalism major from Corapeake, N.C. She has worked for the past year-and-a-half as a DTH general assignment and feature writer.

Ennis has worked a year and a half as a general assignment and Student Government reporter for the Daily Tar Heel, and has been a summer intern for the Twin City Sentinel in Winston-Salem. He is a junior journalism student from Salisbury, N.C.

Population topic of new course

A new course, Population and Planning in Contemporary Africa, will be offered this semester by the African Afro-American Studies Curriculum.

The course is titled African Studies 70: African Policy Studies and is open to juniors and seniors.

Issues to be explored include population policy in development planning in African states and African concern with population growth.

The course is scheduled for Tuesdays at 2-4:30 p.m. Interested students may obtain tickets during registration at the Afro-American Studies desk or contact Dr. Ann Dunbar, 456 Hamilton Hall.

science and language majors

At NSA, our success depends on yours.

Engineers will find work which is performed nowhere else... devices and systems are constantly being developed which are in advance of any outside the Agency. As an Agency engineer you will carry out research, design, development, testing and evaluation of sophisticated, large-scale crypto communications and EDP devices using the latest equipment for advanced research within NSA's fully instrumented laboratories.

Computer Scientists participate in systems analysis and systems programming related to advanced scientific and operational applications. Software design and development is included, as well as support in hardware design, development and modification.

Mathematicians define, formulate, and solve complex communications-related problems. Statistical mathematics, matrix algebra and combinatorial analysis are but a few of the tools applied by Agency mathematicians. Opportunities for contributions in computer sciences and theoretical research are also offered.

Linguists are engaged in a wide variety of translation, transcription, analysis and documentation projects. Fluency in speaking is not essential, but knowledge of idiomatic, colloquial and dialectal variations is desirable. Experience in Slavic, Near Eastern, and Oriental languages is particularly valuable.

NSA offers you this opportunity to further broaden your knowledge of modern language of area studies, and to use your talents in immediate language assignments, advanced, refresher, or special vocabulary training or may even train you in an entirely new language.

At NSA, we are responsible for designing and developing secure, invulnerable communications and EDP systems, receive and analyze much of the vital information. The advanced applied in this work are such that frequently take you beyond the accepted boundaries of knowledge. Consequently, your imagination and resourcefulness are essential qualifications for success.

Your Placement Office has further information about NSA career opportunities, including details regarding the NSA Professional Qualification Test (PQT) which language majors (except those majoring in Slavic, Near Eastern, and Oriental languages) must take as a prerequisite for employment consideration. Or you may write directly to Chief, College Relations Branch, National Security Agency, Fort George G. Meade, Maryland 20755. Attn: M321. An equal opportunity employer. M.F.
