Summer studies abroad

"A Summer in Ireland" includes classes in Irish literature and drama at Dublin's Trinity College and Galway's University College. UNC-A Professor Ellis Shorb will accompany the group as lectures are conducted by Irish teachers for six hours credit.

Tuition, fees, university housing and board are included in the $525 program cost. Travel arrangements may be made separately, but a recommended charter flight from Washington, D.C. to London will leave July 11 and return Aug. 19, four days after classes end. The tentative round-trip fare for the flight is $312.50.

Any university student in good standing may apply. A registration fee of $50 will be due on Mar. 15, with the balance payable by Apr. 15.

The other two study programs have the same departure and return dates. A liberal arts curriculum, taught at Oxford and St. Benet's England, offers six hours credit for $525, travel expenses not included. And at Montpelier, France, French language and culture courses offer three hours credit for $500, excluding travel expenses.

The tour of Scotland and England, from Aug. 3 to Aug. 21, costs $975. No academic credit is offered.

For information on all UNC-A programs, write Dr. James A. Stewart, director of the UNC-A Abroad Program, Asheville, 28804. Or call 704-254-7415.

UNC-Charlotte

A month-long study tour of Germany, Austria, Switzerland and Italy, including three weeks' residence in Rhine Castle, has been arranged by UNC-C. Beginning July 21, the curriculum includes undergraduate and graduate courses in economics, political science and business for three or six hours credit. The total cost from Charlotte is $990. Contact Dr. Ed Rogers, Garinger 103, UNC-C Station, Charlotte, 28223. Or telephone 704-597-2258.

UNC-Greensboro

UNC-G, in conjunction with Guilford College, will cover Europe and more with the whirlwind Seminars Abroad tour, plus six summer schools.

Seminars abroad Director Claude Shotts will lead 15 students through 11 countries. The key stops will be Paris, Amsterdam, Munich, Vienna, Bern, Wengen, Florence, Rome, Athens, Istanbul, Moscow, Leningrad, Berlin, Copenhagen and London.

The group will leave JFK Airport in New York on June 6 and return Aug. 6. The package price — $1990 — includes all travel fares from New York, hotel bills, two meals per day and all program expenses. Four hours credit are offered.

The six summer school programs consist of two courses each. The fifteen or so students in each program can receive a total of six hours credit.

The London school, including cultural studies and a museum survey, will also spend a week in Paris. The Greece program, including a week in Florence and Rome, Italy, offers literature and a monuments survey. The Paris school includes a week in the Loire Valley and offers French conversation and civilization.

The Germany program — three weeks West and three weeks East — includes German language and culture. The Italian program, which is in danger of cancellation due to lack of interest, plans three weeks in Florence and three in Rome, to study Italian conversation and Humanism. The Cali, Colombia, school includes a week in other Colombian cities and courses in Spanish language and geography.

The cost of each of the European schools — $975 — covers tuition, the round-trip flight from New York's JFK Airport, hotel lodging, two meals per day and any program travel expenses. The fee does not include lodging or board for the three weeks of free time between the end of classes and the return date. All the European groups leave May 20 and return July 23, except for the French program, which departs June 6 and returns Aug. 9. A special round-trip charter flight from Greensboro to New York will probably be available.

The Cali program costs $800, which includes a round-trip flight from Miami, tuition, group travel, educational expenses, meals and housing in private homes.

Openings are available for each of the summer schools. Contact Dean Bert Goldman, UNC-G Greensboro, 27412, or Claude Shotts, Guilford College, Greensboro, 27410.

Appalachian State University

Four different programs are going to London and then Paris from this school in Boone. They are entitled: 1) "English Literature and Drama," 2) "Home Economics, Folk Customs and Fashion Design," 3) "Biology and Botany" and 4) "Childhood Literature." Each leaves New York July 14, returns Aug. 11 and costs $1,095.

Another course in physical education will study in Andrews, Scotland from June 26 to July 31. This program, also leaving from New York costs $1,145. All the Appalachian programs offer nine quarter hours credit. Contact Stephen J. Simon, Appalachian State University, Boone, 28608.

N.C. School of the Arts

NCSA's International Music Program will take students to Italy to study orchestra, chamber music, voice and guitar. There will also be a special piano program in Switzerland.

After three weeks of preparation on the Winston-Salem campus beginning June 17, participants will fly by charter from Washington, D.C. to Italy. About a week will be spent in Rome, Assisi and Florence each. The piano program involves three weeks in Sion, Switzerland. All students will return Aug. 8 from Pisa, Italy.

The cost — $1,100 — includes the round trip flight, other travel expenses, tuition, room, board and sightseeing costs. Contact William Baskin, administrative director of the International Music Program, NCSA, P.O. Box 4657, Winston-Salem, 27107. Or call 919-784-7170.

Others

UNC-Chapel Hill and N.C. State, member institutions of the Organization for Tropical Studies (OTS), are helping the consortium select students to study tropical biology and other specialized courses in Costa Rica. Graduate students can obtain up to eight hours credit for the biology course, which starts out in San Jose June 1 and travels through the different regions of the country until July 30. The $400 fee covers meals, travel expenses in Costa Rica and other expenses. Some participants may be subsidized for the flight to Costa Rica, which will cost around $240. Contact Dr. Helmut Lieth, 411 Coker Hall, UNC or Dr. Ray Noggle at N.C. State, 737-2406.

The UNC-Duke Faculty Colloquium is an experimental program sponsored by both Student Unions to provide a forum for faculty expertise. The Colloquium also hopes to present for both the faculty and students an opportunity to meet and discuss these various topics outside of the normal classroom environment.

Since this is an experimental program, we welcome your comments. If there are particular professors or subjects which you would like to see in any future programs, please contact either Suite A of the Carolina Union or the Duke Union offices in the Flowers building. Anyone desiring rides or further information about the series may inquire at either Union.
