Clemency ends today

WASHINGTON — President Ford's limited clemency program for Vietnam war objectors ends today, with the praise and criticism that launched it a year ago still sounding.

"We're quite pleased with the work the Presidential Clemency Board has done," Chairperson Charles Goodell said, as the 18 members prepared to make their final recommendations to President Ford.

However, Warren Hoover, executive director of the National Interreligious Service Board for Conscientious Objectors, said the program failed in all areas. "Less than 20 per cent of the people eligible applied and many of them have since dropped out."

Both sides concede the program failed to reach vast numbers of young men who found themselves in legal jeopardy because of draft evasion or desertion.

Henry Schwarzschild, director of the American Civil Liberties Union project on amnesty, called the program "a tragic failure" because of its "need for punishing those young Americans who refused to participate in the war."

Draft dodgers and deserters, including many young men who ran to Canada and Europe and still have not been indicted, were eligible to apply for generally low-paying, public service type civilian jobs.

After serving for up to two years, but usually after only a few months, they would avoid prosecution or would receive a presidential pardon if they had convictions.

Vandal slashes 'Nightwatch' 13 times with kitchen knife

AMSTERDAM — A former mental patient wielding a serrated kitchen knife walked up to Rembrandt's masterpiece the "Nightwatch" in the Amsterdam State Museum Sunday and slashed it at least 13 times. Museum guards overpowered the man and handed him to police who identified him as Wilhelmus Adrianus de Rijk, a 38-year-old teacher.

"The painting was seriously damaged," a museum spokesman said. Some of the slashes were almost three feet long.

Police said de Rijk made an incoherent statement suggesting he felt an irresistible urge to attack the painting and that he had been "forced to act by supernatural forces." They said he had a history of mental instability and at times had been a patient in a mental institution. The work, which is worth millions of dollars, occupied a place of honor in a special room along with a selection of other Dutch masterpieces.

Deputy Museum Director Pieter van Thiel said the museum's experts would repair the painting and the damage would then be invisible.

A museum spokesman said de Rijk had been discharged from his teaching job "for being medically unfit."

Disputes arise between candidates in New Hampshire re-election

CONCORD, N.H. — Democrat John A. Durkin accused Republican Louis C. Wyman Sunday of playing Watergate-style campaign tricks two days before they meet in New Hampshire's historic rerun Senate election.

Tuesday's rerun election is between Wyman, Durkin and the American party's C. Carmen Chimento. The first election last fall ended in a virtual tie between the Republican and Democrat. A new election was called when two state recounts and seven months of Senate review failed to resolve the deadlock.

Durkin said the Wyman campaign sent letters misrepresenting his stand on gun control to gun owners in the state. The letters say the former state insurance commissioner favored federal control of firearms and will promote gun confiscation laws.

The letters, distributed by Wyman for Senate campaign, were signed by California state Sen. H.L. Richardson, a board member of the National Rifle Association.

Durkin called them a "last minute attempt to mislead the voters — bringing in the Segretti-Nixon-Haldeman-Ehrlichman-type political campaign."

Durkin said during debate with Wyman on the ABC television program "Issues and Answers" that he is "interested in Mr. Wyman's position on truth because he knows on two occasions in debate I have said I am flatly opposed to gun control, flatly opposed to confiscation."

Wyman, 58, a five-term former congressman and long-time opponent of gun control, accused Durkin of changing his position.

First wholly American saint: Mother Anne Seton

VATICAN CITY — Mother Elizabeth Ann Seton, a riches-to-rags New York debutante and founder of the Sisters of Charity, Sunday became America's first native-born saint.

Pope Paul declared the canonization Vatican Women's Day. Elizabeth Ann Seton "was wholly American," the pontiff said. "Rejoice, we say to the great nation of the United States of America. Rejoice for your glorious daughter. Be proud of her. And know how to preserve her fruitful heritage."

More than 100,000 persons, 16,000 of them Americans, crammed St. Peter's Square beneath an azure sky spotted with creamy clouds.

America's new saint was a widowed socialite who converted to Catholicism at age 31 and overcame social ostracism and near-poverty to found the Sisters of Charity in 1809 and pioneer the U.S. parochial school system.

"This most beautiful figure of a holy woman presents to the world and to history the affirmation of new and authentic riches that are your Americans: that religious spirituality which your temporal prosperity seemed to obscure and almost make impossible," the Pope said.
