V-ballers face W-S, St. Aug. in opener

North Carolina's women's volleyball team kicks off the 1975 season here today against St. Augustine and Winston-Salem State. The tri-match begins at 6 p.m. in the Women's Gymnasium.

The UNC volley ballers met UNC-Greensboro, Louisburg Junior College and Appalachian State Saturday in a scrimmage in Boone. "I was generally pleased with the performance of the team and believe the scrimmage was valuable experience for us," said Head Coach Beth Miller. However, the Tar Heels did lose the services of junior Jo Ralston with a sprained ankle. Ralston is expected to be out for the next two weeks.

plays the other two teams in single matches. There is no individual winner of a tri-match. A team's record is based on the results of individual matches. To win a match, a team must win two out of three games.

The women will face N.C. State's new volleyball team Thursday in a scrimmage here. The scrimmage is set for 4 p.m. The teams also meet in a regular season match October 14 in Winston-Salem.

The most difficult test of the young season will be Tuesday, September 30, when UNC takes on Duke in Durham. Along with the Tar Heels and UNC-G the Blue Devils are expected to field one of the top teams in the state.

Perhaps Maryland sophomore quarterback Larry Dick couldn't leave the high school cheesecake behind last Saturday when the Terps played the Heels in Kenan Stadium.

Maybe guarterbacks and cheerleaders nave always been meant for one another. But Maryland Head Coach Jerry Claiborne thought differently when he told Dick that this was a football game, not the Junior-Senior.

Andrews personifies UNC country lickin

UNC Head Coach Bill Dooley called it, "an old fashioned country lickin'," and center specialist Deke Andrews looked like the poor tired farm hand who suffered the lashes.

Red-faced and red-eyed, he sat on a desk edge in the Kenan Stadium fieldhouse, immediately following the 34-7 thrashing UNC took from conference rival, Maryland. His thin, shortcropped hair and facial color suggested a rural ruffian who had unintentionally caused family troubles.

Simply, like the innocent-feeling farm boy, he couldn't figure what had gone wrong7it seemed every time he looked at the ground during the game, there was a flag nearby. And it wasn't a red bandana, but the officials' gold hip pocket handkerchief-the penalty flag. The Tar Heels hauled in a bumper crop of them-13 for 95 yards. And all but two of them were for illegal procedure. Andrews knew most of them stemmed from his center snaps to punter Johnny Elam, who since the Tar Heels had a weak offensive day, got a tremendous amount of toe time-eight opportunities.

The officials attributed the illegal procedures to the way the senior snapper moved the ball toward the Maryland defense before flipping it back between his legs to Elam. He held the ball slightly before snapping, said assistant UNC coach Sandy Kinney. The rule says the action must be continuous.

"The funny thing is," said Andrews, "is this is the way I've been doing it for four years. (Today) the ones they didn't call I did the same way."

His teammates didn't give him any subtle official made the call on Andrews. Dooley in or overt pressure, Andrews said, adding with his first grin of the interview, "Oh, yea, I just wanted to get as much playing time as I could. Maybe next week we'll go for it (instead of punting) on fourth down."

about it. I don't think I'm suddenly committing errors."

William and Mary, a Southern Conference

his post-game interview after Maryland said the Terp coaches pointed out Andrews's snap to the officials.

Leaving Kenan fieldhouse, Andrewswho isn't being victimized by a new rule, who Seriously, Andrews said, "I didn't feel bad has been centering punts since his senior year in high school, and who like the farm boy doesn't really know what he did to deserve In the first game of the season with such trouble-only said, "I'll just have to work on it."
