

Trustees okay site for building

by Sam Fulwood
Staff Writer

The University of North Carolina Board of Trustees has approved the site and preliminary design for a continuing education building, but construction will not begin until funds are raised by the University. William Little, vice-chancellor for development and public affairs, said recently.

The proposed continuing education building would house extension division services such as the evening college, correspondence instruction, adult education courses and specialized education for non-students.

The 1972 General Assembly authorized the University to construct the continuing education building but did not appropriate any funds for construction, Little said. The 1972 legislature also limited the University's construction costs for the building to $4.5 million.

During the last session, the legislature increased the cost limit to $7.5 million to allow for inflation and the construction of a parking facility, Little said.

The preliminary building design, approved by the trustees earlier this month, provides for seven floors and 100,000 square feet, University Director of Facilities and Planning Gordon Rutherford said.

According to the design, the building will contain an auditorium, meeting rooms and offices for the extension division and the health sciences continuing education program.

The top floor of the building will contain alumni association offices.

The proposed building would be located between the Carolina Inn and Whitehead Dorm on University property. The Carolina Inn Apartments, which now occupy the site, would have to be demolished to make room for the building.

Vice-Chancellor for Business and Finance Claiborne Jones said the proposed site would present no problems for the building, since the University owns the apartments and the alumni association (one of the University departments) to be relocated in the new building) now has its offices in the Carolina Inn apartments.

Carolina Inn manager A. Carl Moser declined to comment on the possible destruction of the apartments or the construction of the continuing education building. He said that because the plans were so far in the future and no money was available, it is unnecessary for him to make any comments now.

Although construction will not begin until funds are raised, Jones refused to say where the money will come from.

Clarence Whitefield, director of alumni affairs, called the building "a dream, not a reality."

Chamblee announces candidacy for mayor

Carrboro alderman and mayor pro tem Fred Chamblee announced Tuesday he is a candidate for mayor in the Nov. 3 Carrboro election.

"I have both a business and professional background, as well as experience working with a wide variety of community organizations," Chamblee, a Carrboro druggist, said.

He said his leadership qualifications have been enhanced by his association with other governmental entities and his four and a half years on the Board of Aldermen.

"As an alderman, I have been open to ideas from all segments of the community," Chamblee, 35, said. "My record proves it, and, as mayor, I would continue this policy of openness."

Chamblee said, if elected, he would work with the board to improve and upgrade the town's various services. "There are many needs the board should study in the area of planning and growth and development, particularly what type of development we want," he said.

Carrboro needs some form of bus service, Chamblee said, adding that the only alternative now is to combine with the Chapel Hill system. A transportation authority encompassing the county is a possibility for the future, he said.

He also supports the street improvement program. "That is top priority, because such improvements are essential for a new bus system," he said.

Chamblee said he hopes Carrboro will go ahead with plans for neighborhood and community parks rather than sponsor team recreation such as Little League baseball.

Chamblee, a 1962 graduate of the UNC School of Pharmacy, has served on Carrboro's Board of Aldermen since 1971, when he was first elected mayor pro tem. Chamblee is also chairperson of the Law and Finance Committee and a member of the Public Works Committee.

Chamblee is the second candidate to announce in the Carrboro mayor's race. Ruth West entered the race earlier last week, endorsed by the Carrboro Community Coalition. Mayor Robert Wells has announced he is not seeking reelection.

the Chapel Hill boards of aldermen must all agree on the final plan before the towns implement it.

Besides the thoroughfare, further fraternity and sorority construction also will disturb the historic neighborhood's atmosphere, Preston said.

"We feel like the area — the part east of Hillsborough (Street) — is primarily, and has been during history, a residential, one-family (dwelling) neighborhood," she said.

An old building on Rosemary Street should be converted to a fraternity or sorority house only as a last resort to save the structure, she said. Although some fraternities and sororities maintain their houses well, she said, a private owner takes more pride in a house.

Once a house is enlarged for a fraternity or a sorority, reusing it as a single-family residence is difficult, Preston said.

Foushee said the historical society has taken no official stand on rezoning, but he said each fraternity or sorority special use permit application should be considered separately.

The planned DU expansion will not harm Rosemary's historic atmosphere, and the Kappa Delta sorority addition will enhance the street, he said.

Both Preston and Foushee said their groups were not trying to prevent construction, but to make the structures blend with existing structures.

Defense bill approved, CIA funds still hidden

WASHINGTON—The House approved Thursday a $112 billion defense spending bill which would continue to hide the CIA's budget.

The bill was nearly $9 billion less than what the administration had asked for the 15-month period starting this past July 1 and ending Sept. 30, 1976. The 353-61 House vote sent the bill to the Senate, where passage is expected.

Wednesday, the House ended three days of debate by voting 267-147 to reject requiring disclosure of how much of the defense budget goes to the CIA.

After hearing they could see the figure if they agreed not to make it public, many House members said that was good enough, and public disclosure could harm the United States.

The CIA's basic budget was said to be concealed in a $2 billion item for Air Force procurement. More revenues are scattered throughout the budget and exactly how much the intelligence agency spends is not certain.

guidelines for testimony from middle level department officials.

Meanwhile on the other side of the Capitol, Senate intelligence committee chairperson Frank Church accused the government Thursday of turning supposedly private tax returns "into instruments of harassment used against citizens for political reasons."

But Internal Revenue Commissioner Donald C. Alexander replied that he has abolished most IRS abuses since he took over in 1973, and is trying to do away with the rest.

More charges brought against Hearst, HARRISES

LOS ANGELES—Patricia Hearst and William and Emily Harris were indicted by a grand jury Thursday on 11 counts each of kidnapping, assault with a deadly weapon and robbery, carrying a maximum possible penalty of life in prison.

The indictments Thursday grew out of an incident in May, 1974, in which the trio allegedly sprayed a Los Angeles sporting goods store with automatic weapon gunfire after the HARRISES were caught shoplifting.

In the next 24 hours, the three Symbionese Liberation Army members allegedly stole four automobiles and abducted two of the owners, who were later released unharmed.

Superior Court Judge William L. Ritzi ordered that the HARRISES appear Friday morning for arraignment.

Deputy District Attorney Samuel Mayerson informed the court that Miss Hearst would not be present because of the San Francisco proceedings.

Authorities there said Thursday that an automobile link between Miss Hearst and a Sacramento robbery-murder could bring death penalty charges against her.

The heiress rented a Sacramento garage where a getaway car was kept prior to the armed robbery of a bank last April 21 in which a mother of four was killed.

House committee to subpoena Kissinger

WASHINGTON—The House intelligence committee voted 9-2 Thursday to subpoena Secretary of State Henry Kissinger for a memorandum critical of the intelligence apparatus and its forecasting during the 1974 Cyprus crisis.

The memo, written by Thomas D. Boyatt, department desk officer for Cyprus at the time, was alluded to this week in public testimony in the committee investigating failures in intelligence forecasting.

Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., chairman of the House committee, told reporters of the committee action:

"The vote on issuance of this subpoena was approved 9 to 2," he said, adding that "very serious disagreement" continues between his panel and the State Department over Kissinger's restrictive
