

After a period of warm weather which made a walk through the arboretum or just sitting under one of the many inviting trees on campus an aesthetically pleasing experience, the rain finally came yesterday. With a 20 per cent chance of showers today, however, those umbrellas will probably not be needed. But if you look up in the sky, it will more than likely be partly cloudy.

Anemia drive collects $116

The Groove Phi Groove Fellowship Inc. collected $116.80 Tuesday in the Pit to help fight sickle cell anemia and plan a similar collection for Friday on Franklin Street.

Donnie Smith, vice-president of Groove Phi Groove, said the $116.80 collected outside the Student Union from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. will go to the Sickle Cell Anemia Foundation in Raleigh.

Smith termed the collection a success and said another collection will be held from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday on Franklin Street.

Sickle cell anemia is a hereditary blood disease more commonly found in blacks. In sickle cell anemia, the oxygen-carrying red blood cells change from their normal disc shape into an elongated sickle shape.

These elongated cells block blood vessels and are broken down more easily than regular cells, leaving their victims highly susceptible to disease.

Groove Phi Groove is a campus organization committed to community projects, Smith said.

Morgan, Shugart announce in District VIII recall election

by Nancy Mattox
Staff Writer

Janet Morgan of Cobb and Steve Shugart of Graham announced as candidates Tuesday in the Campus Governing Council District VIII recall election to be held Oct. 15.

Morgan, a sophomore hygiene major from Burlington, appeared at candidates' meeting Tuesday night in Graham and Everett dormitories to answer residents' questions concerning representation.

Also present at the meetings were incumbent Dan Besse, who was recalled by his district last week because of alleged misrepresentation, Stacy candidate Bill Lone and recently announced candidate Kenneth Lewis of Graham.

In a prepared statement released Wednesday, Morgan stated, "I believe that if I am the representative of a district, it is my moral duty to (1) educate my constituents on the issues, and (2) truly represent the feelings of my district."

Morgan said Tuesday night she decided to run because she believed Cobb dormitory, which comprises roughly 50 per cent of the district population, should be represented.

She said she would follow the opinions of her constituents and would not consider abstention even if the residents believed differently than her.

If elected, Morgan's interests would lie in areas of Lower Quad security, housing sign-up, and improving parking lots near Cobb and Lower Quad. At a candidates meeting in Everett dorm Tuesday Morgan said she would "try to be as politically innovative and creative as Dan (Besse) and try to better him in representation."

Steve Shugart, a sophomore psychology major from Greenville who ran against Besse in last spring's election, said he is running because he wants to get involved.

Shugart said he thinks his district could be better represented by a communications system between the representative and his constituents. His first concern, he said, would be "to educate the constituents."

On the issue of representation itself, Shugart said, "I'd have to vote for what the people wanted even if I didn't think it would be best."

Guillermo Penalosa, an outspoken opponent of Besse, said at Tuesday's meeting that those favoring Besse's recall thought they had already gained a victory in bringing about an election. "The major result in all this," he said, "is that there is finally a consciousness of CGC around the district."

Bullard refuses to sign

Interim Co-Student Body Treasurer Graham Bullard said Wednesday he refuses to sign any requisitions because he doubted the credibility of the Student Supreme Court order which authorized him to do so.

Chief Justice Darrell Hancock issued an order Tuesday naming Bullard and Student Activities Fund Office Director Frances Sparrow as interim co-treasurers.

The order was technically an addition to a restraining order prohibiting Student Body President Bill Bates and the Campus Governing Council from taking any action toward approving a new treasurer while the court heard a case involving the dismissal of the former treasurer, Mike O'Neal.

Bullard said he does not think Hancock had any sound legal basis to designate him acting treasurer.

The Student Government Constitution states that the president shall appoint the treasurer with the two-thirds approval of CGC but does not provide a line of succession if the office becomes vacant.

Until Hancock's order, there had legally been no treasurer since Sept. 30 when Student Body President Bill Bates fired O'Neal. O'Neal has since challenged Bates' authority to fire him, and has asked to be reinstated.

Hancock could not cite a specific law which justifies his appointment of an acting treasurer, but he said it seemed logical that when the treasurer's office was vacant, the assistant would take over.

Bullard had been serving as assistant treasurer under O'Neal, and Bates had nominated him to replace O'Neal. However, the CGC Administration Committee tabled the nomination pending clarification of O'Neal's status.
