

Antenna lease may be approved

Construction sought by campus FM station

by Nancy Gooch
Staff Writer

A lease allowing construction of an antenna on the South Campus water tower for a proposed campus FM radio station may be approved by the University Property Division in less than two weeks, WCAR Station Manager Jim Bond said recently.

The lease must be obtained before the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) will grant an FM construction permit for a non-commercial station.

The proposal for the lease is currently being reviewed by University property officials, Robert Williams, legal adviser for the University Property Office, said last week.

If the lease is approved, a 50-page supplement to the station's construction permit application explaining the terms of the lease will be sent to the FCC, Bond said.

The supplement will also answer other questions posed by the FCC about the application submitted by the station's organizers, the Student Educational Broadcasting Corporation.

After the supplement has been submitted, the FCC requires a 30-day waiting period, but Bond believes the permit application will be approved soon.

"The station's lawyer has been very encouraging," Bond said. "He said an approval of this kind of thing has been automatic (in the past)."

In addition to the required antenna lease, an FCC attorney said Sept. 30 the corporation's permit application should include evidence that Student Government will finance the station or that campus facilities will be available for the station's broadcast office before the permit would be approved.

The questions are answered in the supplement even though Student Educational Broadcasting has not been formally notified of them by the FCC, Bond said. "This is the last obstacle in completing the application process," he said.

FCC regulations call for the antenna to be placed approximately 250 feet above ground level, Bond said. As a result, possible antenna locations are narrowed to the water tower and Memorial Hospital's preclinical building, he said.

The water tower site was selected over the hospital site because the antenna could interfere with communications equipment on the hospital roof, Bond said.

Plans for the student FM station began in September 1973 when Student Government funds for the station were appropriated by a student referendum.

A construction permit for the station was obtained from the FCC in February 1974. But the permit was rescinded 27 days later when UNC officials retracted letters written by Dean of Student Affairs Donald Boulton accepting ultimate responsibility for the station.

Student organizations which obtain construction permits are required by the FCC to have university support. But UNC administrators, in rescinding their support, contended that the University would have to assume control of the station if it assumed ultimate responsibility.

Student Educational Broadcasting, composed of Media Board members and local civic leaders, was then formed since an FCC provision allows non-profit corporations to be granted non-commercial educational frequencies. The current application was submitted in May 1974.

Students can't cancel contracts without withdrawing from school

A number of students have tried to cancel their housing contracts without officially withdrawing from the University although such action is illegal under the contract, housing department contracts assistant Peggy Gibbs said Thursday.

A student may cancel the second half of his room contract upon withdrawal from the University anytime during the fall semester, Gibbs explained. The student would only forfeit the first semester's rent and the $50 room deposit paid at sign-up.

But a student who tries to cancel his contract for any other reason, without withdrawing from the University, such as to move off-campus, violates the contract.

"A resident can't come in on the last day of the semester and cancel his contract unless he is withdrawing from the University," Gibbs said.

"He can sell it or move out and pay the rest of the room rent, but he can't get out of the contract," she said.

AGADIR, Morocco—Moroccan King Hassan II called off the march of conquest into Spanish Sahara by 200,000 unarmed civilians Sunday and ordered them to evacuate the territory.

In a dramatic reversal of his previous defiance of warnings that Spanish forces might open fire on the marchers, Hassan said he was leaving his march headquarters here and returning to Marrakesh in southern Morocco.

"The 'green march' has accomplished its objectives," the 46-year-old monarch said in a nation-wide radio-television speech.

Even as Hassan spoke, thousands of new volunteers poured across the border into the mineral-rich territory, swelling the number of marchers there to well over 200,000.

The Moroccans, who began crossing the frontier last Thursday in defiance of U.N. Security Council resolutions, have been massed a few miles south of the frontier along the first "dissuasion" line of Spanish troops behind broad mine fields.

Ford explains recent shakeup

WASHINGTON—President Ford said Sunday he fired James Schlesinger partly because of the defense secretary's "growing tension" with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, declaring "I needed to have a comfortable feeling" within his national security-defense team.

Previously, Ford has called it "the simple truth" that he fired Schlesinger and CIA Director William E. Colby because he wanted to assemble "my own team."

But his remarks Sunday indicated that both policy and personality differences at the highest levels of his defense team dictated the sudden, surprise administration shake-up.

Meanwhile, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, Sunday called George Bush a poor choice to head the CIA but wasn't sure if he will oppose the nomination.

Church, chairman of the Senate committee investigating the CIA, said the agency should not be headed by a politician.

Time and Newsweek magazines also said President Ford offered the NATO ambassadorship to CIA Director William Colby and Defense Secretary James Schlesinger upon informing them of their dismissal but both men turned it down.

According to Time, Ford offered the NATO job to both men. It said NATO was offered to Schlesinger as an alternative to heading the Export-Import Bank. Newsweek said only that Schlesinger had been offered the Ex-Im position.

"At Du Pont a Mechanical Engineer can look forward to all the opportunities he can handle."

—Al Dobbins

Al Dobbins is a BSME from Michigan. Four years ago he joined Du Pont's Textile Fibers Department. A year later Al became a First Line Supervisor in our Kevlar® Aramid Fibers operation, and now he's a Process Engineer working on engineering development problems connected with Teflon® fluorocarbon fiber.

Al's story is typical of Mechanical, Chemical, Electrical, and Civil Engineers who choose careers at Du Pont. We place no limits on the progress any engineer can make, regardless of his or her specific degree. And, we place no limits on the contributions he can make—to himself, to the Company, and to the society in which we all live.

So, if it's advancement opportunities you're after, and if you'd like to work for a company that won't place limits on your progress, do what Al Dobbins did. Talk with your Du Pont Representative when he visits your campus. Or, write direct to Du Pont Company, Room 24798, Wilmington, DE 19898.

At Du Pont...there's a world of things you can do something about.
