

Black Arts Festival

by Teddy Goldman
Staff Writer

The fifth annual Black Arts Cultural Festival is being held this week to promote black culture, Leroy Bynum, BSM cultural coordinator, announced Monday.

The festival began Sunday with a recital by Martha Flowers, a member of the UNC school of music, and a concert by the BSM Gospel Choir. Flowers recently completed a tour of major world cities playing the role of Bess in George Gershwin's opera Porgy and Bess.

The Ebony Readers and Lance Jeffers, an English professor at N.C. State University and the author of two books of poetry, gave a public reading of some of his works Monday.

Bynum explained that many Black Arts Cultural Festivals only emphasize pop music, poetry and dance, but there are other aspects of black culture.

Today through Sunday an art exhibit by Clarence Mayo, manager of the Union Snack Bar, will be held in the North Gallery. All events are free unless otherwise indicated.

Other events in the festival, which ends Sunday, are:

- The BSM Opeyo Dancers will present a recital at 8 p.m. April 7 in Memorial Hall.

- Jayne Cortez, New York poet and author of Celebrations and Solitudes, will give a reading of her poetry Thursday, April 8, at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

- Donald Bogel, movie critic and author of Tom's Coons, Mulattoes, Mammies and Bucks, will speak on "An Interpretive History of Blacks in American Films" at 8 p.m. Friday, April 9, in Memorial Hall.

- A BSM picnic will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, April 10, on Ehringhaus field. Admission is 50 cents with a UNC I.D. or $1.00 without.

- An African Cabaret, a combination dance and African fashion show, featuring the group "Bite, Spit and Chew" will be held at 10 p.m. April 10 in Great Hall. Admission is $1.50 single, $2.50 couple.

- "Sounds of Black World," a musical drama produced by a semi-professional North Carolina group, will be presented at 8 p.m. Sunday, April 11, in Memorial Hall.

Boston busing riots continue

BOSTON (UPI)—A black man was beaten outside Boston City Hall, another was spat upon and others taunted with obscenities during a violent anti-school busing demonstration by white students and parents.

"I was just walking along and I get beat up. This is insane," said Ted Landsmark, 29, executive director of the Boston Contractor's Association, who was attacked while on his way to attend a city hall meeting. "We got ourselves a nigger," yelled several demonstrators, who were boycotting classes, as Landsmark was attacked. Police made no arrests.

Blood gushed from his nose and from gashes on his face where he was pummeled and struck with a wooden standard bearing an American flag. His white shirt and tan suit were splattered with blood.

Landsmark, who had been on his way to discuss with city officials affirmative action programs within the construction trades, was treated at Massachusetts General Hospital and released.

"To say the least, I resent being beat up. The people I represent in this city pay taxes here, too," Landsmark said. The demonstrators had just left an anti-busing rally inside city council chambers and were on their way to picket outside the courtroom of U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr., who ordered the city's schools desegregated.

Calley's final appeal denied

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former Army Lt. William L. Calley Jr., convicted of killing 22 Vietnamese civilians during the 1968 My Lai massacre, lost a final effort to clear his name Monday when the Supreme Court refused to hear his appeal.

Although seven years of a 10-year sentence remain pending against him, the Army has said it will parole Calley, and a spokesman said Monday this will be done once the Supreme Court order is implemented.

Calley, who is scheduled to make a speech in Spokane, Wash., Wednesday, was not immediately available for comment. He has been free under bond while awaiting the high court's decision.

But one of his attorneys, Kenneth M. Henson of Columbus, Ga., expressing disappointment, said: "We have no immediate plans for any other action... I think that effectively that is the final word, and I think that it exhausts the legal remedies at this time."

House approves flu inoculation

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House voted Monday overwhelmingly to provide $135 million for a crash program of inoculating all Americans against swine influenza by autumn.

President Ford sought the money after the U.S. Public Health Service warned him of the potential reappearance of swine flu which killed some 548,000 Americans in 1918 and 1919—then known as "Spanish flu."

Rabbits, Sciroccos recalled

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Environmental Protection Agency announced Monday the recall of 138,000 Volkswagen Rabbits and Sciroccos which it said may have problems with exhaust control devices.

Involved are 1975 models and some early 1976 models. EPA said Volkswagen took the action voluntarily and is notifying the affected owners by letter that they may bring the cars into dealers to have repairs made free of charge.
