He looks like Lawrence of Arabia, but he promises belly-dancing and Camels

by Toni Gilbert Staff Writer

In a whirlwind of white sheets, sunglasses and toy machine guns, a caravan of mysterious persons stormed into the office of the Daily Tar Heel Wednesday to announce the write-in candidacy of Yessir "The Sheik" Atsafact for student body president.

Although the Sheik did not hang around the office long enough to make a statement to the press, he did leave a statement of his platform, goals and personal background.

If elected, the Sheik promises:

 mandatory belly-dancing garb for all campus women;

 free gasoline for all UNC students; •a free pack of Camels for the student body (cigarettes or the real thing?);

• the return of the library' "200 year" rock.

Allegedly born April 15, 1956, in Kan-a-Bir, Saudi Arabia, the stranger from the East maintains he is a direct descendent of King Hammunri IV of Ancient Egypt. Heir to the imperial throne, his majesty stated he studied at Cairo University before attending UNC, where he studies international politics.

The Sheik represents the previously unknown Humping Party whose platform is best expressed by its motto: "It ain't the meat; it's the motion."

The party, which identifies itself as a collection of students, malcontents, hell-raisers and degenerates, seeks to raise the level of awareness of student government. It also calls for all students to join in its efforts to restore confidence in Student Government's ability to meet the issues head on. Which issues it plans to confront, the party does not state.

'Roots' most watched ever

NEW YORK (UPI)-The final episode of "Roots" was the most watched television program of all time, according to statistics released today by the A.C. Nielson Co.

The two-hour "Roots" chapter broadcast by ABC Jan. 30, displaced the first half of "Gone With The Wind" in the number one spot. The seven installments of the televised version of Alex Haley's bestseller that were broadcast during the week ending Jan. 30 also took the first seven spots in the Nielson's rating of the week's network programs.

The opening episode of "Roots" had captured first place the preceding week.

ABC Research estimated that 130 million persons watched all or part of "Roots" during its eight-segment, 12-hours of broadcast time. That means that 85 per cent of all homes owning television sets tuned into at least part of the program.

by Karen Millers Staff Writer

The Association for Women Students (AWS) has endorsed Bill Moss for student body president and Greg Porter for Daily Tar Heel editor in the spring elections Feb. 9.

AWS members voted on the endorsement Jan. 25, after hearing the platforms of all announced candidates at that time. AWS chairperson Sallie Shuping said the candidates who announced later and Hugh Halsey, who had announced but could not be reached before the meeting.

"The endorsement was still secure," she said.

Shuping said the vote for both offices was close, with margins of only two or three votes.

"Part of Bill's main platform had something that pertained directly to the women students," she said. "That was positions in response to questions. transportation." She explained that safety for women had been a major concern of AWS throughout the year.

Shuping said Moss' policy for open committees also appealed to the AWS members. She said Student Government (SG) seldom goes to campus organizations for resource people as Moss proposes to do. "They (SG) shouldn't use them because they are involved," Shuping said.

She said Moss seemed to have included items of concern to women in his original

Carter signs natural gas bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)-Congress gave to a conference committee late Tuesday overwhelming approval Wednesday to an emergency natural gas bill, and hours later President Carter signed it.

An hour before beginning his fireside chat, Carter signed the Emergency Natural Gas Act into law, telling congressional leaders who gathered in the Oval Office to watch the ceremony, "There is not so much a shortage of natural gas as an inability to divert it to where it's needed."

Carter told the assemblage of congressmen, reporters and his wife, Rosalynn, "A president signs 25-hundred bills, and this is my first one."

He said the bill would provide "some reassurance to the American people that it (the bill) would put natural gas where it's needed."

Its congressional sponsors said enactment meant at best "a little gas" for homes and other high priority locations.

The Senate passed the bill Monday, essentially as Carter suggested a week ago. On Tuesday, the House approved a differing version, which limited prices for emergency

When the Senate would not go along with that change, the two houses sent the dispute evening. Within 10 minutes, the conferees had compromised, removing price limits but specifying that the President could control the price and that emergency sales would not mean renegotiation of existing contracts.

The House approved the bill 336 to 82, a few hours after the Senate gave it voice-vote approval with but one dissent.

That "no" came from Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., who said, "I thought they were moving too fast."

The bill would:

· Let interstate pipeline companies buy emergency gas until August for their critical needs from whatever supplier has it available, at prices beyond federal limits. Carter will oversee each deal and control the price if he thinks that is necessary.

· Permit the President to order an interstate pipeline to share gas with another that needs it more, with the highest priority users in mind, such as homes, hospitals and small businesses, and where the gas is needed to prevent harm to property. This authority would end in April, the end of the "heating season."
