Players seek dramatic dogs for new show

The Playmakers Repertory Company (PRC) is seeking dogs with dramatic talent to appear in their production of George F. Kaufman and Moss Hart's play Once In A Lifetime.

The auditions will be held at noon today on the green in front of Graham Memorial Building.

The Playmakers want a set of matched dogs to make a cameo appearance in the play, according to Michael Dixon, a PRC member. "The dogs should have a feeling for the 1930s art deco period," Dixon said.

"We would prefer dogs that are stage-trained—theatre broken—though stage experience is not necessary," he said. "The dogs should walk with a flair and have personality. The bigger the dog the better—Russian wolfhounds would be ideal. We will consider cats that look like dogs."

Dogs wishing to audition for the part will be required to sit and walk. Denise Ford will cast the parts.

Runners-up and understudies will receive prizes. Dogs should have no commitments during the run of the play, April 19-23 and 26-30.

—CHIP HIGHSMITH

Two of these campus dogs just might land a role in the Playmaker Repertory Company's production, "Once in a Lifetime." Auditions are at noon. Dogs who walk with a swagger and have a feel for the 1930s art deco period are preferred.

Brown to participate in colloquium

L. Dean Brown, U.S. negotiator in the 1976 Lebanese conflict, will speak at 8 p.m. today in 100 Hamilton Hall on "Middle East: 1977."

Brown's speech is part of the 1977 International Affairs Colloquium.

Brown was ambassador to Senegal and Gambia from 1967 until 1970, when he became ambassador to Jordan. Brown returned to Washington in 1973 to become a deputy undersecretary of state.

In 1975 Brown retired from the Foreign Service to become president of the Middle East Institute. In April and May 1975 he served President Ford as director of the Interagency Task Force for Indochina, which was in charge of evacuating Americans and Vietnamese from Saigon and settling Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees in the United States.

Brown was a special presidential envoy to Lebanon in April and May 1976. Recently he made a series of trips to various Middle Eastern countries at the invitation of Egyptian, Iranian and Jordanian governments.

Carter, Soviet ambassador meet

news briefs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Carter and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin had a "constructive and useful discussion" of strategic arms limitation Tuesday while touching briefly on American seizure of Soviet fishing vessels, the White House reported.

A smiling Dobrynin, leaving the Oval Office after 40 minutes with Carter, said it was "a good meeting."

Responding to a question, he said he did not bring a message from Soviet leader

Leonid I. Brezhnev.

"There was a constructive and useful discussion of U.S.-Soviet relations which included strategic arms 'limitations,' said Jerry Schechter, a White House press aide. 'They also discussed briefly the question of Soviet fishing violations inside the 200-mile limit.'"

Best liquor is made from horse feed

The Snipe is part of a diminishing breed of old moonshiners. He isn't old; his customs are, handed down through the generations, dating back to the Scotch-Irish Ulsterman who settled the Catawba River valley in the mid 1700s. Over the past century, especially since the days of national and statewide prohibition, good corn liquor, made from corn malt in all-copper stills, has become harder to find. Families that used to make a living from it quit because their reputations in church and community were at stake.

The old art of "blockading" whiskey (manufacturing), which you drank yourself and sold to friends, had grown into large-scale "bootlegging" operations (manufacturing and selling), run by the so-called "moonshine mafia." To meet increased demands in cities as far away as Atlanta and New Orleans, and to avoid the law, these young "bootleggers" moved their operations underground and switched from corn to sugar, which ferments faster. There no longer was a large profit in the moonshine business, especially since store-bought liquor was cheaper.

When state-operated ABC stores opened in Catawba County in 1949, almost all large- and small-scale operations halted. The results are easy to see. In that year alone, ABC stores in the county grossed the ninth-largest sales of the 31 cities and counties that had voted to have stores under the regulations of the Liquor Control Act of 1937. The figure was about $1.4 million, and it has risen steadily to a present mark of almost $5 million, No. 8 out of 119 cities and counties.

For the record, Orange County, which has, as we know, a different kind of drinking reputation, wasn't too far behind with almost $3.3 million sold in 1974.

But moonshine is being made today by people who consider it an enjoyable hobby, like the Snipe, and by people who make it on a larger scale to ship to ghettos. Either way, in most cases 75 per cent of the stuff is cut with water, cut with Clorox, fake, condensed through radiators, contains lead salts and is downright poisonous.

Wednesday, April 6 a distilling outfit was raided and destroyed in Burke County by federal agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms of the U.S. Treasury Department. The two stills were described as made of metal, not copper, and the outfit included a radiator condenser. The liquor that ran from it probably contained invisible lead salts and bits of rust.

The Snipe, though, was quick to point out that not all radiators have lead-solder seams and lead-solder repairs, which are dissolved by acetic acid in the distilling process.

"A 1952, say, a 1950, 1952 Lincoln radiator will bring a top price man because it's all copper, and they're just as good as any copper work you'd ever want to make. But the thing is, what they do is get these modern ones, and they got all that lead and everything in them—lead and zinc—and that's, that's what'll get you."

"That's why it's dangerous now. Really, in all

Roberts files appeal

GREENSBORO (UPI)—Bobby Roberts, a Durham developer convicted with four other persons of misapplying savings and loan association funds, has given notice of appeal.

The U.S. District Court clerk's office received notice Monday of Roberts' intention to appeal to the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Even the best and safest homemade liquor nowadays, if you're lucky enough to find any, is made from fermented horse feed. Corn malt takes too long and sugar is too expensive. The Snipe said he uses wheat bran and shorts. He "mashes in" (about once a week, and runs off 12 to 15 cases (six gallons to the case), selling it at $50 a case or $12 a gallon. With the cost of running off a case being around $30, at most, he makes $300 a week making liquor.

From what I was told, the Snipe makes good stuff from an all-copper unit, but I've learned that you can't trust a man by his word alone. Yeh, I had me a little taste, and in good faith, you understand. I mean you just don't go talk to a blockader without sampling his goods. That would be poor manners. It was good; it woke me up on a Sunday morning. But I didn't buy any. You see, he's the Snipe, and I never saw him, nor what I was drinking.
