

Fall course registration ends Friday

Friday afternoon, crowds of people were lining up in the last-minute rush to get their income taxes in on time.

This Friday, many UNC students may find themselves in a similar line waiting to turn in their preregistration forms for the fall semester.

Officials at the records and registration office are urging students to avoid long lines by not waiting until the last minute.

Ben E. Perry, assistant director of registrations, said that during registration for spring semester, "a lot of people waited until the last day and created a line that really wasn't necessary."

Perry urged students to get their preregistration forms for next fall in early this week.

The green preregistration forms, along with the pink slips required for admission to some courses, must be turned in by Friday.

The forms can be turned in at the records and registration office in 01 Hanes Hall between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Although it's a sunny spring day this student staring out of a window in Bingham Hall at people in the undergraduate library seems to have premonition of all-nighters and exams soon to descend on the campus. Staff photo by Bill Russ.

Another robbery plagues UNC crew club

More crucial equipment was stolen from the UNC Crew Club's boathouse at University Lake Sunday night, five weeks after a similar theft.

According to Crew Club president Paul McDonald, 20 items called "buttons," which are used to hold the oars in place while rowing, and six oarlocks were stolen.

Half of the buttons and four of the oarlocks were the equipment of Duke University's crew club, which also shelters its boats at University Lake. The Campus Police are investigating the theft.

On March 15, 17 sliding seats for the crew shells were stolen from the boathouse, which is enclosed only on three sides. The seats, worth approximately $50 each, have not been recovered.

"We remain relatively vulnerable," McDonald said. "It would be impractical to take everything home every night."

"This continues to be a bizarre case to us. We think it's the same person (responsible for both thefts), but we can't figure out who would make the effort. They've just taken things which are important to rowing and have no other purpose. Their sole purpose is to impede us from rowing."

McDonald said other items, such as tools, which might have value aside from crew, were not taken.

"I can't think of anyone who harbors any ill will against the Crew Club. But this person knows exactly what he's doing."

The Crew Club expects to participate as scheduled in the Southern Intercollegiate Rowing Association championships this weekend in Atlanta. McDonald said the buttons and oarlocks will be replaced for the regatta with parts from worn-out equipment the Crew Club owns. The replacement cost of the stolen items will be $80 to $90.

Pollution standards delay asked

Coffee crop shortage

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI)—One of the worst droughts in 30 years has cut the midyear coffee crop by 20 per cent in Colombia, the world's second largest producer of coffee.

Gilberto Arango Londono, president of the National Coffee Exporters Association, said the prolonged dry spell would "cause serious damage to the quality and volume of the midyear crop." He would not estimate how much effect the drought would have on skyrocketing world coffee prices.

"It is difficult to calculate the magnitude of the damage, but many experts agree to an estimated 20 per cent drop in this midyear crop," Arango Londono said. Officials had estimated a 3 million-sack midyear coffee harvest.

In addition to drought, Arango Londono said, up to 10 per cent of Colombia's annual crop has been diverted in illegal exports intended to avoid taxes. A new government program has cut contraband shipments nearly one-third, he said.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Carter administration asked for delays Monday in some pollution standards for autos, but an official said a new tax may be proposed to induce reductions in other emissions which aggravate asthma and emphysema.

The proposal to use taxes to make cars more expensive if they fail to meet proposed nitrogen oxide standards was a new element as the administration spelled out its thinking on the antipollution front.

Environmental Protection Administrator Douglas Costle told reporters the recommendations "provide a solid environmental foundation" for the energy policy which President Carter will propose this week.

In asking Congress to give Detroit more time to meet the antipollution timetable enacted in the 1970 Clean Air Act, Costle proposed delays of one year in cutting hydrocarbons, three years on carbon monoxide and five years on nitrogen oxide.

Last year the Ford administration asked for a revision of the 1978 model standards because Detroit said it couldn't meet them. Congress adjourned without acting in this controversial area.

Saturday mail may go

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A federal commission Monday proposed cutting out Saturday mail deliveries to help the Postal Service meet looming operating deficits and urged the government to explore instant mail delivery via satellite and wire.

The Commission on Postal Service also called on Congress to immediately give the Postal Service a $625 million subsidy. Along with $500 million already being considered, this would pay off the current operating deficit.

The seven-member Commission on Postal Service, which Congress set up last year to find answers to long-range financial problems, said there is no way the Postal Service can break even, as Congress envisioned.

In a report to the House Post Office Committee and the White House, the commission proposed Congress appropriate an automatic annual subsidy of 10 per cent of operating costs, at least until 1985.

stagnation," Eric Lerner, director of Physics Research for the Fusion Energy Foundation (FEF), proposed an energy policy directed primarily at the development of fusion energy. Lerner, whose speech was sponsored by the U.S. Labor party, spoke at UNC Thursday night.

"There is no such thing as limits to resources because there are no limits to our technological progress," Lerner said.

Lerner criticized the President's cutbacks in nuclear development. "The only way a policy of progress can be pursued is through a program with its keystone as the development of thermonuclear power in the next 10 to 15 years."

Lerner claims that enough is known about nuclear fusion to justify a $5-to-$6-billion expenditure in the federal budget next year for its development.

The FEF was founded by the U.S. Labor party, and sponsors educational tours and scientific research. It is funded exclusively through the sale of its literature.
