country," Jim Rumfelt said. "Also, there are more miles of rural roads in North Carolina than in any other state."

The best routes generally go Northwest, Southwest and South from Chapel Hill. Avoid the heavily used routes such as N.C. 54, U.S. 15-501 and N.C. 86. These heavy volume highways are extremely unsafe for the cyclist.

By following the rural roads to the Northwest the rider will encounter rolling hills that are not too difficult to climb. The scenery is very good although the roads are a little rough in places. The roads will take the rider to Hillsborough, Cane Creek or the Union Grove area. The best way to leave is on Old 86 from Carrboro.

To the Southwest are many backroads off of Jones Ferry Road that take the rider into the hills of Orange County. These roads are smoother than those to the North. A good route going South is Farrington Rd. It is hilly but Lake Clearwater is only a few miles away and the cyclist can take a cool dip at the end of the ride.

To plan a good bicycling trip it will be helpful to have a good county road map.

It is good to plan the trip so that you ride out into the country and then loop back toward town. An average trip of 15-20 miles should take from two to three and a half hours.

Biking enthusiasts breeze along the road on a hot afternoon.

Before setting out on a trip make sure the bike is in good working order. If you do not know much about the care of bicycles pick up a copy of Wheeling and Dealing (from SCAU) in the Carolina Union. This booklet provides information on laws, repairs and maintenance of bicycles.

When cycling for a long distance take along a water bottle and tire repair kit. Also you may want to wear a helmet for safety. Above all remain alert for cars, potholes and other hazards on the road.

Sessions help unsure students

Students worried about their future may find some consolation at UNC's Career Planning and Placement Center.

The center is offering a series of summer workshops to help UNC students deal with these worries.

The workshops are taught in three parts. The first part, "How Tos of Job Seeking," will be taught on June 14 at 1 p.m. and June 22 at noon. This part will show students how to develop contacts in their prospective fields.

"Letters to hundreds of places are the most inefficient way to find a job," Beth Burris, Associate Director for Instruction and College Teacher Placement said Tuesday.

The second part of workshop consists of writing a resume. These will be held on June 9 at 11 a.m., June 15 at 1 p.m. and June 23 at noon.

The third part of the series will deal with the interview process in finding a job. "The success of an interview depends on the person being interviewed and we want to help with that," Burris said. These will be held June 10 at 11 a.m., June 16 at 1 p.m., and June 24, at noon.

All parts of the workshop will be conducted in 208 Hanes Hall. Other series will also be held in July.
