Key Largo — (John Huston, 1948) Humphrey Bogart, Edward G. Robinson, Lauren Bacall, Claire Trevor and Lionel Barrymore. A storm traps

Gene Wilder rejoices over his monstrous creation (Peter Boyle) in Mel Brooks' Young Frankenstein, the late movie this weekend at the Carolina Theatre. The movie co-stars Madeline Kahn, Marty Feldman and Cloris Leachman.

the good people with the bad people in a small resort hotel on Key Largo, an island off the Florida coast. Based on a play by Maxwell Anderson. Showing Friday at 7 and 9:30 p.m. in the Carroll Hall Auditorium. Free with student ID.

The Fire Within — (Louis Malle, 1964) An alcoholic ex-playboy leaves his Versailles sanitarium and visits old friends in Paris, only to find the same ennui that he had known before. Malle's images of the upper bourgeoisie are precise and haunting. Featuring Jeanne Moreau in a cameo role. Showing Saturday at 7 and 9:30 p.m. in the Carroll II Auditorium. Free with student ID.

Charley's Aunt — (Archie Mayo, 1941) The action is non-stop and the atmosphere is hilarious. Jack Benny impersonates a rich aunt from Brazil ("where the nuts come from") and tries to avoid the advances of two gentlemen who wish to propose. With Kay Francis. Showing Sunday at 7 and 9:30 p.m. in the Carroll Hall Auditorium. Free with student ID.

The Bad Sleep Well — (Akira Kurosawa, 1960) A high-powered thriller set in the corrupt milieu of corporate executives. Toshiro Mifune stars as the man planning vengeance against the scoundrels responsible for his father's death. Kurosawa has long been considered one of the world's top directors. Showing Wednesday at 7 and 9:30 p.m. in the Carroll Hall Auditorium. Free with student ID.
