High-level aides knew of Lance improprieties

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's three top aides knew in January that Bert Lance and his family had written $450,000 in overdrawn checks, but they did not tell Carter, Press Secretary Jody Powell said Monday.

Although Lance had been nominated as budget director at the time and was up for Senate confirmation, none of the three thought the President needed to know of the situation, Powell said.

Powell also said Carter will postpone a news conference, planned for Wednesday, until "as soon as possible" after Lance completes his testimony on Capitol Hill this week.

Lance, under pressure to resign because of the overdrafts and other questionable banking practices, is to testify Thursday before the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee. He attended a two-hour Cabinet meeting at the White House Monday and left by himself afterward.

Powell said he, Hamilton Jordan and White House Counsel Robert Lipshutz saw an FBI report citing $450,000 in overdrafts in 1974 and 1975 by Lance and his in-laws, who founded the Calhoun First National Bank in Georgia where the overdrafts were made.

Of that amount, Powell said, $14,000 to $15,000 was Lance's personal overdrafts.

None of the three aides, Powell said, "felt that that FBI report gave rise to a need for further investigation or bringing it to the attention of the President."

Powell said the three aides got the FBI report soon after it was written Jan. 6, and decided to follow normal procedure and turn it over to the Senate only if it was requested. It was not.

"The judgment we made is, certainly in light of events, open to comment, at least," Powell said, "I certainly wish I had done something, if there was something there to do."

In other developments in the Lance case Monday: Sen. Charles Percy said there was the "appearance of a coverup" in Lance's problems early this year.

Percy, ranking Republican on the Governmental Affairs Committee which voted to confirm Lance in January, said he based his comments on the past three days of testimony on the Lance affair.

"This has the appearance of a coverup," he said, indicating he was referring to officials in the comptroller's office but may broaden the charge later.

The Washington Star quoted Justice Department officials as saying they doubt there will be any criminal prosecution of Lance for his alleged personal use of a bank owned airplane.

White House aide Greg Schneider said several administration insiders think Lance must resign, but are cautious about saying so publicly.

Percy's comments came after Robert Bloom, the deputy comptroller of currency, testified he took his own government career into account in recommending that Lance be confirmed as budget director.

"It was only human on my part to worry about my future," Bloom said, "I happen to be a man who depends on his government job for a living. It's a little easier for a person of independent means to be more heroic in that regard."

Bloom, who was acting comptroller when Lance was nominated, shouted at times as senators accused him of failure to do his job.

Percy charged him with "camouflaging" and "covering up."

And Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., committee chairperson said, "If we had had this information, we would not have recommended his confirmation."

But Bloom said the committee failed to seek all the available information on Lance. He said a letter he sent Ribicoff in January "contained significant red flags" that should have led him to seek information which could not be made public.

Bloom said although he learned of big overdrafts in Lance's bank account prior to the Senate confirmation hearings in January, he did not think it proper to volunteer the information at a public hearing.

He said he provided information on the bank overdrafts to the Carter transition team and the FBI and the facts were known by so many people in government that "I thought the committee already knew about it and the statute requires such proceedings not be placed in public records."

'Roots' leads Emmy winners as ABC dominates awards

PASADENA, CALIF. (UPI) — Roots, the powerful story of African slaves brought to America, captured six major awards in the 29th annual Emmy presentations Sunday night but failed to sweep the boards as expected.

Winner of 37 nominations, the eight-part television series based on Alex Haley's best seller, shared honors with Eleanor and Franklin: The White House Years and Sybil, which tied for outstanding special program of 1976-77.

Roots won the Emmy for best limited series of the year while Upstairs, Downstairs was honored as the outstanding dramatic series. The Mary Tyler Moore Show, which leaves the air this season after seven years, won the award for best comedy series.

Individual honors for best single acting performances went to Louis Gossett Jr. for Roots and Beulah Bondi for The Waltons.

Winning performers in limited series were Christopher Plummer in The Money Changers and Patty Duke Astin in Captains and the Kings. James Garner, The Rockford Files and Lindsay Wagner, Bionic Woman, won Emmys for best performances in dramatic series.

Carroll O'Connor, All In The Family, and Beatrice Arthur, Maude, came away with awards for outstanding performances in comedy series.

Seventy-five actors and actresses were nominated in the various academy categories. Ed Flanders won the Emmy for outstanding lead actor in a drama special for Harry S. Truman: Plain Speaking and Sally Field captured the trophy for best actress in a drama special for Sybil.

ABC led the networks with 14 awards. NBC and CBS each captured 11.

In addition to best limited series and Gossett, Roots won awards for best supporting actor and actress — Ed Asner as the slave ship captain and Olivia Cole as the wife of Chicken George. Roots also won Emmys for director David Greene and adapters William Blinn and Ernest Kinor.

Botany class registration underway

Registration for fall courses and workshops at the North Carolina Botanical Garden is underway.

Persons interested in edible and medicinal wild plants, landscaping, natural dyes, nature photography and several other nature programs may register by telephone, through the mail or in person at the Botanical Garden.

Courses available in September include two five-week sessions in fall-plant arrangement. One class, beginning Sept. 15, will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. each Thursday.

The second, beginning Sept. 17, will meet from 9 a.m. to noon each Saturday.

A natural-dyes workshop will be taught from 7:30 to 10 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 21 and 22. The session Wednesday will cover the history and preparation of wool for dyeing. The session Thursday will cover the use of common local flowers, leaves and berries in dyes. The workshop is limited to 15 persons.

All classes are held in the Totten Center in the Botanical Garden. Cost of classes ranges from $5 to $22.50.
