

Black shocks state net champ

Johnson falls as Heels batter Duke

By WILL WILSON
Staff Writer

The outcome of the women's tennis match here was not that surprising: Carolina 7, Duke 2. But contained in those seven UNC wins was a shocker in the No. 1 singles.

Susie Black, the junior from Greensboro, defeated four-time state collegiate champion Cindy Johnson 3-6, 6-3, 6-1. Johnson had just defeated Black in straight sets last week in the Atlantic Coast Conference (ACC) tournament.

The win came at an opportune time for the Tar Heels. All the other singles matches had been completed in straight sets, and a win by Johnson would have tied the score. Black's win meant Carolina only needed one doubles win to take the match.

Black said after the match that she hadn't planned a big strategy change against

Heels down Cavs on Drayton's boot

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — UNC's Dick Drayton controlled a deflected throw-in and booted it into the goal 30 minutes into the first half, giving Carolina a 1-0 ACC soccer win over Virginia.

Tar Heel goalie Martin Trimble had nine saves as the Tar Heels improved their season record to 6-2-1 in their first conference outing.

Virginia took 26 shots in the game, the Tar Heels 19.

UNC hosts national power Clemson at 2 p.m. Sunday on Fetzer field.

Johnson, but that when she got into the match, one just came.

"I hit a lot harder — more offensively," she said. "I moved her around a lot more rather than always hit to her backhand."

Another key Tar Heel win was at No. 5, where Janet Shands defeated Kathy Stearns 6-2, 6-3. Both players had won flight championships in the ACC tournament. Shands at No. 6 and Stearns at No. 4. The match was Shands' first this fall at the fifth spot.

An unexpected loss for Carolina was Camey Timberlake's 6-3, 7-6 defeat by Erin Wolf at No. 2. Timberlake had just defeated Wolf on her way to the second flight crown in the ACC event.

Timberlake appeared on her way to forcing a third set when she took a 4-1 lead in the second-set tiebreaker. However, Wolf came back to tie it up 4-4, setting up match point for her.

There, both players resorted to careful tactics. They hit the ball 47 times before a Wolf forehand landed in Timberlake's right forecourt. The ball appeared out to most observers, but Timberlake called it good, ending the match.

The other Tar Heel loss was at No. 4, where freshman Margaret Scott fell 6-1, 6-1 to Gracie Barrie, also a first-year player.

JV b-ball tryouts

Tryouts for the UNC men's junior varsity basketball team will be held at 4 p.m. Saturday in Carmichael Auditorium.

UNC coach Kitty Harrison said after the match that she felt Scott's confidence had been shaken by her two losses in the ACC tournament, especially the 6-0, 6-0 loss to Clemson's Carol Fullerton. But she also gave credit to Barrie.

"Grace is just a super player," she said. "She will advance in the Duke lineup in a hurry."

The clinching match for Carolina came in the No. 1 doubles match, where Timberlake and Lloyd Hatcher defeated Barrie and Stearns 6-2, 1-6, 6-2. The Tar Heels later took the other two doubles matches as well.

The match was Carolina's first this fall on its courts off Country Club Road. The Tar Heels are now 5-0 in dual match competition, while Duke fell to 1-1.

Singles: Susie Black (C) d. Cindy Johnson 3-6, 6-3, 6-1; Erin Wolf (D) d. Camey Timberlake 6-3, 7-6 (5-4); Lloyd Hatcher (C) d. Emily Waugh 6-4, 6-4; Gracie Barrie (D) d. Margaret Scott 6-1, 6-1; Janet Shands (C) d. Kathy Stearns 6-2, 6-3; Betty Baugh Harrison (C) d. Theresa Donahue 6-4, 6-3.

Doubles: Timberlake-Hatcher (C) d. Barrie-Stearns 6-2, 1-6, 6-2; Black-Anne Frautschi (C) d. Donahue-Pam Bacon 4-6, 7-5, 6-4; Shands-Harrison (C) d. Johnson-Wolf 7-6 (5-2), 4-6, 7-6 (5-0).

Exhibition singles: Frautschi (C) d. Beth Brondes 6-3, 6-7 (2-5), 6-2; Ann Beaudoin (C) d. Natalie Usiskin 6-4, 6-2; Lisa Dodson (C) d. Stephanie Matthews 1-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Exhibition doubles: Scott-Dodson (C) d. Waugh-Matthews 6-3, 6-3.

UNC outplays Catawba, 7-0

By ISABEL WORTHY
Staff Writer

The Catawba field hockey team was about an hour late arriving at James field Tuesday afternoon, and it probably wished it hadn't even bothered to come after being trounced 7-0 by Carolina.

UNC's Vicki Greenwood allowed Catawba only a few seconds of equality with the Heels as she took control of the opening bully (similar to the tap in basketball) and went downfield for a goal within the first minute. The Heels followed that goal with several others that were called back, but didn't actually score again until inner Bash Buba stole one of Catawba's few possessions for a breakaway that ended in a goal.

Good passing and sharp stickwork by UNC, and some field criss-crossing hustle by link Sue McCandless kept the Tar Heels in control on offense for the rest of the half. After another nullified goal, Greenwood knocked one in to make it 3-0 at halftime.

Though Catawba's defense improved as the game progressed, the Heels entered the second half with more precision and a determination to run up the score. Five minutes into the half, wing Laurie Ginter slipped in a goal on a rebound off the Catawba goalie. A minute later Greenwood and Buba combined for the play of the game when Greenwood displayed some deft stickwork, nearly sending the Catawba defender to her knees, and assisting Buba on a goal for which she hardly broke her stride.

Buba and Kim Zimmerman scored UNC's final two goals.

UNC Coach Dolly Hunter was pleased with her team's effort and the way it bounced back from last week's disappointing loss to Virginia. "They were tough, they hustled and used their strength — a beautiful passing game," she said of her team. "I liked the way the defense covered for each other and the way they changed positions so smoothly."

Football, basketball, baseball: Woollen basketroom has 'em

The athlete who owns a football, golf clubs, a basketball, a handball glove, soccer balls, a tennis racket and a baseball glove doesn't need to worry about having the right paraphernalia to do most anything he wants.

But most people aren't that fortunate. That's why UNC lends such equipment to active students from its storeroom in the Woollen Gym basement basketroom.

"Our No. 1 priority is the student," said Tom Graham, basketroom supervisor. "This is not to say that we don't look after the staff and faculty personnel, but they buy their privileges by paying a certain fee. Students get it taken out of their student fees."

"We have a limited number of just about everything, but we try and not put restrictions of any kind on anyone," said Graham. "In other words, we try to treat everybody the same."

"At the beginning of the year we put out basically all new equipment. This year we put out 25 new basketballs and look at them already." Graham picked up an already well-worn basketball and rolled it on his palm.

"If a student loses this it will cost him $20. We have to put it that high so as to keep all of our basketballs from being stolen."

"We have a large turnover of equipment, resulting from theft of almost everything. It's a big operation and it is bound to happen."

"Last year we had trouble with weight keys being stolen. It cost $3 last year if a key was lost, this year we made it $5."

One of the restrictions Graham saw was in the limited amount of space in which they have to work.

"We just don't have enough room to take care of everybody," he said. "We're in sympathy with the students and hopefully with the new facility (the women's gym) we will be able to take care of everyone."

Another problem involves a limited budget.

intramurals

By RICK SCOPPE

"The full-time employees are paid for eight-hour days and yet sometimes students don't get out of here until way after 9 p.m. (the gym closes during the week at 9). Also, because of budget restraints, we can't get some of the things we need more of, such as more basketballs."

The basketroom also takes care of physical education classes' needs. "Professors call down to the basketroom," said Graham, "requesting certain things for their classes, like tennis equipment."

"We're not perfect down here," Graham said. "But we're under certain rules we have to abide by, and yet we try and keep in mind we are dealing with human beings."

Intramural playoffs are in the offing as football, table tennis, inner tube water polo and racquetball regular seasons come to an end next week.

Tag football regular season games end on Monday and playoffs begin Tuesday, Oct. 18. Playoff schedules will be available Friday, Oct. 14.

Conflicts which were honored during the regular season by the intramural office cannot be honored during playoffs.

Racquetball's last regular season matches must be completed by Monday, Oct. 17. All players must bring their records up to date and turn in their result cards by Wednesday, Oct. 19. If this is not done, the player will not be put into the playoffs. Playoff brackets will be available Friday, Oct. 21.

Table tennis ends next Monday with the playoff schedules available Friday, Oct. 14.

Inner tube water polo playoff schedules will also be available on Friday.

Because of a lack of facilities indoor soccer has been canceled this fall.

Noon volleyball games will be held every Tuesday and Thursday in Woollen Gym from 11:30 to 12:30 and are open to faculty, staff and students.

Because of conflicts arising in Co-Rec football, the rest of the schedule should be ignored. Members of Co-Rec football teams will be notified about a double elimination tournament later.

There has been a tremendous sign-up for Co-Rec volleyball this fall.

"It's an all-time high for co-rec volleyball," said Marty Pomerantz, assistant intramural manager.

There are a total of nine leagues with six teams in each; a total of 54 teams.

The intramural track meet was held Monday and Tuesday with Mangum trying to defend its title. Results will appear in Thursday's Daily Tar Heel.

Handball, racquetball and squash court reservations may be made 24 hours in advance by calling intramural office after 3 p.m. Reservations are on first call basis and no walk-in reservations will be taken.

Reservations are for one-hour periods.

"YOUR TICKET TO FLORIDA"

YOU'VE EARNED A FLORIDA CAREER CLIMATE and a Future With the Team That "Gets It Out"

HARRIS COMPOSITION SYSTEMS DIVISION designs, manufactures, markets and supports the full-range of pre-press electronic systems to serve the photocomposition, advertising layout, classified and editorial information processing of today's increasingly modern newspapers.

Many major national and international newspapers are using our sophisticated hardware. The new Harris 2570 system can accommodate more than 300 editorial terminals and dozens of peripheral devices to "GET IT OUT". However, quality hardware is just one part of a newspaper copy processing system. Equally essential is the systems software — the supervisory routines, control programs, and utilities that give the hardware its power and completeness.

Because of the large demand by the fast-growing newspaper industry, we are looking for career-minded individuals to join the team that "GETS IT OUT" . . .

COMPUTER SCIENTISTS — Design and development of operating systems, data base systems, communications software and applications packages. Familiarity with PASCAL, ALGOL or PL-1.

ELECTRONIC ENGINEERS — Design and development of sophisticated hardware terminals and phototypesetting systems.

If your career goals are set high and you would like the opportunity to work in a dynamic environment, we would like to talk with you. We will be interviewing on campus Wednesday, October 19th. Inquire at Placement Office.

If you are unable to attend, feel free to send your resume to J. E. Jensen.
