Trial period ends today

Board to discuss night taxi service

Today is the end of the trial period for night taxi service set in a contract agreement reached earlier this month by Chapel Hill and the University.

No decision on the future of the service is expected this week by Paul Arne, student transportation director. Arne says UNC and town officials will evaluate the system this week.

In the contract agreement, the shared-ride service would be re-evaluated if the average nightly ridership fell below 100. The average has been about 55 riders per night.

The Chapel Hill Transportation Board will discuss what revisions it will suggest for the service at its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Municipal Building.

John Temple, UNC vice chancellor for business and finance, has suggested the town consider dropping the 25 cent surcharge for the taxi service and include some fixed-route bus service at night.

However, Arne says the most important revision for the taxi service was instituted when the required one-hour advance notice for pick-up was eliminated. "I am undecided on dropping the surcharge, but it probably will be done."

Tape player, radio, banner and wallet among items stolen

An eight-track tape player and an AM-FM radio were stolen from an automobile parked at a Manning Drive parking deck Thursday, University Police reported.

Vicky Evans of Rt. 3, Hillsborough told police she discovered the theft when she returned to her unlocked car at 2:58 p.m. Thursday.

A banner belonging to Playmakers Repertory Company was stolen between 10:30 and 11:30 a.m. Sunday. The 6-foot by 12-inch black and white hurlap banner was valued at $80.

Shu-Hui Ong, a clinical sciences employee, told police her wallet was missing from an unlocked room while she was out to lunch Thursday. Missing items include several credit cards, the victim's driver's license and $10 cash.

Jinny Lingner of 401 Seven St. reported her red backpack, shoes and a change of clothes missing from Fetzer Field Sunday. The backpack was later found in the nearby woods and returned to University Police. Total value of the missing items is $20.

Faculty opinion forces change in Code

"The feeling coming through is that of a police state with a faculty-student adversary relationship," Thompson said.

The committee will consider its recommendations to the Faculty Council at 3:30 p.m. today in 310 Davie

Correction

In a story in the Daily Tar Heel Friday on black and female faculty members' reactions to Chancellor N. Ferebee Taylor's call for increased recruitment of minority faculty, two quotations were misattributed to Johnny L. Greene, assistant professor of English.

Blyden Jackson, special assistant to the dean of the graduate school, not Greene, said Taylor's call for increased recruitment of blacks and females was more than a defensive action stemming from recent Department of Health, Education and Welfare guidelines asking for an increase in the number of black and female faculty members at the University.

Jackson, and not Greene, also said, "I've talked with Taylor more than once about this. His report is more than a gesture; it comes from years of study. He has given profound thought and diligent attention to the matter."

The Daily Tar Heel regrets the error.

Hall.

Recommendations of the Committee on Student Conduct (COSC) are to delete the "rat clause" (the requirement that students report violation of the Honor Code by other students), to begin a system of faculty proctoring and to increase the severity of sanctions handed down by the student honor courts.

Thompson said the committee is considering several options for its recommendation to the Faculty Council, including recommending that the proposals of COSC be adopted as they are, that the proposals be rejected, that the Faculty Council adopt the proposals with modifications or that the proposals be sent back to the Committee on Student Conduct.

"We've talked to Henry Boren (secretary of the faculty), and he said we could do any of those things," Thompson said.

A forthcoming proposal, which the committee is not considering now, would change the composition of the honor courts to include faculty members as well as students. This proposal has not been sent to EPC because the method of placing minority members on the Honor Court currently is being challenged in the courts.

The minority-court rule permits an accused student to request that four of the seven judges on the trial bench of the Honor Court be of his or her race or sex. The procedure was declared unconstitutional by the U.S. Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals in July. The case has been appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The EPC meeting is open to all interested students and faculty members.

EARN OVER $600 A MONTH FOR THE REST OF YOUR SENIOR YEAR.

If you are interested in math, physics or engineering, the Navy has a program you should know about.

It's called the NUPOC-Collegiate Program (NUPOC is short for Nuclear Propulsion Officer Candidate), and if you qualify it can pay you as much as $611 a month for the remainder of your senior year. Then after 16 weeks of Officer Candidate School, you will receive an additional year of advanced technical education, education that would cost thousands in a civilian school, but in the Navy we pay you. And at the end of the year of training, you'll receive a $3,000 cash bonus.

It isn't easy. Only one of every six applicants will be selected, and there are fewer than 300 openings. But those who make it find themselves in one of the most elite engineering training programs anywhere. With unequalled hands-on responsibility, a $24,000 salary in four years, plus travel, medical benefits and education opportunities.

For more details on this program, ask your placement officer when a Navy representative will be on campus, or call the Officer Program Office listed below; or send your résumé to Navy Nuclear Officer Program, Code 312, 4015 Wilson Blvd., Arlington, Va. 22203. The NUPOC-Collegiate Program. It can do more than help you finish college; it can lead to an exciting opportunity.
