Carrboro begins crackdown on traffic

By MIKE WADE
Staff Writer

In an effort to stop a rising number of traffic mishaps between cars and bicycles, the Carrboro Police Department has begun a crackdown on traffic violations by motorists and cyclists alike.

The crackdown is aimed specifically at violations occurring on Main Street in Carrboro between Greensboro and Franklin streets. Police Chief J. W. Blackwood said Monday. The purpose of the crackdown, he said, is "to get across to the citizens that it's becoming more and more dangerous to ride a bike in that area (Main Street)."

Although he had no specific figures available, Blackwood said the police department has noticed a rising trend in the number of traffic accidents involving bicycles in the last three months. He noted that the intersection of Main Street, Merritt Mill Road and W. Franklin Street has been especially dangerous recently, with several accidents caused by cyclists passing cars on the right and then being hit by turning traffic. "That is probably our worst intersection," he said.

Blackwood said a large part of the problem has resulted from cyclists' failure to obey traffic laws. He said police officers will be alert to improper passing and running red lights and stop signs by both cyclists and motorists. "Most of the accidents are caused by careless mistakes," he said.

Blackwood said action against cyclists and motorists who violate traffic laws will be up to the individual officer's discretion. Officers can give verbal or written warnings or issue citations. "If we can (cut down on the number of accidents) without issuing citations, we'll just be tickled to death," he said.

"We haven't had a fatality in Carrboro in many years, and we don't want to start now," Blackwood added.

Blackwood said the crackdown also will include cyclists who illegally ride bicycles on sidewalks in Carrboro's business district. He said these cyclists pose a danger to anyone stepping through the doors of businesses onto the sidewalk.

The crackdown will continue at least through this week, and then will be evaluated to determine its effectiveness, he said.

'Equus' extension prevented

By AMY McRARY
Staff Writer

Although six sell-out performances of Equus prompted the Playmakers Repertory Co. (PRC) to add two productions to the schedule, royalty costs and equity rules prevented extension of the play's run for an entire week.

"These (royalties) are expensive, so it is expensive for us to extend a play," PRC Managing Director Joseph Coleman said.

Equity rules require that a decision to extend a play be made two weeks before the fact. "The actors must be notified two weeks in advance if we are going to extend the play," Coleman said.

The advance-notice requirement brings the element of guess into the decision. "Not a lot of tickets were sold before we opened Equus," said Judy Harper, PRC public relations director. "But when we opened, a lot were sold. That happens a lot I think."

The number of plays performed by the Playmakers also creates a scheduling problem. "We do seven plays, one after another, so it takes a lot of planning if we do decide to extend a performance," Coleman said.

Equus, a Tony Award-winning play, is the first complete sellout at the Playmakers Theatre since Look Homeward, Angel last year. Six of 17 performances were sell-outs. The theatre seats 292 in addition to 20 standing room only spaces. Twenty-eight stage seats were added for the Equus production.

"As PRC builds, we will probably run into this sort of thing more often," Coleman said. "We're a nonprofit theater, so it may cost us money if we run the play longer," Coleman said. "Speaking from an economical standpoint, Equus probably would not have cost us money to run."

To avoid missing a play because it becomes a sellout, persons should subscribe for an entire season to PRC plays, Coleman said. Subscribers receive a discount and are guaranteed a seat at every show, he said.

State law requires local elections boards to hear appeals only from persons who were denied the right to register. Neither of Drakeford's witnesses was denied that right.

"We have no investigative power," Lloyd said. "We can hear the students' complaints. And we can see to it that the improper questioning doesn't happen again. But that's about it."

Drakeford said he and Carrboro Alderman Ernie Patterson produced the names at the request of Joe Nassif, elections board chairperson.

"He (Nassif) asked us to provide the board with some names," Drakeford said Monday. "We're doing that." When the letter is sent, our responsibility ends and the board's responsibility begins.

The improper questions Drakeford said the two students were asked include: "Do you plan to live here the rest of your life?" and "Did you know your parents will lose you as a tax deduction if you register in Orange County?"

The N.C. Board of Elections has a list of questions local officials may use to determine if a person registering to vote is qualified, under residency requirements, to cast his ballot locally.

Marianne Mount, one of Drakeford's witnesses, said she was asked the question concerning permanent residency.

"First she (an elections registrar) asked me if I was a student," Mount said. "Then she told me I had to be a permanent resident to register here."

"When I told her I thought of myself as a permanent resident, she asked me if I ever planned to return to New York (Mount's native state)."

"She was just harassing me, trying to stop me from registering."

Mount said the registrar allowed her to register after 30 minutes of questioning. She said she does not know who the registrar is.

The improper questioning supposedly took place at the Carrboro Town Hall on Oct. 3, 4 or 6.

Personal

HI I'M A SINGLE, curious, playful, adventurous, educated, confident, self-employed, Gemini male, 32. Large parties, big cities, the bar scene, and closed minds turn me off. But quiet talk, shared meals, canoeing, camping, massage, country walks, fireside evenings, real people and good movies turn me on. If you're a single, fairly confident, sexually-liberated, imaginative and sensitive female — who knows herself as an individualist — and who shares any (or all) of the above interests, I'd like to explore our mutuality. If interested, you'd drop me a note at Box 265, Chapel Hill, or call me at 967-6704? My name is J.B. What's yours?

HAPPY HALLOWEEN to Boo from his babe. You're the best pumpkin eater, yet!

T. HAPPY HALLOWEEN to the hottest goblin in town. C.

DEAR BECKY AND ANGIE, do not celebrate Halloween too much. Watch out where you trick or treat... Love, S/S.

MY DEAREST TEDDY BEAR, I love you very much and wish you a very happy day. Forever yours, Little Bottom.

JOHN THOMPSON: If you have my earring, please call me back. I was not able to reach you. Lisa Myers, 967-1636.

YOUR INTEREST IN ME is still obvious; however, your attitude is somewhat aloof. Don't judge a relationship "wrong," especially since you want to establish one. Please reply with words — not stares.
