White House rocked by riot Anti-shah mob battles police; Carter, others gassed

From United Press International

WASHINGTON — Blear-eyed in wafting tear gas, President Carter greeted the Shah of Iran on the White House lawn Tuesday as hordes of screaming, club-swinging anti-shah demonstrators brawled with police and pro-shah crowds a few hundred yards away.

The Shah, his queen and Rosalynn Carter wept and gaged in the wind-carried gas police fired during the half-hour, skull-cracking battle that erupted just as the Iranian monarch arrived for a two-day visit.

White House veterans said they could not recall any comparable disruption of a White House state ceremony, not even during the Vietnam protest era.

U.S. Park Police said Tuesday evening they counted 92 civilians and 17 police among the injured, most with cuts and bruises. Hospital spokespersons gave a somewhat lower figure but said it included one man, a shah partisan, in serious condition with a skull fracture.

Sadat invited to Israel

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Menahem Begin Tuesday formally invited Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to the Holy City of Jerusalem to show the world "we want peace with all our heart." The United States acted as postman.

Sadat said he would travel to Jerusalem and address the Israeli parliament if he got a proper invitation. Begin promised "he will be received with pomp and ceremony as befits the head of a neighboring state with which we wish to live in peace." Begin handed the invitation to Sadat, plus a separate message for President Carter, to U.S. Ambassador Samuel W. Lewis, who promised the U.S. Embassy in Cairo would have it within minutes.

Justice says AA okay

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department told the Supreme Court Tuesday affirmative action programs favoring minorities do not violate the 1964 Civil Rights Act's prohibitions against racial discrimination. The department filed its court-requested "friend of the court" brief in Allan Bakke's reverse discrimination suit challenging a special admissions program for disadvantaged applicants to attend the University of California Medical School at Davis.

"The act as a whole," the department argued, "was intended to deal with the discrimination against black persons then pervasive in our society."

news briefs

Energy battle continues

WASHINGTON — Senate energy negotiators Tuesday refused to accept mandatory reform in the way electric rates are calculated, saying the most they will do is require states to consider rate changes proposed by the House.

House members of the energy conference committee, however, stuck by their demand for specific, federally required reforms. They indicated the most they were prepared to offer was a series of loopholes to let states ignore reforms considered too distasteful.

Tuesday night, Republicans urged President Carter to dump his energy proposal and offer another plan that will keep America great by requiring persons to sacrifice less and emphasizing new production instead.

Blue blood born

LONDON — Princess Anne gave birth Tuesday to a 7-pound, 9-ounce son who is fifth in line to the throne. The first known grandchild of a reigning British sovereign ever born a commoner, he will be known simply as "Mr. Phillips."

Artillery resounded across the River Thames 41 times from the ancient Tower of London in celebration of the child, born in the silver jubilee year of Queen Elizabeth's reign.

FDA asks for labels

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration today told diet soft-drink bottlers and other users of saccharin to begin placing cancer-warning labels on products as soon as possible.

The agency published tentative guidelines to tell the industry how to display the warning label. Congress has approved as part of still-unsigned legislation reversing the FDA's earlier proposed ban on the artificial sweetener.

President Carter's approval of the legislation is expected shortly, and the FDA said it was publishing the guidelines in the event the measure becomes law.

Thieves carry off music equipment

University Police reported that an amplifier, two speakers, a turntable and a tape deck belonging to the department of music were stolen from 110 Hill Hall sometime over the weekend. The thieves gained entry by breaking a window, police said.

Peter Schneider of H-9 Carolina Apartments told police he lost his wallet in the Carolina Union at noon Monday. The wallet and its contents were valued at $20.

DTH gets All-America prize

The Daily Tar Heel has received an All-American rating by the National Scholastic Press Association (NSPA) and the Associated Collegiate Press (ACP).

The All-American rating is the highest rating given in the collegiate newspaper competition and was presented to the DTH this fall for its issues last spring.

The DTH received marks of distinction in all five categories: coverage and content, writing and editing, editorial and opinion, physical appearance and photography and use of graphics.

The collegiate newspapers were judged in competition to other college newspapers with similar enrollment, frequency of publication and printing process.

"The Daily Tar Heel is — as always — a 100 percent professional publication," said Mary Skar, director of the NSPA and ACP critical services. "Your staff and school should be proud."

"Associated Collegiate Press is the most authoritative critical service in the country for college newspapers," DTH Editor Greg Porter said, "and they gave us the highest possible rating, so we have to be proud."

Porter noted that it was the first time the DTH had received marks of distinction in all five categories in several years. He added that the Daily Tar Heel is often compared with collegiate papers that have greater resources.

"We feel we're doing a lot with what we have," Porter said.

advising

But most advisers seem to be in agreement that if there is a major flaw in the advising system, it is not in the system itself but in the way students utilize that system.

"Students need to take better advantage of the services we provide for them," Professor Melvin Chambers of the pharmacy school says. "If the students would simply consult with their advisers more — we're in a better position to help them than they are to help themselves."

"In General College we try to stress students' coming in not because something has happened but before something bureaucratic hits them," says Robert Daniels, an anthropology professor.

Carol Reuss of the School of Journalism says, "My philosophy is that students should learn to use the tools available — use the guidelines within the University to develop their own program. If they don't take advantage of the services, maybe they don't need it; maybe they don't want it."

"One interesting approach to advising is being attempted in Henderson Residence College. For the past three years, a General College adviser has maintained an office at Henderson and has kept regular office hours to assist its residents.

"I'm more accessible to students here," Susan Furr says. "One strong point is that I haven't had people missing appointments. And it's less formal because I'm in their environment."

"I have to look up a lot more information and make more phone contacts because of the wide variety of students I talk to, but for people who are undecided it seems to work real well. They can talk more informally in this situation."
