

Heel wrestlers pin E. Carolina

Sparked by a first period fall by freshman C. D. Mock and a second period fall by senior Jeff Reintgen, the UNC wrestling team, for the first time in its history, knocked off the tough ECU Pirates, 25-15.

The Heels built up a comfortable 16-0 lead on the strength of victories by Bob Monaghan, Kenny Evans and Dave Juergens and the pin by Mock. From there the Heels used a Clayton Barnard decision and Reintgen's fall to sew up the match.

"Bobby Monaghan's big win to start us off got the momentum going, and then everybody did a great job from there," Lam said. "The whole team wrestled well. And Kenny Evans match was just beautiful."

Evans came up with a 8-7 victory over three-time Southern Conference champ Paul Osman in a match the Pirates were sure they would win. Then, Reintgen's fall in the midst of a heated 2-2 tie with ECU's Steve Goode put the match away for Carolina.

List of prospective coaches grows

Augie Tammariello, head coach at the University of Southwest Louisiana, was to be interviewed Thursday night or today by the committee searching for a new football coach at UNC.

Tammariello, 40, has compiled a 23-19-2 record in four years at Southwest Louisiana. He was an assistant coach at Colorado and William & Mary before taking over there.

His name was added to a growing list of candidates for the job vacated Sunday by Bill Dooley, who accepted the dual position of football coach and athletic director at Virginia Tech.

Even though members of the six-person committee considering candidates for the job remain mum about who is being considered, reports indicate that several are now on the list of prospective new coaches.

This list includes Jim Donnan, an assistant under Dooley at Carolina for four years, who is considered to be a leading candidate for the job. Pat Watson and Sandy Kinney, other assistants under Dooley, also have been interviewed by the committee.

Other coaches being considered by the committee are Bobby Bowden of Florida State; Bobby Collins of Southern Mississippi; Art Baker of Furman; Homer Smith of Army; and Bud Carson, defensive coordinator of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Bowden also is considered to be a top contender for the job. He is expected to be interviewed for the post sometime next week.

Collins was interviewed by the committee Thursday while Tammariello and Frank Ganz, an assistant at UCLA, were to meet with the committee today.

Carson, who was interviewed by the search committee Wednesday night, played at Carolina in the 1950s and applied for the job before Dooley was hired in 1967. He coached at Georgia Tech for five years before joining the Steelers in 1972. Collins was an assistant to Dooley for eight years. He has compiled a 15-19 record in three years at Southern Mississippi.

East Carolina Coach Pat Dye also may be interviewed for the job next week. He could not be reached for comment Thursday.

The committee searching for the new football coach apparently has no deadline in which to submit a name to Chancellor N. Ferebee Taylor for consideration.

"Quality is more important than speed," Student Body President Bill Moss, a member of the search committee, said Thursday. "We're striving our best to find the right person for this institution. We're trying to find someone as unique as this university is."

Carolina fencers in OSU tourney

Carolina's men's and women's fencing teams will leave today for Columbus, Ohio, to take part in a four-team meet on Saturday in the season opener for the Tar Heels.

Ohio State, Wayne State and Bowling Green will be competing with the Heels. Ohio State is the reigning Big Ten conference champion, and Wayne State is the Great Lakes champion.

UNC will be competing without its top performer in saber, Rich Weil, but despite the loss of Weil, fencing coach Ron Miller is optimistic about the upcoming match.

"We are looking forward to a good trip," Miller said. "It will hurt not having Weil in the first few meets, but we still have a strong squad and it only increases the challenge before this team. And I think this team is certainly up to facing the challenge."

Carolina will be sending 12 men and 12 women to compete in the meet this weekend.

Indoor track opens with invitational meet

By RICK SCOPPE
Staff Writer

UNC's men's and women's indoor track schedule begins Saturday with the East Coast Invitational in Richmond, Va. Fifteen to 20 teams will compete.

"It's a big invitational meet and is open to all amateur runners. There will be no team scoring, only individual scores," UNC coach Hubert West said.

Going into the invitational, the men's team appears to be strong in the relays, the high jump and the pole vault," West said. "We've brought in some freshmen who will help us," West said. "We're also stronger in the quarter areas than we were last year, and with the core group of distance runners we have we look to be very sound."

In the high jump two Carolina seniors, Erwin Jones and Lee Shuler, jumped seven feet last year.

"Overall, we look to be very balanced, though we may be a little weak in the sprints," West said.

West said the women's team seems to be stronger than last year.

"Again, we've filled in with some outstanding freshmen, but indoor track for the women is still sketchy because most indoor meets cater to the bigger and more outstanding teams."

The women's team, West said, will build around its distance runners, including junior Karen Stevenson and freshman Karen Fischler.

"They're all excited and are anxious to get the season under way," West said.

All UNC indoor track meets this spring are on the road. Home track meets last year were in the Tin Can, which was torn down last summer. Delays in building its replacement near Fetzer Field results in a lack of indoor facilities.

"The fact that we have not been able to practice on the boards (in indoor track the runners run on a wooden track) could hurt us, especially on the turns, which are tighter than in outdoor track," West said.

West said he hopes to use Carmichael Auditorium and also State's facilities for practice.

Tin Can completion delayed

By RICK SCOPPE
Staff Writer

The rebuilding of the Tin Can, torn down to make way for the new women's gym, will not be completed before April, UNC Head Track Coach Joe Hilton said this week.

"There have been some problems, and it appears that the gym will not be finished before April," Hilton said.

Plans originally called for the Tin Can's completion, on Fetzer Field, in September, but because of what Hilton termed "steel and production problems," delays have occurred.

Reports from athletic department officials during the fall said wrong size and inadequate building materials were delivered to the construction site and then partially erected. These materials had to be dismantled and exchanged for the correct materials.

"We had all the material last fall but had to send it back. Some of the welds and joints in the steel were not adequate, and the engineers rejected them.

"Finally, the material came back last November, but we've had other problems. Both the rain and the cold weather we've had make it hard on the workers."

"But now we have all the materials, and it's just a question of time before the gym is completed. Since getting all the material we've made pretty good progress."

Because of the delay, the indoor track team now has nowhere to practice and will have no home track meets this spring.
