Greeks kick out jams in talent show

By AMY COLGAN
Staff Writer

Burly ballerinas, whistling midgets and others of similar talent joined forces to create the second annual Delta Delta Delta Greek Variety Show Wednesday night in Memorial Hall. Highlights included the debut of UNC's oldest student, Silent Sam, in keeping with the Greek history theme. The show was a fund-raiser for the Tri-Delta scholarship.

Poking fun at their own Greek system, the Pi Kappa Phi pickers donned Topsiders, white socks and sweaters tied-around-the-neck for the parody in song. The Kappa Alpha Theta sorority girls dressed "suzily," for their rendition of "UNC dropout," a ballad of the stereotyped Greek delinquent — set at Kirkpatrick's.

A show-stopping philharmonic kazoo band accompanying a Moscow ballet won the "most creative" act. Luxeodo Phi Delta Theta brothers set the musical mood with "Blue Danube," accentuated by the leaps and turns of agile figures clad in leotards and pink tutus — also brothers, with grace matched only on a football field. Zulu the swan and his troupe executed "The death of a swan" beyond reproduction or recognition.

Dancing through the ages, The Chi Omega sorority flappers, boppers and hustlers led up to Saturday Night Fever finale: the introduction of John Travolta's Carolina counterpart, "Wick Revolta."

Competition for the coveted "gong" award was stiff, with the Beta Theta Pi "Janice" group imitation ranking high, but it finally went to the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity's "Peewee Fijis." They received a Breadman's gift certificate and a keg of beer for their efforts.

Little bodies and little feet were also the focus of the Kappa Delta and Sigma Phi Epsilon acts. The KD's did "short people" and the Sig Eps did five whistling midgets — with faces painted on their chests and 3-foot hats on their upper bodies. This left their mouths at navel level, which made interesting whistling.

The Tri-Delta chorus line, emcees and roller skating sign girl kept the show moving through 21 acts. Silent Sam's presence brought out historical tidbits concerning the Greeks. The ever-present rivalries led to a minor skirmish over which fraternity was UNC's oldest. Prizes of three kegs of beer were donated by Budweiser through campus representative Will Willis. The Mad Hatter discotheque provided the after-party, complete with band.

Dance-a-thon set for Saturday

Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority will sponsor a Dance-a-Thon from noon until midnight Saturday. Shabazz and Crosswind will provide live music for the event, which will be in Great Hall, Carolina Union.

Individuals over 16 years of age and organizations wishing to participate in the Dance-a-Thon are to solicit sponsors who may pledge any amount desired for each hour danced. Forty percent of the proceeds will go to the UNC undergraduate library, while 60 percent will go to the multiple sclerosis foundation.

Sponsor cards may be obtained at the Carolina Union, the Franklin Street post office and the campus Y from noon to 5 p.m. today and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

Prizes will be awarded to the individual and the organization raising the most money, the individual with the most sponsors and the winner of the dance contest Saturday night. There also will be door prizes awarded throughout the day.

During a supper break from 6 to 7 p.m., food will be available for the dancers. Fifteen-minute breaks will be provided each hour during the dance. Participants also may ask to have partners assigned.

Admission to watch the event will be 50 cents per person and 75 cents per couple.
