

Carolina takes three wins, moves into conference lead

By WILL WILSON
Staff Writer

Carolina replaced Clemson as the team to beat in the ACC baseball race over Easter weekend, but rain took away its chance of moving even further in front of the pack.

The Tar Heels dealt Clemson its first loss in eight league games Friday with a decisive 6-1 win in Boshamer Stadium. Coupled with its 19-3 rout over Duke in Durham Thursday, Carolina now stands 3-0 in the league, good enough for first place.

The Tigers were scheduled to face UNC ace Greg Norris in a Saturday rematch, but the game was rained out both then and on the Sunday night makeup date. The game will be made up just prior to the ACC Tournament (April 19-23) if it affects the conference standings.

Clemson's fortune was East Carolina's misfortune, however, as Norris improved his record to 7-0 with a 4-2 win over the Pirates Monday evening in Boshamer Stadium. The UNC-Davidson game scheduled for earlier in the day was rained out.

Against Duke, the Tar Heels pounded two Blue Devils pitchers for a total of 22 hits. Mike Fox and Mark McKinney had four each, and McKinney drove in five runs.

Friday, Clemson jumped on Tar Heel pitcher Blaine Smith for a run on a couple of hard-hit doubles in the first inning, but the UNC junior right hander shut the Tigers out the rest of the way to win his fourth in five decisions.

"Clemson really worked Blaine over down there last year," UNC coach Mike Roberts said. "I think he was ready to pitch today and kept the ball down."

Carolina also started quickly, but its early push was enough to carry it to victory. Brad Lloyd's double, Roy Clark's triple and Greg Robinson's single produced two first-inning runs, and that was all the Tar Heels needed.

Carolina got two more in the second, beginning after two were out, on Lloyd's triple, Fox's double and Jim Atkinson's single.

Atkinson's hit capped off a .529 week at the plate for the Sanford junior that led to his choice as the ACC Spring Athlete of the Week.

Clemson reliever Billy Trapp came on in the third and held the Tar Heels without a hit until the eighth, when Jim Rouse singled and Lloyd Brewer homered for the final two UNC runs.

Against the Pirates, Carolina came from a 2-0 deficit with two runs each in the sixth and eighth. Atkinson continued his torrid hitting with a double and a triple while Robinson's three hits were good for two runs batted in.

Carolina, 21-6 overall, hosts St. John's at 3 p.m. today. The Redmen participated in the College World Series last season.

Tar Heel pitcher Blaine Smith had problems getting started Saturday afternoon against Clemson, but once he did, Tiger hits were few and far between. Carolina upended the ACC leader with a 6-1 victory. Staff photo by Scott Johnston.

NCAA finals weekend They even think basketball at the zoo

By EVAN APPEL
Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS — Monday afternoon. Game doesn't start until 8 p.m. What do I do for seven hours?

"I'll go to the zoo. That'll take my mind off basketball. That's a good idea; I haven't been to the zoo for a long time. I'll be able to relate to nature's other creatures without basketball for a few hours."

When I got to the zoo, I noticed my idea was not an original one. Well, at least they're animal lovers, not basketball maniacs.

The elephant arena. Oh, it's closed. I turned to leave, only to find a college student wearing a Duke cap remark, "It's closed. Robey and Phillips must be taking a nap."

So much for getting away from basketball.

I left the Duke fans far behind and headed toward the bird hall.

Ah, serenity. Just being able to see the birds.

"Do you think Kentucky can win with all that pressure?" the guy in the Notre Dame shirt was asking the toucan.

I've seen everything now. At least the parakeets weren't being interrogated. They wore the green and gold of Notre Dame, but the guy in the Notre Dame shirt apparently didn't notice.

On to the aquatic building.

SPORTS

- Baseball at home vs. St. John's, 2:30 p.m.
- Women's tennis at home vs. Stetson, 2 p.m.
- Track at Richmond.
- Women's softball at N.C. State, 2 p.m.

I never knew male penguins incubated their young. Sexist of me, I guess.

The mother penguin kept pushing her baby off one particular rock.

"That's what our boys'll be doin' in a while."

Sure enough, behind me stood a man decorated with Kentucky memorabilia. He wore a Kentucky hat, a blue Kentucky windbreaker and a button that said, "I'm a Joe B fan."

Turning my attention back to the penguins, I couldn't help but relate the mother's actions to the game. Another exhibit spoiled.

Maybe I'll head over to see Phil the gorilla. I get there, only to find a 'closed' sign on the door.

Another disappointment.

The monkeys are next door. They're amazing, able to swing in the trees so easily.

"Duke is so young, but wise beyond their years."

No, not Billy Packer practicing his lines. Yet another Duke fan helping out the publicity department.

"Hey, Banks ain't nothin' next to James Lee. Man, Lee will eat him up."

Well, at least both sides are represented.

Walking out of the zoo, I couldn't help but marvel at the hats, the shirts, the buttons. It was everywhere in St. Louis — on cars, trucks and campers. Waitresses in one bar even wore "Duke Blue Devils — Eastern Regional Champs" T-shirts over the weekend.

St. Louis became infected with basketball fever this weekend. After all, the NAAs were in town. The game became the city's religion, the players its disciples and the coach its god.

The mecca was almost complete.

Sports shorts: lacrosse drowns vs. Washington and Lee

Mud proved to be the great equalizer Saturday as the UNC lacrosse team dropped a 6-4 decision to Washington and Lee. Carolina's record now stands at 1-2.

Although the Tar Heels went to Lexington, Va., ready to play lacrosse, they were not counting on the inclement weather conditions that awaited them. Pouring rain and six inches of mud had a disastrous effect on the offensive-minded Tar Heels who never could get on the track.

"The field was atrocious," middle Randy Gilbert said. "We couldn't use our speed, and that made it hard to get going."

Only two goals were scored in the first half — both by Washington and Lee. According to Gilbert, however, Carolina could have been worse off had it not been for another gutsy defensive performance.

Gilbert, Joe Yevoli, Bruce Matthal and Paul Wingate all scored in the second half for the Tar Heels.

UNC's women's TRACK team won two events and the men's team captured one amid the rain-drenched ACC Relays in Raleigh Saturday.

While most of both UNC women's and men's track teams were getting soaked, a few team members were competing in the Florida Relays in Gainesville. UNC's 4-mile relay team of Doug Slack, Gary Hofstetter, Kent Taylor and Ralph King won with a time of 16:33.

In Raleigh, Karen Stevenson was scoring the only double victory of the ACC Relays, winning the 100-meter hurdles and the 440-yard run.

Michelle Langan won the high jump with a leap of 5 feet, 4 inches.

For the men Bob Walsh won the 400-meter hurdles with a time of 54.4.

The UNC MEN'S SWIM team finished in a tie for 26th place with Louisiana State in the NCAA Nationals Thursday-Saturday in Long Beach, Calif.

Mark List was the only Carolina swimmer to score in an individual event with a 12th place in the 100-yard backstroke. The 400-yard relay team of List, Mike Amaya, Tim Baldstrom and Fritz Homans pulled in four of the five total UNC points with an 11th.

Tennessee won the meet and was followed by Auburn, University of California at Berkeley, UCLA and Southern California. N.C. State finished 12th.

The Carolina WOMEN'S TENNIS team had no problems against Tennessee Friday and coasted to a 9-0 win without losing a set.

"I was pleased that they didn't fool around out there," coach Kitty Harrison said. "They moved right in and finished it off. I think they wanted to go home."

The UNC squad was without senior Casey Timberlake, who is still recovering from mononucleosis, but Susie Black, Lloyd Hatcher, Janet Shands, Betty Baugh Harrison, Lia Dodson and Margaret Scott all scored straight-set singles to close out the match before the doubles began.

The women netters are at home against Stetson at 2 p.m. today and travel to Virginia Wednesday. Massachusetts Institute of Technology bowed to the UNC MEN'S TENNIS team 9-0 Monday on the Country Club courts. The Heels are now 15-2.

UNC coach Don Skakle rearranged his starting lineup leaving three of the usual starters in singles and only two in doubles.

Jamie Karson, Chris Fenichell and Paul Tendler all came into the starting six and won, as did usuals Junie Chatman, Cliff Skakle and Jon Kraut.

Tal Henry and Kraut moved into the No. 1 doubles and won. Fenichell and Tendler won on the No. 2 court and Robbie Hines and Peter Brown completed the clean sweep at No. 3.

UNC beat Virginia Sunday 6-3, Furman on Friday, 9-0, and Michigan St. on Thursday, 9-0.

Carolina's MEN'S GOLF team finished in a three-way tie for seventh place in the rain-shortened Furman Intercollegiate Tournament Friday in Greenville, S.C.

UNC tied with East Tennessee State and N.C. State with a two-day total of 609.

Clemson won the tournament with a 593 score.

S-4 parking stickers no longer good in S-1

By SUSAN LADD
Staff Writer

Beginning today, Morrison residents with S-4 parking stickers who have been parking in the S-1 lot beside Morrison Dormitory will be required to park at alternate locations.

The S-1 lot is being rezoned to accommodate hospital employees who are being displaced from 70 parking spaces in the Bell Tower (S-2) parking lot. Construction of new hospital facilities have made the S-2 spaces temporarily unusable, Ted Marvin, security service director, said.

The S-1 lot beside Morrison is already zoned for hospital parking, but because hospital employees and staff had not been utilizing the lot to its full capacity, students with S-4 parking permits had been allowed access to the lot.

Beginning today, however, hospital employees will be using the spaces in the S-1 lot and students who have been parking there must begin parking in the Ramshead parking lot (S-4) and the Craig parking lot (S-4), Alan Reep, Morrison residence director, said.

When construction at the hospital is completed, the 70 spaces in the Bell Tower parking lot will again be useable and the S-1 parking area will revert to the Morrison residents, Marvin said.

The S-1 lot has been assigned to hospital employees twice before but was reassigned to students in both cases after surveys revealed the parking lot was not being fully utilized by the hospital.
