

Sunny and warm

Today will be sunny and warm with the high near 70 degrees. Expect clear and cool weather tonight but tomorrow will be sunny and warm with 80 degree temperatures.

The Daily Tar Heel

Serving the students and the University community since 1893

April Fool's Day

Don't miss the special April Fool's section on pages 3 and 4 of the Weekender.

Volume 85, Issue No. 143 / 20

Friday, March 31, 1978, Chapel Hill, North Carolina

Please call us: 933-0245

Hollywood bound, the Tar Heel cheerleading squad hopes to make it big.

'Psyched' UNC cheerleaders ready for Hollywood contest

Unlike most cheering squads across the country, the cheerleaders at Carolina haven't put away their megaphones and pompoms yet.

Instead, the UNC cheerleaders are practicing dances, skits, cheers and gymnastics for the National Collegiate Cheerleading Championships in Hollywood, Calif., April 3-7.

Earlier, UNC was chosen as one of the top five squads in the country by the International Cheerleading Foundation along with Florida, Kansas, Pittsburgh and Southern California. The competition this week will decide where Carolina is rated in the top five. The Carolina squad will fly to Hollywood Sunday.

The winning squad will be chosen before a live audience and a panel of judges, pageant style, on April 6. Cheryl Ladd will be the hostess, George Burns an honored guest and Phyllis George and Bruce Jenner will be the commentators for the 90-minute television special on CBS, May 1 at 9 p.m.

To earn the top-five ranking and an invitation to the finals, the squad prepared slides, a videotape presentation and two scrapbooks of pictures.

UNC's co-head cheerleaders are seniors Chuck Day and Cathy McDowell. The other members of the squad are Hank Gillebaard, Pam Parham, Teresa Trice, Heidi Behrends, Bob Fussell, Vicki Marmarose, Steve Moazed, Bill Nicholson, Brantley Peck, Reb Thomas, Kim Cline, Ross Coppage, Winnie Liles and Marianne Shoaf.

The national competition in Hollywood will be based one-third on cheers and chants, one-third on dances and one-third on spectacle. Each squad is given six minutes on stage.

"The things we do best are partner stunts, dances and pyramids," Day said. "We're working on what we do best because we think our style is different." Carolina's men cheerleaders have dance routines whereas only the women dance in most squads.

"We're psyched," McDowell said. "We've been practicing for weeks. Being in competition is much more intense and very strenuous."

Winnie Liles cheers

Lacrosse turmoil lessens; Doty offers reconciliation

By FRANK SNYDER
Staff Writer

UNC lacrosse players have until 3 p.m. today to individually tell coach Paul Doty whether or not they will play out the remainder of the season.

The team's future remained in doubt all day Thursday as a series of meetings involving Doty, the players, and UNC Athletic Director Bill Cobey failed to resolve team dissension which broke out earlier this week.

Rejecting a set of options presented to him by Cobey, which included resigning or cancelling the season, Doty tendered his own solution — offering each player a chance to rejoin the team on Doty's terms — in an effort to regain team unity.

Doty dismissed 13 current team members Wednesday, including two All Americans, saying they displayed a negative attitude toward the team and coaches.

Doty asked the team Thursday night to "realize that mistakes have been made on both sides" and "forget everything that's happened this week and come back to the team on our terms."

Doty's remarks came during the third team meeting of the day after two earlier meetings resulted in no solution. "The terms are that we're the coaches," Doty said after the 8:30 p.m. meeting.

All Thursday afternoon Doty met individually with each of the dismissed players and told them his reasons for removing them from the team.

The players, Cobey and Doty then met at 5:30 when Cobey presented the team with the only two alternatives which he said he could see. Between 5:30 and 8:30 p.m., however, Doty said he "tried to hash this thing out."

"I did some soul-searching," Doty said. "I thought about resigning. I thought about a lot of things but I've never been a quitter. I'm not about to start to be."

The apparent result was Doty's decision to allow all of the dismissed players to return to the team if they chose to do so.

Doty said he felt he owed it to the seniors to offer them another chance to play. "It would be criminal for the seniors to end their careers this way."

Doty did say, however, that if the team did not have enough players to finish the season, he would have to cancel it.

One team player said he felt most of those dismissed would return. "We feel that we've made our point," the player said. He also said that Doty told the team he was not sure that he would return next year.

The individual decisions today may bring to a close the week-long tempest which has engulfed the team. The first signs of discontent surfaced after the team's 6-4 loss to Washington and Lee last Saturday. Seventeen team members said Monday they were dissatisfied with Doty's ability to lead, instruct and motivate the team. On Tuesday 23 of the 35 team members signed a petition challenging Doty's ability to coach which was presented to Cobey by the team. Four of the five delegates were dismissed.

Fountain critical of Califano stand

By ROBERT THOMASON
Staff Writer

U.S. Rep. L. H. Fountain Thursday criticized HEW Secretary Joseph Califano for making unreasonable demands on University administrators in the long-standing UNC-HEW desegregation conflict.

The Tarboro Democrat said he believes the five other state university systems a U.S. District Court judge said were lax in desegregation efforts accepted federal guidelines in order to appease HEW administrators.

"I think UNC has been honest in saying it has worked to integrate its schools," said Fountain, who is running unopposed in the Democratic primary election May 2 but faces a Republican candidate in the November contest.

"UNC should not be required to sign a commitment it feels it cannot meet," Fountain said while on a campaign swing through Chapel Hill.

"I told Mr. Califano I don't think he or the head of any other agency has the right to dictate educational policy," Fountain said.

The 16-member University system and federal lawyers should continue negotiations before taking the matter into federal court, Fountain said. He predicted a long legal battle drawn out over several months if the matter finds its way to court.

Fountain noted that the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, the same group that initially brought court action against the University system in 1975, has recently charged Califano with discrimination in minority employment practices within HEW.

The member of Congress said he is leaning towards a movement in the federal legislature that could result in the breakup of HEW into separate departments of health, education and welfare.

HEW is one of the largest Cabinet-level departments in the federal bureaucracy. It has more than 130,000 employees.

L. H. Fountain

For May 2 Democratic primary Voter registration deadline is Monday

By ROBERT THOMASON
Staff Writer

The deadline for registering to vote in the May 2 primary election for county and state offices is 5 p.m. Monday.

Anyone who is an Orange County resident and is age 18 or older may register Saturday between noon and 5 p.m. and Monday from 9 - 5 p.m. at the Chapel Hill Municipal Building or the Carrboro Town Hall. There will be no registration today.

If you have moved from one precinct to another or wish to change party affiliations you must re-register by 5 p.m. Monday.

"We are registering people just as we did before the Bailey order," registrar Alice Hollis said.

Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey earlier this month ordered registrars to use a specific set of questions to determine whether a voter applicant's legal domicile is Orange County.

But the N.C. Court of Appeals delayed implementation of Bailey's order, so registrars are not using the questions set down in the Superior Court order.

Registered voters can cast ballots for candidates for district attorney, clerk of superior court, county commissioner, sheriff, U.S. senator, associate justice of the N.C. Supreme Court, judge of the N.C. Court of Appeals and member of Congress.

The UNC Student Government office of local affairs is encouraging students to register to vote and not to feel threatened by the recent suit and voter challenges filed by members of the Orange Committee.

"Our main concern is to make sure students are not intimidated or unaware that they can vote," said Heather Weir, SG coordinator for local affairs. "We encourage them to consider their right to vote in Orange County and to exercise that right."

"We want to make it clear to students who are registered that they can vote on May 2 unless their right to vote has been challenged," she said.

Weir said if a voter is challenged, he must respond in person to the Orange County Board of Elections. If the student does not respond, he will not be allowed to cast his ballot, she said.

"Student Government or Student Legal Services will offer any aid to a student who is challenged and is not sure what to do," Weir said.

Voter applicants must be at least 18 and have lived at their Orange County address for 30 days. A list of 18 questions required under Bailey's court order is not being used, according to Weir.

Registrars now ask if you have registered previously to vote in Orange County or if you are registered in some other county. Hollis said. They ask you where your present address is, how long you have lived there and if you consider it to be your permanent home.

Registrars also ask for some identification, what year in school you are and if you have ever been convicted of a felony. They will ask you to swear or affirm to uphold the laws of the land. Hollis said.

Crist to appear in seminar

More than 100 critics, journalists and artists are expected to attend "Arts Reporting and Criticism in North Carolina," a special segment of the Carolina Symposium.

The seminar, which features movie critic Judith Crist and Broadway producer Richard Adler runs from 9 a.m.-4:15 p.m. today. The seminar is to honor Walter Spearman, who is retiring after 43 years as an instructor in the UNC School of Journalism.

Panelists will discuss how the roles of critic and artist influence each other and the quality and content of media coverage of the arts. Other featured speakers include John Canaday, former New York Times arts editor and Jonathan Yardley, Miami Herald book editor.

All sessions are in the Carolina Union. Spearman will speak briefly at 9 a.m. and make the closing remarks at 4:15 p.m.

Two sessions are scheduled from 9:15-11 a.m. "The Visual Arts," in rooms 202-204, will feature Canaday along with Joe Goodman, managing editor of the Winston-Salem Journal, Patricia Krebs, North Carolina arts columnist and Ernie Wood, editor of North Carolina Architect, "Drama and the Performing Arts," in Great Hall, features Adler, William Hardy, UNC RTVMP professor, and Charles Horton, critic for the Chapel Hill Newspaper.

Crist, Allen Oren, Charlotte Observer critic, and R. C. Smith, Durham Herald-Sun critic, will conduct the seminar "Motion Picture Reviewing and Criticism" from 11:15 a.m.-12:45 p.m.

The final seminar is "Book Reviewing and Criticism" in Great Hall, featuring Yardley, Betty Hodges of the Durham Herald-Sun, Sam Summerlin of the New York Times and Charles Truehart of the Greensboro Daily News.

ACC considers adding 8th team - Georgia Tech

ATLANTA (UPI) — Georgia Tech which spent 14 years as a major independent after withdrawing from the Southeastern Conference, decided Thursday to seek membership in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The Tech athletic board voted unanimously at a closed meeting to apply to the ACC for affiliation after listening to a presentation on joining the league from Tech Athletic Director Doug Weaver, a prime mover in seeking conference ties.

A Tech spokesman said the ACC Executive Committee would meet in Atlanta with Tech representatives Monday and at that time, the formal conditions of membership were expected to be adopted.

The conference now includes Clemson, Duke, Maryland, North Carolina, North Carolina State, Virginia and Wake Forest. Sponsorship by three of those would be necessary with five favorable votes needed for admission.

Acceptance of Tech could possibly be beneficial to the conference, however, in recruiting and image with Atlanta ranking as the 16th largest television market. Tech is also anxious to improve crowds at its 58,000-seat football stadium.

The Yellow Jackets could become a member by May 16, the last day of the ACC's annual conference in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

The Tech decision has been expected although Weaver and school President Dr. Joseph Pettit dodged verbal commitments.

The Yellow Jackets are members of the Metro Seven Conference now but that includes only basketball and a few other sports. None of the Metro Seven schools play football.

Tech made a pitch last fall to re-enter the Southeastern Conference, which is more geographically suited for Atlanta, but was turned down.

Push, shove, crunch

It looks a lot like the American game of football, and it's every bit as rough. Perhaps even rougher. Folks in Chapel Hill got a look at just how treacherous the game of rugby is Thursday afternoon on Fetzler Field when the High Wycombe Rugby Club of England battled a team of players from North Carolina. High Wycombe, in striped shirts, began this play from a scrum, a formation where forwards from both teams crouch together with locked arms and with the two front rows of each team meeting head to head. The English team won the game. Staff photo by Scott Johnston.

