

Vorster accepts U.S. plan for black rule in Namibia

By United Press International

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — Prime Minister John Vorster accepted a U.S.-backed plan for black rule in Namibia paving the way for an end to 58 years of South African rule in the disputed territory. The decision, announced in Parliament, ends a year of intensive negotiations on Namibia, formerly South West Africa.

NEWS BRIEFS

Vorster's acceptance placed the onus for a similar response upon the militant, Soviet-backed guerrilla movement operating in Namibia, the South West Africa Peoples Organization.

"If the international community truly wants peace in the territory, the way is now completely open to achieve it," Vorster said. He said the decision could lead to independence by "the end of this year."

In Washington, Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs Richard Moose called Vorster's announcement "an extraordinarily statesmanlike and constructive step."

Vorster said, however, that South African troops will remain in Namibia "until there was a complete cessation of hostilities."

Soviets: bomb inhuman

MOSCOW — President Leonid Brezhnev, reacting to President Carter's decision to deter production of the neutron bomb, said Tuesday both nations should renounce the "inhuman" weapon. Carter rejected the Soviet leader's statement as having "no significance."

Brezhnev also held out hopes that a "sensible and realistic compromise" could be reached in the Strategic Arms Limitations Treaty talks and sounded a generally positive note on U.S.-Soviet relations.

Brezhnev said Carter's decision earlier this month to delay production of the neutron bomb was a "half-measure" and called on Washington to sign an agreement with Moscow under which neither superpower would produce the weapon. The Soviets are believed to be several years away from developing the bomb themselves.

Hours later, Carter told a news conference in Washington that the neutron bomb, a low-yield nuclear weapon which kills people but leaves buildings intact, was of value to the West only in the event of a massive Soviet tank invasion of Europe. He said the Soviet Union had no use for the weapon and Brezhnev "knows this."

"Mr. Brezhnev's statement has no significance at all," Carter said.

Civil War is over

WASHINGTON — Georgia Gov. George Busbee told Northern and Midwestern members of Congress Tuesday "the South is ready to tone down this North-South nonsense" and cooperate in solving national problems.

Earlier in the day, Busbee said essentially the same thing at a gathering of fellow Southerners, but suggested the South should

John Vorster

"create some regionalism to help ourselves."

The governor appeared at the two regional meetings in his capacity as head of the Southern Growth Policies Board, a 13-state economic development group.

At a session attended by two other Southern governors and six members of Congress from the region, Busbee said: "We're not trying to pass any formulas to help the South. We're trying to do what's right for the nation but we don't want to be discriminated against."

Then, speaking by invitation at a meeting of the Northeast-Midwest Economic Advancement Coalition, Busbee said: "We are ready to pool our resources if possible with those of the Northeast, North Central, Midwest and Western regions in order to seek national solutions to our common problems, but national solutions that are flexible enough to meet our respective regional needs."

Senate candidates still battling

From staff and wire reports

Lawrence Davis said he wants to improve government programs for senior citizens while John Ingram continued his attack on what he claims are special interest candidates in the race for the Democratic Senate nomination Tuesday, one week from election day.

Luther Hodges said President Carter's energy bill should be passed and McNeill Smith, another major candidate in the race, said some programs now paid from social security receipts should be moved outside of the social security program.

Davis, delivering a campaign speech to the Greensboro chapter of the American Association of Retired People, said "skyrocketing costs of retirement benefits and health services have recently begun to threaten the security of our older citizens."

Davis said controlling inflation would help shore up the social security system and program administration should be streamlined. He also said community services should be provided that will prevent unnecessary hospitalization or placement in nursing homes.

Davis said the various programs for the elderly are scattered among several agencies. He said a single office should coordinate the programs and that could reduce administrative costs by 50 percent.

Ingram, speaking to reporters at an airport press conference in Charlotte, predicted he will win the nomination if the news media will point out what he said were the special interest connections of the others in the race.

"North Carolina cannot afford a special interest United States senator," Ingram said. "Voting for a big money-banking-insurance candidate is like voting to let the fox guard the chicken house."

Ingram didn't mention Luther Hodges by name, but referred to him as "the only banking candidate" and said the news media should closely examine financial disclosure statements by the candidates and let the people know their special interest connections.

Planning to spend only $30,000 in his campaign, Ingram said when "one of the special interest candidates tells you what he is going to do for inflation, taxes and energy, ask him what he has done for the people." Ingram cited his record as state insurance commissioner, saying he had saved consumers almost $33 million with reductions in credit life insurance rates. Hodges campaigned in the Piedmont area in a motor home and then headed for eastern North Carolina.

"President Carter's energy bill needs to be passed," he said. "It's not perfect, but it's a baby step forward. We need to show the world that we are serious about facing our energy problem and that we intend to solve it."

Smith, replying to a campaign questionnaire, said Medicare costs should be pulled out of the retirement and disability portions of the social security system. The Medicare operation, he said, "should be funded out of general revenues, as are Medicaid and other medical programs."

William Griffin, one of four lesser-known candidates in the primary, said he wants to slow the flow of textile dollars to overseas machinery makers.

"I'm for looking out for the American first," Griffin said in remarks taped for broadcast at 7 p.m. today over the UNC Television Network.

AAD attempts to be formally recognized

By ANNETTE FULLER Staff Writer

The Association of Apartment Dwellers, a Student Government-sponsored group for apartment-dwelling students, should be a reality next fall.

"We will be asking Dean (Frederic) Schroeder (director of student activities) to give us formal recognition as a group," Lyndon Fuller, co-organizer of the AAD said. "This will include us getting funds which will be used primarily to print apartment directories."

At fall registration students who fill out green locator cards will see a question asking apartment dwellers if they would like to be involved in the AAD.

"A lot of the students move out to apartments to get away from campus life," Fuller said. "We will not be interfering with them, but those that check yes on their locator card will be contacted for activities that will help them get to know other people in their apartment complex."

In the fall, the AAD will compile a directory of students living in apartments.

"The Student Locator will hold the locator cards for two weeks after registration, and then we will get them and work out a directory," Fuller said.

AAD is an organization started by the administration of Bill Moss, former student body president. Fuller worked on the AAD then. Student Body President Jim Phillips has appointed Cary Ulman to help lead the organization.

"We (AAD) will stay in Suite C (Student Government) until we can get on our feet in the fall," Fuller said. "Then, we will move out and set up an organization like the Resident Hall Association with representatives and meetings."

The AAD expects to get representatives from the various apartment complexes either through voting or appointment. After the representatives are chosen, AAD will hold meetings either weekly or bi-weekly to discuss problems of apartment life and to plan activities within the complexes like mixers, backgammon tournaments and volleyball games.

"We also hope to help the junior transfers who almost never live on campus."

Mountaineering #4. THE OPTIMUM MOMENT.

Mountaineering<sup>1</sup> is a skill of timing as well as technique. The wrong moment, like the wrong method, marks the gap between amateur and aficionado. So the key to successful mountaineering is to choose the occasions wisely and well. When, then, is it appropriate to slowly quaff the smooth, refreshing mountains of Busch Beer?

Celebrations, of course, are both expected and excellent opportunities to test your mountaineering mettle. Indeed, on major holidays it is virtually mandatory to do so. Imagine ushering in the fiscal new year or commemorating Calvin C. Coolidge's birthday or throwing caution to the wind during Take-A-Sorghum-To-Lunch-Week without the benefit of Busch. A disturbing prospect at best.

On the other hand, not every event need be as significant as those outlined above.

pleasures of mountaineering run the risk of being labeled social climbers. But such cheap shots are to be ignored. They are the work of cynics, nay-sayers and chronic malcontents.

Similarly, the ambience of an athletic afternoon (e.g. The Big Game) is another ideal moment. Downing the mountains elevates the morale of the fan and, hence, the team. Therefore, if you care at all about the outcome, it is your duty to mountaineer.

When should one not enjoy the invigoration of the mountains? Here, you'll be happy to learn, the list is much briefer.

Mountaineering is considered declassé with dessert, improper during judicial proceedings and just plain foolish while crop dusting around power lines. Otherwise, as the hot-heads of the sixties used to say, "Seize the time!"

Small victories like exams passed, papers completed or classes attended are equally acceptable. Remember the mountaineer's motto: matriculation is celebration.

Interpersonal relationships are also meaningful times. There are few things finer than taking your companion in hand and heading for the mountains, transcending the hohum and hrum-drum in favor of a romantic R. & R. Naturally, couples who share the

<sup>1</sup>Mountaineering is the science and art of drinking Busch. The term originates due to the snowy, icy peaks sported by the label outside and perpetuates due to the cold, naturally refreshing taste inside. (cf. lessons 1, 2 and 3.)

2:20
4:40
7:00
9:20
ENDS THURS

WALT DISNEY'S
NOW IN STEREO
FANTASIA
Carolina Twin
He is...
THE CHOSEN

COMING SOON!

Now 7:00
9:00
RICHARD THOMAS & "September 30, 1955" PG

Now 7:15
9:15
HELD OVER! SATURDAY NIGHT FEVER... Catch it R

Now 7:30
9:30
Rabbit Test PG
RAM TRIPLE

Plaza 1
Held Over 3rd Big Week
Winner of 4 Academy Awards - Including - Best Picture Best Actress
SHOWS 2:30 4:15 6:00 7:45 9:30
WOODY ALLEN DIANE KEATON "ANNIE HALL" PG

Plaza 2
Now Showing
Academy Award Winner Best Actor Richard Dreyfuss
SHOWS 2:45 4:55 7:05 9:15
the GOODBYE GIRL PG

Plaza 3
Now Showing
Jokes My Folks Never Told Me Rated R
SHOWS 3 5 7 9

Varsity
Now Showing
Original, alive and ribaldly funny... outrageous!
SHOWS 3:25 5:20 7:15 9:10