AWS seeks to gain moderate reputation

By MARTHA WAGGNER
Staff Writer

Although some people may believe the Association for Women Student Representatives is a small group, they are not aware of the true size of the group as it has grown tremendously. Its current membership is approximately 100 people, according to President Linda D. Rettig. New members are always accepted, with the membership encompassing a wide range of people, including men, minority members, and radical feminists.

Margaret Borchmann, vice chairman of AWS, said the group is dedicated to ensuring that everyone is represented regardless of sex, race, or sexuality. "We are a Women's Human Rights Movement, and everyone is equal," she said.

One of the ways AWS is planning to hold a Women's Human Rights Symposium this fall. The group is also planning to make contact with people who can give them more material on what the group can do to advance women's causes from the health care industry.

"If AWS currently is working with women in Law to sponsor 'Discrimination and the Law," the symposium would take place at 5 p.m. today.

Welfare speaker set

Margaret Borchmann, a policy analyst at the Office of Income Security Policy of the Department of Health and Human Services in Washington, D.C., will address Welfare Reform at noon Monday in BL 322 Hamilton Hall.

Undergraduate students are invited to attend the lecture with Borchmann at 11 a.m. in 123 Hamilton. The speech is sponsored by the Interdisciplinary Studies Curriculum.

Borchmann's speech will include information on past and future welfare reform, and the implications of the legislation that was debated, MacFar

Arab leaders opposing Camp David agreement

By ALAN T. KEAN

The Arab League, composed of 22 Arab states, declared its opposition to the Camp David Agreement. The league said the agreement would lead to a "one-state solution" for the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

"We are deeply concerned about the Camp David Agreement," said Nabil al-Khouri, the league's secretary-general. "We believe that the agreement will lead to a one-state solution, which is unacceptable to the Arab nation.

The league said it would not recognize the Camp David Agreement until it is reviewed by the Arab League's council of ministers.

"We demand that the Camp David Agreement be reviewed by the Arab League's council of ministers before it is implemented," al-Khouri said.

The Arab League also called for an international conference to be held in the near future to discuss the future of the Middle East.

"We demand that an international conference be held in the near future to discuss the future of the Middle East," al-Khouri said.

In a separate statement, the Arab League said it would not recognize the Camp David Agreement until it is reviewed by the Arab League's council of ministers.

"We demand that the Camp David Agreement be reviewed by the Arab League's council of ministers before it is implemented," al-Khouri said.

The Arab League also called for an international conference to be held in the near future to discuss the future of the Middle East.

"We demand that an international conference be held in the near future to discuss the future of the Middle East," al-Khouri said.

In a separate statement, the Arab League said it would not recognize the Camp David Agreement until it is reviewed by the Arab League's council of ministers.

"We demand that the Camp David Agreement be reviewed by the Arab League's council of ministers before it is implemented," al-Khouri said.

The Arab League also called for an international conference to be held in the near future to discuss the future of the Middle East.

"We demand that an international conference be held in the near future to discuss the future of the Middle East," al-Khouri said.

In a separate statement, the Arab League said it would not recognize the Camp David Agreement until it is reviewed by the Arab League's council of ministers.

"We demand that the Camp David Agreement be reviewed by the Arab League's council of ministers before it is implemented," al-Khouri said.

The Arab League also called for an international conference to be held in the near future to discuss the future of the Middle East.

"We demand that an international conference be held in the near future to discuss the future of the Middle East," al-Khouri said.

In a separate statement, the Arab League said it would not recognize the Camp David Agreement until it is reviewed by the Arab League's council of ministers.

"We demand that the Camp David Agreement be reviewed by the Arab League's council of ministers before it is implemented," al-Khouri said.

The Arab League also called for an international conference to be held in the near future to discuss the future of the Middle East.

"We demand that an international conference be held in the near future to discuss the future of the Middle East," al-Khouri said.

In a separate statement, the Arab League said it would not recognize the Camp David Agreement until it is reviewed by the Arab League's council of ministers.

"We demand that the Camp David Agreement be reviewed by the Arab League's council of ministers before it is implemented," al-Khouri said.

The Arab League also called for an international conference to be held in the near future to discuss the future of the Middle East.

"We demand that an international conference be held in the near future to discuss the future of the Middle East," al-Khouri said.