Frozen corpse found after 6 years

JAMESTOWN (AP)—Movers clearing an uninhabited apartment of furniture and appliances Wednesday followed a strange odor to a freezer and found the body of a woman who authorities say may have been frozen there six years ago.

The unidentified corpse was discovered in an apartment rented by a tenant who apparently never moved in and who paid the rent by mail, Guilford County police detectives said. The rent stopped coming, and the apartment was being cleared as part of an eviction proceeding.

Separated twins face uphill fight

DURHAM (AP)—Siamese twins Sonya and Tonya Bain were separated Thursday by a team of surgeons at the Duke University Medical Center, but doctors said the infants were in unstable condition and faced an uphill fight.

Doctors had said earlier there was a 90 percent chance that at least one of the infants, joined from the chest to the navel at birth, would not survive.

A team of four surgeons and five resident doctors separated the twins at 2:40 p.m. after taking more than two hours to divide their shared liver and then their hearts, which were connected at birth.

U.S. probes Rockingham sheriff

WENTWORTH (AP)—Rockingham County officials say federal authorities are probing the sheriff's office to determine whether all fines and court fees collected by deputies have been turned over to the county treasury.

County finance officer Glenn Powell said the FBI has subpoenaed financial records kept by the sheriff's office in 1976 and 1977 in the probe, which centers around Sheriff Carl Axsom.

In addition, an Internal Revenue Service agent questioned Axsom and Deputy Leatruic Early on Wednesday about the records obtained by the FBI and similar records for this year. Early has worked for Axsom all the 24 years he has been in office and keeps the financial records.

No indictments have resulted from the probe, and authorities have said that the FBI is not ready to present its evidence to a grand jury. The FBI is seeking to crack a network of prostitution and gambling houses along major trucking routes extending from Danville, Va.

Two Americans share Nobel for medicine

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Two Americans and a Swiss won the Nobel Prize for medicine Thursday for their discovery of a method for breaking apart genetic material that may eventually unblock some of the mysteries of cancer and hereditary diseases.

The winners, chosen by the Nobel Committee of Sweden's Karolinska Institute of Medicine, are microbiologists Daniel Nathans and Hamilton Smith of Johns Hopkins University Medical School in Baltimore and Werner Arber of the University of Basel, Switzerland. The three, who will share the $165,000 award, were chosen from among 205 candidates.

The awards put the United States well on the way to dominating the Nobel Prize list this year. The only other award announced so far, for literature, went to Yiddish author Isaac Bashevis Singer, a New Yorker.

House signals 'yes' to GOP tax bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Over the objections of Democratic leaders, the House unexpectedly embraced on Thursday a Republican-backed effort to slash federal income taxes in 1980 and beyond.

By a 268-135 vote, the House told its tax bill negotiators it favored the long-term tax cut concept contained in a Senate proposal sponsored by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and supported by Republicans.

That plan would expand the 1979 tax cut bill to include $164.5 billion in additional reductions in 1980 through 1983. The cuts are conditioned on holding down government spending and balancing the federal budget during that period.

The fourth annual Tractor Pull will be held Wednesday in the grandstands.

No state fair would be complete without the drawing card which originally brought farmers from every county in the state to Raleigh—the livestock exhibits. Cattle, pigs, sheep and poultry will be housed in tents lining the midway.

Egypt, Israel begin treaty talks on Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP)—Egypt and Israel began negotiations Thursday to draw up a peace treaty that President Carter said ultimately must be broadened to include all Arab parties to the Middle East conflict.

"The United States is committed, without reservation, to seeing this process through until each party is at peace with all the others," Carter said at an opening ceremony at the White House.

Delegates from the two countries then walked side by side across Pennsylvania Avenue to Blair House where, in a second-floor library, they started to explore terms for a treaty between the Jewish state and the most populous of its Arab neighbors.

At the first session, lasting 15 minutes, working procedures were established for the talks, which are expected to last for up to two weeks.

Then Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and other U.S. officials met with the Israeli delegation. After lunch, a separate

U.S.-Egyptian meeting was set up, with the three sides getting together again in late afternoon.

The hope is that a treaty can be completed within two months. An even more optimistic target is Nov. 19, the first anniversary of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's breakthrough visit to Jerusalem.

The negotiations, growing out of last month's Camp David accords, deal with details of Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai Desert, security arrangements and an exchange of ambassadors.

Much of the Arab world has condemned Sadat for what could turn out to be a separate peace with Israel. Carter also has felt the sting of criticism.

In his welcoming remarks, the president therefore underscored a commitment to a comprehensive settlement and to the welfare of Palestinian Arabs living under Israeli control.

The goal, Carter said, is "to make peace and dignity a reality for all the people of the Middle East." He invited Jordan, and the Palestinians living on the West Bank of the Jordan River and in Gaza to join the peace process.

The alternative, Carter said, "is drift, stalemate, eternal enmity and perhaps even another war."

Moshe Dayan, the Israeli foreign minister, stood to the president's right, facing rows of Israeli, Egyptian and American officials and diplomats who have been involved in the long search for a settlement.

To Carter's left in the East Room stood Kamal Hassan Ali, the new Egyptian defense minister in Sadat's reshuffled government. Behind them were the American, Israeli, Egyptian and United Nations flags.

Dayan, speaking briefly, said Israel hopes the way is now clear for concluding a peace treaty. There were no apparent political messages in the former general's remarks.

But Ali underscored need for "a comprehensive peace which ensures the fulfillment of the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people and enables them to play a constructive role in a peaceful Middle East."

He said the 40 million Egyptian people hope the two frameworks constructed at Camp David - one setting up peace with Israel and the other negotiations over the future of the West Bank and Gaza - "will serve as a solid foundation for a comprehensive peace to be built in good faith by all parties."

By maintaining a conspicuous U.S. role and holding the Egyptian-Israeli peace talks in Washington, the administration intends to demonstrate an interest in ending the Mideast conflict on all fronts.

Specifically, it would like to draw Jordan and Palestinian Arabs into negotiations with Egypt and Israel to complete the framework for the West Bank and Gaza. On this point, the administration so far has not succeeded.

How would Einstein theorize about O'Keefe?

Although the O'Keefe formula is secret, certain factors in the equation are well known:

1. O'Keefe has a hearty, full-bodied flavor.
2. It is smooth and easy going down.
3. Its head commands respect.

Our theory is that Einstein would have concluded: It's too good to gulp. Relatively speaking, of course.
