Publishers Clearinghouse officials they would use part of the money to send their kids to college. Mr. Dermer said.

The Dermers sent in a postcard concerning the sweepstakes in January. A computer drew their number and they received a phone call in August informing them that they had won.

When the phone call came, Mrs. Dermer recalls she told her son. "Now don't get excited. It's probably just a clock radio."

"It's been hard to believe that we won," Mr. Dermer said. "We've never won anything before."

"It's a good feeling not to have to worry about inflation," he said, adding that he paid cash for a new car. "My friends say I've become more confident. What is funny about it is that we didn't order any magazines."

said. "We'll also look at combinations of land where before we only wanted one large tract, and we'll examine sites that before we thought were unavailable."

"For example, we might try to acquire some University land or land near a subdivision. There is a large tract of 600 acres of University land right next to the Tripp property," he said.

News in Brief

Dr. X acquitted, Farber freed

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP)—Dr. Mario Jascalevich was found not guilty Tuesday of killing three hospital patients in the mid-1960s, while New York Times reporter Myron Farber was freed after spending 40 days in jail for refusing to give up his notes on the case.

The jury that acquitted Jascalevich deliberated for only about two hours over two days after a 34-week trial. He had been accused of giving the patients fatal doses of curare, a muscle relaxant.

In 1976, Farber wrote about the deaths in which Jascalevich was later charged, referring not to Jascalevich but to a "Dr. X."

The jailing to Farber and leveling of $285,000 in fines against The Times focused nationwide attention on the conflict between the rights to a free press and a fair trial. The case may still be taken up by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Privette may challenge liquor law

GREENSBORO (AP)—The Rev. Coy Privette, a leading opponent of liquor by the drink, said Monday he may challenge the constitutionality of elections which give the go-ahead for mixed-drink sales.

Privette said court action challenging the state law authorizing communities with ABC stores to call elections on liquor by the drink probably will be taken because it doesn't allow any absentee ballots in these elections.

Iran wants arms purchase cuts

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Iran wants to make drastic cuts in arms purchases from the United States, including cancellation of a $1.2 billion aerial spying system that has annoyed neighboring Russia, Tehran newspapers reported Tuesday.

The newspapers said U.S. and Iranian negotiators met behind closed doors to discuss the cutbacks, which reportedly would save the country $7 billion over the next five years.

Hunt plans joint-growth policy

ASHEVILLE (AP)—Gov. Jim Hunt said Wednesday his administration plans to carry out its balanced growth policy on an interim basis through a partnership with local government.

Hunt said he has accepted the recommendations of the Local Government Advocacy Council, which includes county and municipal officials, on defining the boundaries of the state's multi-county planning regions.

Carter receives SALT report

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter received a report Tuesday night on the latest round of strategic arms negotiations from Secretary of State Cyrus Vance without making a final judgment on how to proceed in the drive for a treaty.

But Vance, in giving this account to a group of reporters outside the White House, said there would be further discussions with the Soviets in one form or another.

Eilberg indicted for conflict of interest

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., was indicted Tuesday on a conflict of interest charge by a federal grand jury which said he unlawfully received compensation for helping a Philadelphia hospital obtain a $14.5 million federal grant.

The indictment stemmed from an investigation first launched by former Republican U.S. Attorney David Marston, who was fired by President Carter at Eilberg's request. The Marston firing fueled a major controversy because Carter had promised during his campaign that U.S. attorneys would be free from politics.

Cities extend bids for 1980 GOP meet

WASHINGTON (AP)—Kansas City asked the Republican Party for "Many Happy Returns" and Minneapolis-St. Paul and Dallas both said their facilities are unsurpassed in the nation as they bid Tuesday for the 1980 GOP national convention.

Closing out two days of hearings by the party convention site selection committee, Dallas City Councilmember Steve Bartlett said Dallas has one of the newest and most flexible convention centers in the nation.

Earlier Tuesday, formal presentations were made by Kansas City, scene of the 1976 GOP convention, and Minneapolis-St. Paul, New Orleans, Detroit and Miami Beach gave their pitches Monday.

Funding UNC system to aid black schools

By JIM HUMMEL
Staff Writer

A major increase in funding for renovation on the 16-campus UNC system would strengthen its five predominantly black schools, said Raymond Dawson, University vice president for academic affairs.

Dawson's comments came in response to statements made last Friday by Eddie Knox, State Advisory Budget Commission chairperson that the black colleges should be upgraded or shut down.

"A study was made over the summer of the physical plant of each of the five black schools," Dawson said. "The report was filed with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. There are areas that need to be corrected. We feel the heart of the matter is to strengthen each school rather than discontinue them. We need these schools and our objective is to keep them open."

Dawson pointed to budget figures indicating a request from the General Assembly for almost $35 million over the 1979-81 biennium to be used for renovation and overall maintenance.

"In comparison to previous budgets, we have made large requests for major renovation," Dawson said. "Outside of a $3 million appropriation last July for a new medical building there was only $3 million for the last biennium, 1977-1979."

UNC President William C. Friday agreed with Dawson that closing the schools is not the answer. "My observation would be not to advocate either the merging or closing of any of the schools," Friday said. "Opportunities for education must be kept open until as many people as possible in the 18-22 age group are being educated."

Dawson also pointed out that there are certain buildings on the various campuses that will not be helped by the additional money. "You have to keep in mind that dormitories cannot be touched by taxpayers' money," Dawson said. "These are set up separately and are covered by rent."

Knox's remarks about the black schools came at a meeting last week in which the total budget for the University system was presented before the Advisory Budget Commission. Knox said he had visited Winston-Salem State University and came away "a little depressed."

"I don't think it's fair to continue to put money into these schools and let them die at the same time," he said.

Friday countered Knox's statements, saying, "I don't think we can close a traditionally black institution in North Carolina for a long time. Our only choice is how fast we can upgrade these schools."

After the meeting, Friday said he thought Knox's comments were constructive and that Knox was concerned about the welfare of the traditionally black schools.

Out of the money requested in the budget, Winston-Salem State University stands to get about $12 million for continuing operations over the biennium 1979-81. The University is seeking $1.6 million specifically for further desegregation and enhancement.

Albert Whiting, chancellor of North Carolina Central University in Durham said, "I am encouraged by the support which has been forthcoming by the general administration and I hope that support will continue to be. We've had good support, but we still need more."

For the record

A DTH editorial incorrectly reported Monday that the Carolina Gay Association received a Student Government appropriation of $1,165. CGA's total budget was $1,165; its Student Government appropriation was $850.

What would Socrates think of O'Keefe?

If you question long enough and deep enough, certain truths about O'Keefe become evident. It has a hearty, full-bodied flavor. It is smooth and easy going down. And, the quality of its head is fact rather than philosophical conjecture. We think there's one truth about O'Keefe that Socrates would not question: It's too good to gulp. As any rational man can taste.
