

Bradley's defense, Wiel's points highlight Blue-White

By BILL FIELDS
Staff Writer

If any of the fans in Carmichael Auditorium Saturday for the annual Blue-White basketball game expected to see the unexpected, they got what they came for.

In an aggressive, scrappy exhibition among Tar Heels, Randy Wiel provided the unexpected, scoring 24 points in 31 minutes of playing time to lead the White team to a 78-67 win over the Blues.

The fans did not expect Mike O'Koren, the Tar Heels' pre-season All-American, to have such a dismal day from the floor. O'Koren, hampered by a sprained wrist, went five for 14 and scored 15 points.

On the other hand, the Blue-White game provided some of the ordinary.

Dudley Bradley, playing for the winners, went six for 10 from the field and scored 13 points, but it was his defense which brought raves from a near-capacity crowd and plaudits from Coach Dean Smith.

Bradley tallied seven assists and had eight steals, once stealing a ball at mid-court then dribbling down and slamming it to the delight of the crowd.

"Bradley would have been the MVP in this game," Smith said of the Edgewood, Md., senior. "Bradley was just outstanding. He's such a smart player, has so much savvy."

Smith said the Blue-White game was typical of most and, as usual, found both good and bad in his team's performance. "We lost the ball too much. I thought the game would be closer. We could have selected the teams better," Smith said. "There at the end of the game I don't think we looked in all that good a condition," he said.

The White team, in addition to Wiel, Bradley and O'Koren, started Ged Doughton and Jeff Wolf. Doughton played 15 minutes with a sprained ankle which he injured last week. He said after the game it was sore but had not been injured.

Freshman Jimmy Black saw 31 minutes of action on the White team and scored 12 points. With about three minutes remaining the White team went into the four corners offense and Black got his chance in the middle. Junior Dave Colescott stole the ball from him on one occasion, but the freshman blocked Colescott's layup attempt on the breakaway. John Virgil paced the Blues with 19 points, most of them coming on jump shots from the 13-15 foot range. Al Wood and Rich Yonaker, shot less than 50 percent and scored 13 each, and Colescott scored 12.

Until around the 10-minute mark of the first half the Whites were unable to break open a large lead, but then led by as many as eight before three straight baskets from Virgil cut the White's halftime lead to 36-32.

Wiel and Black helped the Whites open up their lead to as many as 14 points with 11 minutes left, then a Virgil three-point play with 8:53 left cut the margin to 61-54.

Players had mixed reactions after the game. "I think I played pretty good offensively," Wiel said. "I was more worried about guarding John Virgil than about scoring," Wiel said he thought he succeeded in keeping Virgil away from the basket, which was his primary goal. "You can't let him inside on you."

O'Koren, meanwhile, was not pleased with his game. "I'm just very disappointed with my performance," he said.

Wolf said the aggressive nature of the scrimmage was indicative of the pre-season practices.

"Practice has been more physical this year than any other time since I've been here," he said. "Getting to play in front of a crowd breaks up the pre-season practice."

Freshman Chris Brust was the only Tar Heel who didn't play. Smith said he hasn't yet received the doctor's go-ahead to start practicing.

Carolina wrestlers win in five weight classes

By GEORGE BENEDICT
Staff Writer

The UNC wrestling team was not a very gracious host this weekend at its Carolina Invitational Wrestling Tournament. Tar Heel wrestlers won five of 10 weight classes.

Leading the UNC squad was C.D. Mock, voted by the coaches as the tournament's Most Outstanding Wrestler. Mock won the 126-pound weight class by decisioning Ike Anderson of Appalachian State in the finals, 5-2. Anderson's only points came on escapes.

Mock was joined by four other Carolina wrestlers as individual winners in the tournament. Sophomore Bob Monaghan, and seniors Dave Juergens, Mike Benzel and Dean Brior all had winning decisions in the finals.

At 118 pounds, Monaghan had to come from behind to take a 6-5 decision over fellow UNC wrestler Dave Cooke in the finals. All of Monaghan's points came in the third and final period.

Juergens had an easy time in his finals match at 150 pounds. He scored a 17-5 decision over Tim Davidson of Old Dominion.

Wrestling at 167, Benzel won a close 3-2 decision in his finals match. He defeated John Biller of Appalachian State. Brior also had a close final at 177. Brior held off a late charge by Vic Northrup of East Carolina to take a 5-3 decision.

Besides Cooke, the only Carolina defeat in the finals was in the 158-pound class. Junior Carter Mario was upset by Steve Goode of East Carolina 4-3.

Head coach Bill Lam said he was disappointed with Mario's defeat. "Mario's a good kid and a good wrestler," he said. Before the tournament Lam had named Mario as one of three possible All-American candidates on the squad.

Though a team championship was not awarded, UNC won the most individual titles. Georgia won two individual championships, and Old Dominion, N.C. State and East Carolina each had one individual winner.

Next weekend UNC also will be in tournament competition. The Tar Heels will wrestle in the prestigious Southern Open in Chattanooga, Tenn. Lam called this a tough tournament for Carolina.

Other schools participating include Oklahoma State and Michigan, both with strong wrestling teams.

From that tournament, UNC will go directly to Clemson, S.C., to meet the Tigers.

sixth touchdown of the year. Bernie Menapace's interception and 32-yard return set up Sharpe for a seven-yard run to make it 21-6.

Sharpe finished with 100 yards on nine carries and completed six of 11 passes for 82 yards. Lawrence spun and swerved for 131 yards and a touchdown on 25 carries. It was enough for Bestwick, who's team is now 2-8.

"Amos Lawrence is the best running back I've ever seen," said Bestwick, who saw Lawrence gain 286 yards against him last year. "He's better than Dorsett—all of them."

Crum praised Lawrence for his faking which allowed the other backs like Doug Paschal (51 yards) to get loose.

"He set up our other backs a lot of times by faking into the line and taking some punishment," Crum said. "He'd go inside and set up the outside."

Joyce and Harold got a kick out of the squirming and digging Lawrence and the rest too, like Chuck Sharpe's 66-yard option run, Donnell Thompson's sack, interceptions by Francis Winters and Steve Streater. They stayed till the end as Harold counted with the UNC students, "One, two, three" up to 38.

"They're not used to having their team score so much, are they?" Joyce said.

Duke rated first, Carolina No. 16

The Duke Blue Devils, last year's NCAA runners-up, have been picked by the Associated Press as the nation's No. 1 college basketball team. Duke got 38 first-place votes to outpoint second-place UCLA and third-place Notre Dame.

Carolina is rated 16th in the poll, while N.C. State is 12th. Last year's NCAA champion Kentucky lost four of its top six players and were picked to finish 11th. UCLA received eight first-place votes, Notre Dame one and Kansas one.

The overwhelming selection of Duke is based on the return of its 10 top players from last year's team and the addition of freshman Vince Taylor.

Tar Heel volleyball takes fourth in Southern Regional tournament

By NORMAN CANNADA
Staff Writer

The UNC women's volleyball team played well this weekend, finishing fourth in the AIAW Southern Regional II tournament in Durham.

"I thought we played better overall," tri-captain Mary Alice Abdalla said, comparing the regional tournament with the Heels' performance in the North Carolina AIAW last weekend.

On the first day of the tournament, the Tar Heels were in pool play, where they needed to win two of the three games to advance to the double-elimination championship round the next day.

Carolina faced Duke University in the first match of pool play. "We didn't have a super match against Duke but we still played pretty well," Abdalla said. The Tar Heels beat the Blue Devils for the fourth time this season 15-9, 9-15 and 15-7.

In their second match of the day, the Heels played what Abdalla called "our best match of the tournament" against a South Carolina team that had beaten them handily earlier in the season. The Tar Heels defeated the Gamecocks 17-15 and 15-10. "We passed the ball around a lot and really had a great match," Abdalla said.

Having already qualified for the championship round, Carolina played a very bad match against eventual champion, Northern Kentucky, losing 15-7 and 15-5. "We tried to get up for them, but we were physically drained from the South Carolina match," Abdalla said.

In the first match of the winner's bracket with archrival N.C. State, the Wolfpack wound up on top, beating the Heels 12-15, 15-5 and 18-6.

Carolina had problems in the rematch with Northern Kentucky, losing to the regional champions in two games 15-9 and 15-7, to be eliminated from competition.

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:

#5 PLAIN TALK FROM ARMCO ON FINDING A JOB:

How Government's spending can price you out of work
Inflation's danger is very real to you because it threatens your chances of landing a job. We say our government, by trying to give us everything we want right now, actually causes inflation. Here's why.

If government collects enough taxes to pay its extra bills as it goes, those taxes raise everybody's costs. You pay more yourself in taxes on your income. And companies pay more income tax and taxes on the materials and services they have to buy. So everybody's tax bill goes up.

But as we all know, government is spending money even faster than it can collect taxes. Everybody still pays, because government handles the deficit either by borrowing money or printing it. Borrowed money costs extra to pay the interest—and our national debt is now more than $550,000,000,000. Extra printed money simply dilutes the value of all the money in circulation. Either way, costs go up for everybody—and that's inflation. You'll pay $2.25 today to buy what a dollar bought only 20 years ago.

It now costs business $45,300 to create the average American job. (Armco's cost is $57,520.) Every time the cost of a job goes up, fewer jobs can be created with the same amount of money. Some companies can't earn enough extra money these days to create so many new jobs.

This threatens your chance of finding the job you want. 93,000,000 Americans now hold jobs. But you're among 17,000,000 more men and women who'll be looking for work in the next 10 years.

Plain talk about INFLATION

It's often fashionable to blame business and labor for higher prices. But that's taking a result and making it the cause. The more government tacks on additional charges, the higher costs have to go. And the more government spends tomorrow's money today, the more prices rise to cover the cost. Most of all, the more causes and tasks we insist our government take on, the more money government must spend to carry out our will. Our federal deficit is running at least $60,000,000,000 a year, now. That's a million and a third jobs we're missing, right there.

What can we do? We all have favorite programs we'd like our government to spend money on. But maybe spending only what we've paid in taxes is the most important service our government can provide us. If we could get government to set priorities—with every worthwhile goal in relation to all others—then maybe we could stop spending money so fast we create inflation.

Next time somebody says government ought to do something, think about the job you want when you finish school. Then ask that person why you should give up your job or buying power for somebody else's pet idea.
