

Three's not a crowd

It'll take the best of Ged Doughton, Dave Colescott and Jimmy Black to replace Phil Ford. And then some.

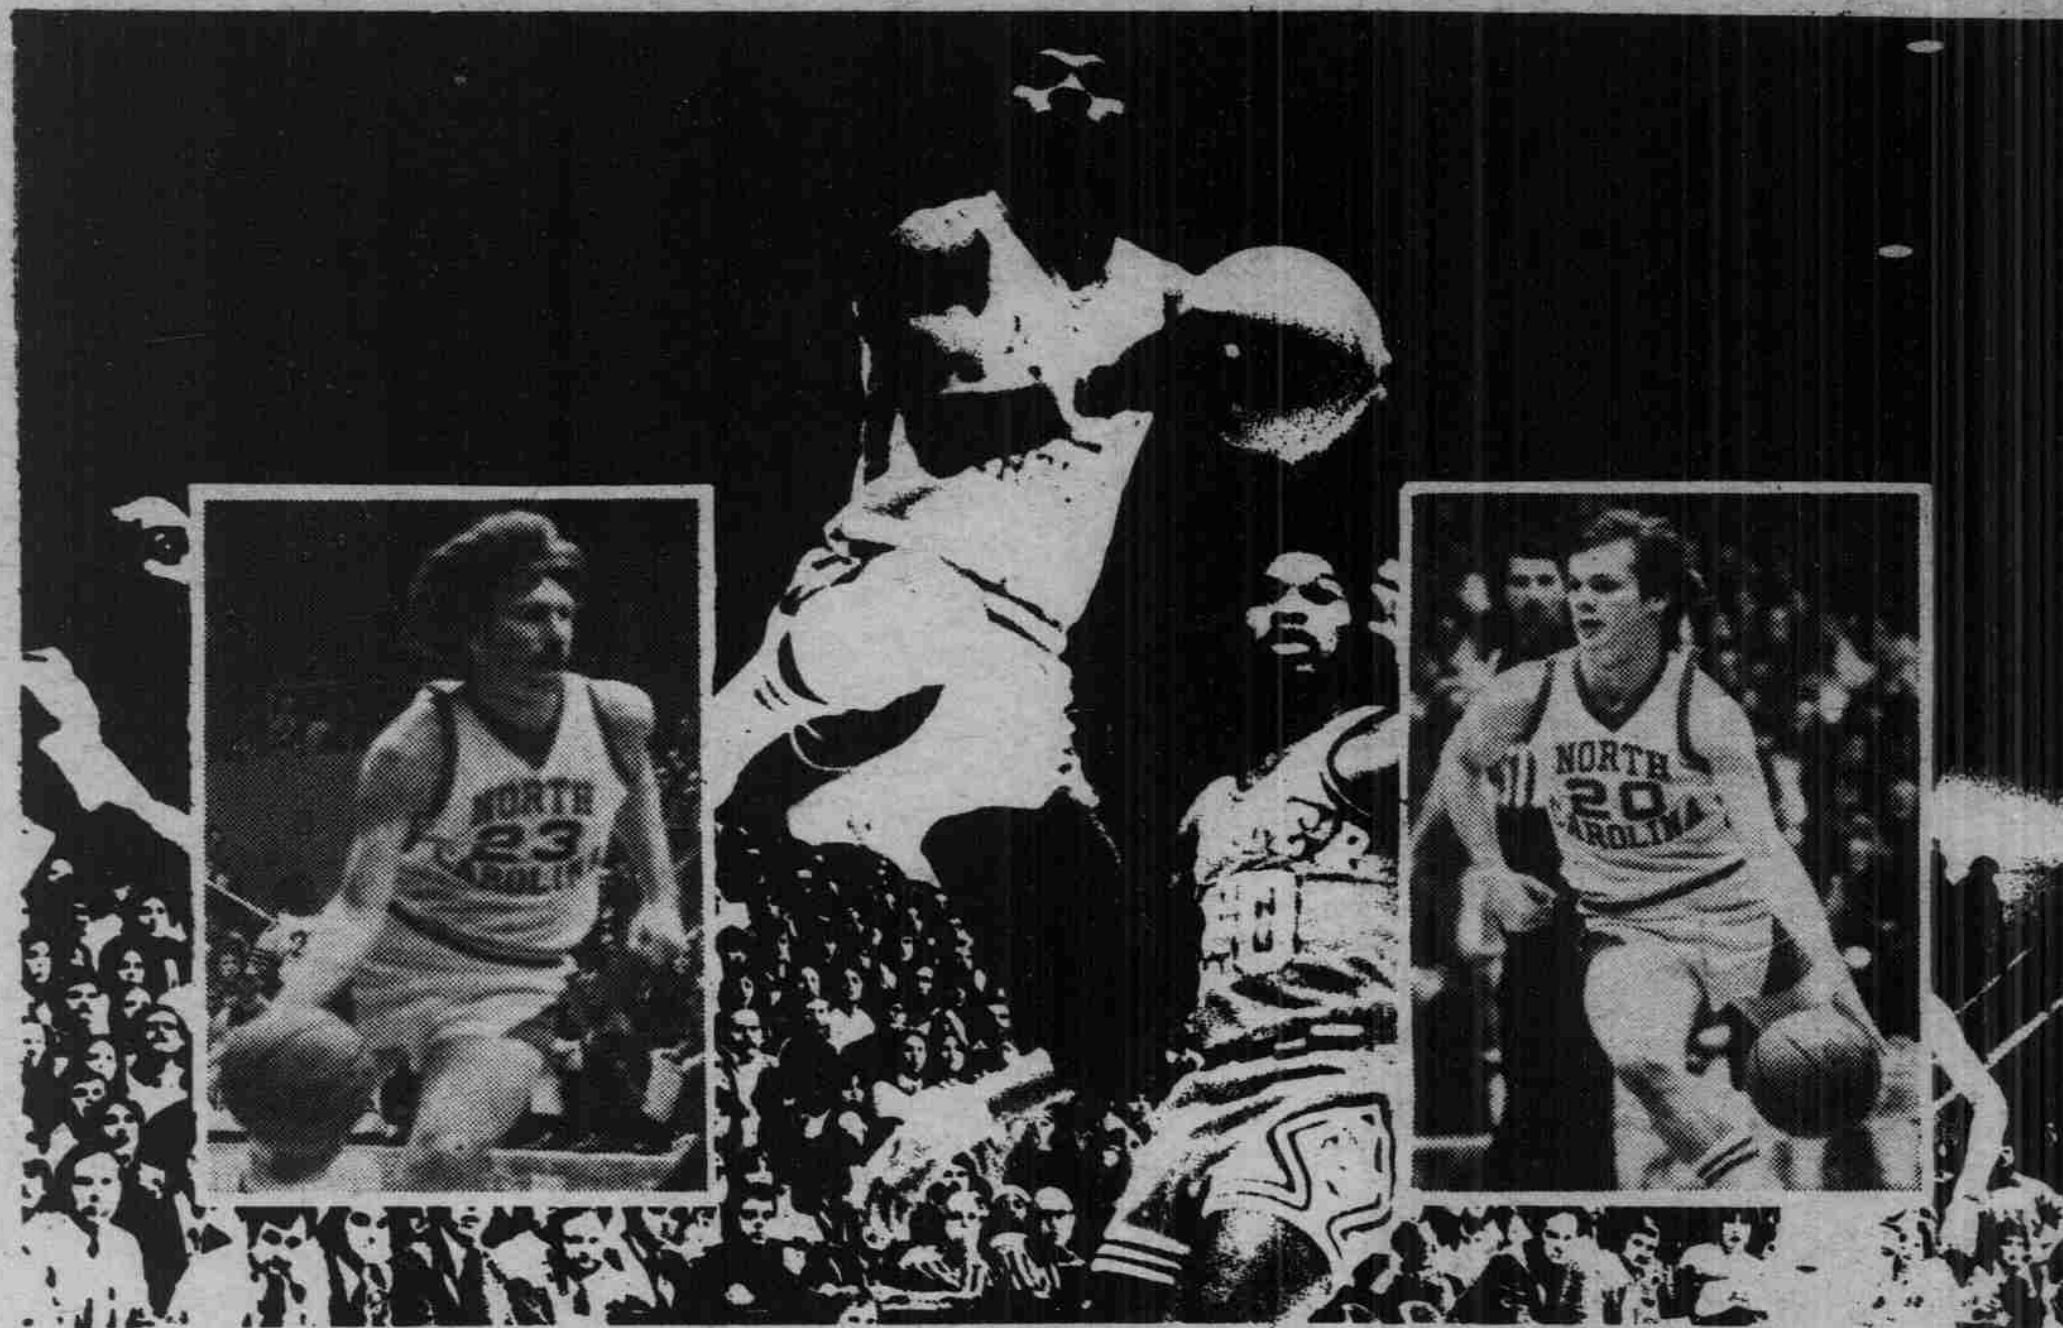

by BILL FIELDS

It would be difficult to get a Hollywood casting director to tackle this one: Replace someone who's been a leading man for four years? Forget it. He would cry before he came up with a replacement and scream in frustration when he couldn't find a look-alike.

Dean Smith must know the feeling. His leading man for the last four years is gone. The guy who executed things on a basketball court like he thought of 'em before James Naismith is gone.

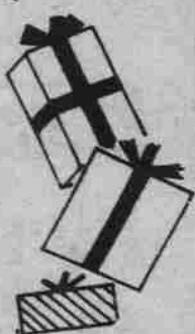

Phil Ford is gone. But the show must go on. Three people will try to keep the show on the road. Ged Doughton, Dave Colescott and Jimmy Black, the two understudies and a new face, are who the casting director has to work with. Their names are in the scripts.
