Search for deans continues

By MEALANIE SILL

Chancellor N. Ferebee Taylor has received recommendations from only one of the committees assigned to screen applicants for six vacant deanships within the University.

The other five committees still are reviewing applications, but expect to submit recommendations sometime this spring.

The deanship for the School of Education was left vacant last year by the death of Ira J. Gordon. Dean Robert G. Byrd of the School of Law, Dean Lyle V. Jones of the graduate school, Dean Christopher C. Fordham III of the School of Medicine, Dean John B. Adams of the School of Journalism and Dean Harvey B. Wagner of the School of Business Administration will end their five-year terms this year.

Taylor currently is reviewing the recommendations of the search committee for the School of Business Administration, which was headed by economics professor Vernon L. Bounds. Taylor said he hopes to announce his final decision by the end of the semester.

Gordon Cleveland, assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and chairman of the search committee for the School of Journalism, said his committee hopes to submit its recommendations to the chancellor by Feb.

"We have now settled on a list of whom we're going to consider," Cleveland said. "We're going to meet with them over the next two and a half weeks and hope to have our work done soon."

Cleveland said his committee conducted a national search and is considering both local and national

John W. Thibaut, psychology professor and chairman of the search committee for the School of Law, also said he hopes to hand his committee's recommendations to the chancellor by Feb. 15. "We're having a series of people in now for interviews," Thibaut said. "It's awfully hard, because the kind of people we're aiming for are tremendously busy."

Dr. John C. Parker, professor of medicine and chairman of the search committee for the School of Medicine, said his committee hopes to complete its work within a few days.

"All I can say is I hope our search is coming to fruition," Parker said. "We're hoping to be able to have a list of three or four names to submit to the chancellor by early next week."

Ralph W. Pfouts, economics professor and chairman of the search committee for the graduate school, said his committee also conducted a national as well as local search.

"We have a deadline from the chancellor of March I. which we certainly hope to meet," Pfouts said. "We haven't transmitted anything yet."

James H. Crawford Jr., professor in physics and astronomy and chairman of the search committee for the School of Education, said his committee is working on a deadline of April 2.

Nazi immunity protested

A West German law granting immunity to Nazi war criminals will go into effect Jan. 1, 1980. A group of local citizens is supporting a West German movement to repeal that statute of limitations.

Petitions and postcards to President Carter and to West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt will be circulated from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Pit, and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday in front of the Franklin Street post office.

Films dealing with the Nazi era will be shown at the Hillel House, 210 W. Cameron Ave., at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. For more information, contact Hillel at 942-4057.

Chancellors to back desegregation plan

By TONY MACE

Chancellors of the five traditionally black campuses of the UNC system will meet Tuesday in Washington with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare's top civil rights official to express support for the UNC system desegregation plans, which reject the use of program shifting between black and white campuses to speed integration.

Officials in HEW's Office of Civil Rights are currently reviewing the final components of the UNC system's desegregation plan-two studies which found no "educationally unnecessary" duplication of programs between neighboring black and white UNC system campuses. HEW must respond formally to the two studies by March 11.

If HEW finds the two studies unacceptable, HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano has indicated that rather than reject North Carolina's plan outright, he will write to Gov. Jim Hunt indicating what aspects of the plan are unacceptable, in hopes of negotiation.

UNC President William C. Friday has said that negotiations would be "futile" if HEW insists on shifting programs between UNC campuses to further desegregation. At the Tuesday meeting with OCR Director David S. Tatel, the chancellors will stress that UNC's policy of enhancing the traditionally black institutions, rather than closing or moving programs between campuses, is the answer to segregation, said Lewis C. Dowdy, chancellor of North Carolina A & T State University.

Dowdy said UNC's General Administration had in no way pressured the chancellors to set up the meeting with Tatel. "We're going on our own," Dowdy

Dowdy said he had "guarded optimism" about how the talks would turn out. The chancellors had requested an earlier meeting with Tatel, but an aide said Tatel would be unable to see them because of scheduling conflict. At that point, the chancellors contacted Hunt, who repeatedly called Hamilton Jordan, an aide to President Jimmy Carter. Jordan called Califano, who arranged Tuesday's meeting.

The proposed meeting drew fire Friday from the Rev. Leon White, field director of the North Carolina-Virginia Commission for Racial Justice, who said the chancellors should cancel the meeting. "It is unfortunate that the governor of North Carolina has arranged this meeting and forced, through political pressure, the black chancellors to take this segregation stance," White said.

Stephanie Bass, Hunt's deputy press secretary, rejected White's suggestion that the governor had pressured the black schools' chancellors to agree with the stance on program duplication taken by the UNC Board of Governors, and supported by Hunt. "There's just nothing to that at all," Bass said.

"The governor arranged the meeting with Tatel in response to the chancellors' request," said Gary Pearce, Hunt's press secretary. "Obviously he's interested in doing anything to support the university's position."

Candidates meet Tuesday

A Meet the Candidates session will be held from 9 to 10:30 p.m. Tuesday in the first-floor lounge of Hinton James. Students who wish to talk with candidates are invited to attend. Candidates will be discussing issues 4794 or Joel Deaton at 933-4798.
