Azar

without getting a state of their own.

"If the United States stands firm on its commitment that the present Egyptian-Israeli treaty is the cornerstone to comprehensive peace, and if the process begins with fast and clear pursuit of autonomy for the Palestinians, then the U.S. will have gained a lot in the long run.

"What happens to the Palestinians is the test of the Middle East, not the peace with Egypt or Jordan or anybody else. It is when Israel and the Palestinians come to terms."

A main obstacle in completing the treaty has been the issue of self-rule for the 1.1 million Palestinians of the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. Each side has had a different interpretation of what the word "autonomy" means.

"The Israelis have introduced the word 'autonomy' at the Ismailia in December 1977, but they themselves are not ready to clarify much further," Azar says. "To start the process of autonomy you have to know what it means. That might become a very big conflict issue between all the parties involved because it's fraught with ambiguities."

Another country involved in the peace process, but remaining in the background, is the Soviet Union. Azar says the Soviets expect the United States will fail in its attempt to please the Palestinians. But with current events in the Middle East, including the conflict between Marxists and Moslems in Iran and Afghanistan, the Soviets are not finding the area hospitable, he says.

elements of the National Religious Party want the government to commit itself to continuing Jewish settlements in the occupied lands and to retaining Israeli security control over the territories, contrary to stipulations of the Camp David accords.

Begin agreed to form an 11-member Cabinet committee to recommend an Israeli position in the autonomy talks. Sources close to Begin, however, said Begin had "no trouble" with NRP stand, though he wants to avoid declarations that would anger Egypt and possibly torpedo the treaty signing.

According to Weizman, the $3 billion in U.S. aid will be divided into about $2.2 billion in loans and $800 million in grants.

In an apparent inducement to the Israelis, the United States agreed to speed up delivery of advanced F-16 fighter planes, starting next year. This is about three years earlier than had been originally planned. Weizman said the Israelis may get more than 75 F-16s.

The Egyptian defense minister said earlier Egypt would like 300 F-16 fighter planes, which would cost $3 billion; new tanks and armored personnel carriers; frigates and submarines for its navy; and Hawk anti-aircraft missiles.

He said the armament was necessary to protect Egypt and its ally, the Sudan, from Soviet-backed aggression in the area. He noted the Soviets have supplied modern weapons to Libya, Ethiopia and South Yemen and that those weapons have been or could be used against Chad, the Sudan and North Yemen as well as Egypt.

Ali said he thought Saudi Arabia would wait to see how the peace process develops before deciding whether to continue financial aid to Egypt.

President Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, returned Monday night from a trip to the Middle East where he tried to win the support of Jordan and Saudi Arabia for the peace treaty, and said he was encouraged but refused to elaborate.

Job interviews set

The following employers and graduate school representatives will be on campus to discuss job opportunities and academic programs on the dates indicated. Students can sign up for appointments with these representatives eight days ahead of the visit in the University Placement Services, 211 Hanes Hall. A resume or completed data sheet is necessary at the time a student signs up for an interview.

RISE ABOVE THE HARDWARE FLOOD WITH B.A.S.

A great wash of hardware products is about to flood the land of computers. Only the strong and the brave will survive.

That includes us, especially. We're designing software/hardware systems that float across a vast assortment of current and future computer architectures. And we have accommodations for one-of-a-kind creatures who can work as computer writers, database system designers and operating system jocks.
