

RHA changes date of Morehead survey

By SUSAN LADD
Staff Writer

The Residence Hall Association has moved up the timetable set last week for an educational process that must be held in the Morehead Confederation before the dorms involved can vote to dissolve the organization, RHA President William Porterfield said Monday.

RHA advanced the timetable at the request of representatives from the confederation dorms, Porterfield said. The representatives asked that the issue be resolved before the new RHA Board of Governors takes office April 10.

The Morehead Committee, which was created by RHA to set up a timetable for the referendum, to decide the issue originally had scheduled an RHA survey on Morehead for April 8 and 9. The dates have been changed to April 4 and 5. Porterfield said he has pledged to hold the referendums no later than the third week in April.

RHA is also sponsoring four forums to allow residents to express their opinions and ask questions. The forums tentatively are scheduled for 7 p.m. March 28 in the Joyner parlor, 7 p.m. March 29 in the Graham TV lounge, 7 p.m. April 2 in the Stacy basement and 7 p.m. April 3 in the Cobb lobby.

The forums are open to all students. Committee members will be present to answer questions.

The RHA Board of Governors will conduct a door-to-door survey of all Morehead Confederation residents April 4 and 5. Each resident will be asked to select the governmental option which he feels is most suited to his needs. Governmental options listed by the committee are:

- Preservation of the present Morehead Confederation (with one representative per fifty residents)
- Modification of the Morehead Confederation concerning representation and funding (two representatives per hall, regardless of the number of residents)
- Lower Quad-Upper Quad Residence

'DTH' looking for staffers

The Daily Tar Heel needs staff writers, copy editors and columnists. Writing positions are available on the University, city, state, and national, features and arts desks.

Persons wishing to be staff writers should meet at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday in the lobby in front of the DTH offices in the Carolina Union. Prospective writers will be given a fictional fact sheet from which to write a news story. Persons unable to attend the meeting should contact Kathy Curry, Eddie Marks or Michael Wade at the DTH offices.

Persons wishing to be copy editors should take pride in making the paper look good and read well, said Cynthia Prairie, DTH news editor. To apply for a copy editing job, contact Prairie at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday at the DTH office.

Prospective columnists should contact Allen Jernigan or George Shadrout, DTH associate editors, at the DTH office.

'Yack' sign-up

"If I'm incoherent, I'm having a YACK ATTACK," reads a sign on Yack editor Chrissann Ohler's desk. The Yack is staging its attack on the campus to get students to sign up for photo appointments through Friday.

"This week's Yack Attack is the last chance for students to get their pictures in the book," Ohler said. "There'll be a photographer in the office all week." Subscriptions also will be sold at a desk at the top of the stairs in the Carolina Union, he said.

Students can buy subscriptions until April 20, Ohler said, but should have their picture made by Friday. Students should make a photo appointment at the Yack office from 1 to 5 p.m. through Friday or by calling the office at 933-1259.

Appointments are available from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 2 to 7 p.m. today and Thursday, and from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2 to 6 p.m. Wednesday and Friday.

Speech tonight

George Kanekides, a lawyer involved with student voting rights cases at Western Carolina University, will speak at 7 tonight in 351 Hamilton Hall.

Kanekides will discuss the history of the student voting controversy, its present status and possibilities for the future. He also will answer questions from the audience.

The discussion is sponsored by the UNC College Republicans. The meeting is open to the public.

College with an independent Cobb and an independent Joyner

- Lower Quad-Upper Quad Residence: College and a Cobb-Joyner Residence College
- Lower Quad Residence College
- Addition of Upper Quad to Morehead Confederation
- Independent halls with their own governments

The Morehead Committee has produced a fact sheet to be distributed to the dorm residents to explain the possibilities involved in dissolving the confederation.

The fact sheet defines a residence college as an organization "which provides its residents with programming, a sense of community and adequate representation in return for funding of the college and active participation in its government."

Representatives of the Lower Quad dorms say Morehead is a weak governing body which does not meet their needs and provides no sense of unity as a confederation. They say they want to withdraw from Morehead and form a residence college with Upper Quad, with whom they say they share common interests.

The fact sheet points out that the formation of a new residence college might involve the structuring of a constitution, a system of representation and a system of funding, whereas a system designed to meet these needs already is established by the Morehead Confederation.

It also points out that the alleged failure of Morehead may be due to inadequate funding. Morehead Confederation receives 50 cents per resident, whereas other residence colleges receive between $1 and $2.50 per resident.

The fact sheet also notes the possibility of a residence college with one residence director. Morehead presently operates with two RD's. The Upper Quad dorms are under the jurisdiction of RD Charlie Miller. Cobb and Joyner are under the jurisdiction of RD Connie Currier.

Bed-push slow rolling

The Ehringhaus bed-push got sidetracked Monday but supporters are hopeful they will get the project started again today.

A group of volunteers pushed a modified hospital bed around the U bus route Sunday hoping to break a world's record and raise money for the N.C. Memorial Hospital Burn Center. But the plans got short-sheeted when the pool of volunteers ran out.

"We just can't get enough people to push, especially during class hours," said Debbie Ford, publicity director for the Ehringhaus Executive Council.

Ford said the Ehringhaus dorm officers were to meet Monday night to try to awaken support to keep the project going. The 1,777-mile goal looks doubtful, she said, but she hopes the group will be able to push the bed at least 300 miles by the end of this week.

Ehringhaus Governor William Porterfield said he is asking for volunteers to push the bed around the U bus route during the day and the S route at night. The bed will not be pushed continuously, he said.

The bed was pushed about 40 miles Sunday, Porterfield said. Approximately $100 has been raised so far for the burn center.

Balladeer performs

"The Lusty Young Smith", who "...at his forge stood a-filing, his hammer laid by but his fires still aglow; when to him a buxom young damsel came smiling, and asked if to work at her forge he would go."

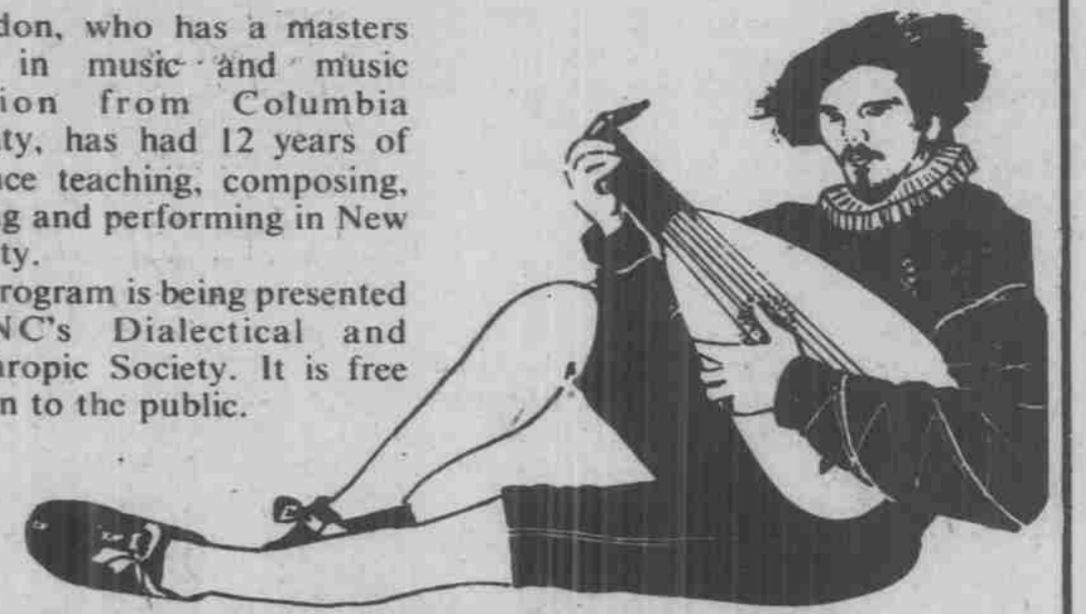

Songs like these are part of the repertoire of the Troubadour, alias Nicholas Edward Hodsdon. Hodsdon will perform at 7:30 tonight in the Di Phi Room of New West.

Hodsdon, an interpreter of authentic medieval and Renaissance music, will perform Elizabethan ballads and other music from the days of Shakespeare and Sir Walter Raleigh.

An evening with the Troubadour is filled with "the exorbitant elegance of period dress, the courtly grace of the lute...and the sweet lilting lullaby of the psaltery," said one review.

Hodsdon, who has a masters degree in music and music education from Columbia University, has had 12 years of experience teaching, composing, recording and performing in New York City.

The program is being presented by UNC's Dialectical and Philanthropic Society. It is free and open to the public.
