

Homecoming activities

All Carolina students who aspire to be the 1979 homecoming queen have until 5 p.m. today to turn in their applications to the Carolina Union desk. A $25 entry fee must accompany the application.

All queen candidates should meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday at The Daily Tar Heel offices in the Carolina Union for a group photograph to be published before homecoming election.

Balloting for homecoming queen will be held from 10 a.m.-2:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday at Chase Cafeteria, the Y-Court and the Carolina Union. Students must present their athletic pass to vote. The winner will be announced during halftime at Saturday's Carolina-Clemson football game.

Other homecoming activities scheduled this week include an Alumni Association dance from 9 p.m.-1 a.m. Saturday in Woollen Gym. Music will be provided by Bo & Generation II.

Mother's Finest will give a homecoming concert at 8 p.m. Friday in Memorial Hall. Tickets are $5, available at the Carolina Union Desk and at the door.

Job mart for social sciences majors starts

By ROANN BISHOP
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Political Science Association will present a Social Sciences Futures Market, a chance for social science majors to get an overview of the opportunities available to them, from 7-9 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday in 100 Hamilton Hall.

The two-night program will feature representatives from both the University and outside organizations who will discuss career and academic possibilities in their different fields.

Randy Giles, president of the Undergraduate Political Science Association, said the speakers were chosen for their wide variety of backgrounds.

"We wanted a dichotomy of people with bachelor degrees as well as masters and doctorate degrees," Giles said. "This way, students who are interested in continuing their education after college and those who are just interested in completing their college education can both find people in their fields to talk to and ask questions.

"This program has taken a sizable commitment of manpower and resources," he said. "Unless there is some outside resources that are contributed in the future, this program may be the last of its kind at Carolina. It's just too costly to manage. So we want everyone that can to attend this program. It may be their only chance to see these speakers together at the same time."

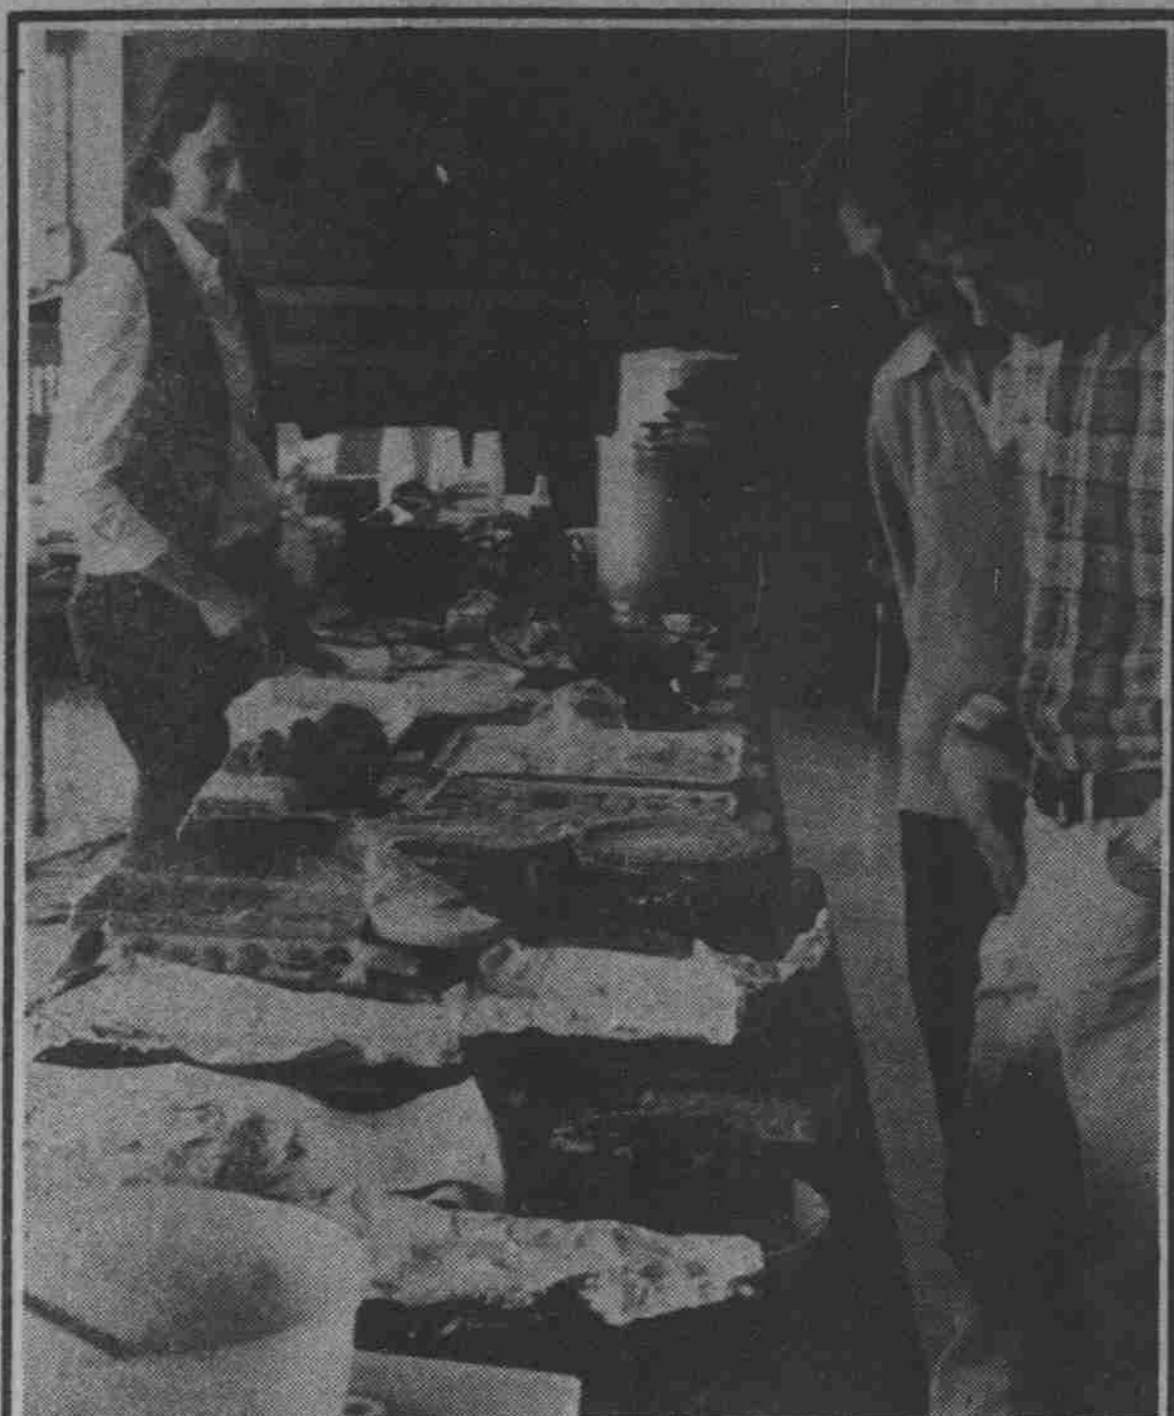

Speakers Tuesday night will include Carol Haase-Greeley, assistant director of Career Guidance and Placement; John E. Fobes, former deputy secretary of UNESCO; and Thomas W. Lambeth, executive director of the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation and former chairman of the UNC Board of Trustees.

Others who will speak Tuesday night will include Donald Bales Hayman, professor of public law and government with the UNC Institute of Government;

Janet Liechty, admissions officer for the Georgetown University Masters Program in Foreign Service; Kenneth Robertson, corrections administrator and case analyst for the N.C. Department of Corrections; and Carter Hoyt, director of admissions for the National Center for Paralegal Training in Atlanta, Ga.

Speakers Wednesday night will include Richard Richardson, professor and chairman of the UNC political science department; Wayne Rackoff, former campaign worker and staff member for President Carter; James Vopel, professor in the Duke Institute of Policy Sciences and Public Affairs; and Shirley Weiss, professor of urban planning at UNC.

Other speakers featured Wednesday night will be John Julius Pringle, professor of finance and director of the MBA Program at UNC; Kenneth R. Wing, assistant professor of law and public health at UNC; and Robert Friedman, editorial writer for the Winston-Salem Journal & Sentinel.

International Feast

Customs and costumes were on display over the weekend at the International festival, sponsored by the Association of International Students (AIS). Dances, folk singing, karate, bluegrass and belly dancing colored Great Hall, while the scents of quiche, baklava and fried won ton drew passersby into the South Gallery. A French play, films and seminars rounded out the festival, whose aim was to promote cultural exchange.

Campus Calendar

Public service announcements must be turned in at the box outside the DTH offices in the Carolina Union by 1 p.m. if they are to run the next day. Each item will be run at least twice.

ACTIVITIES TODAY

The third session of AED's Stop Smoking Clinic will be held from 7:30-9 p.m. at the Wesley Foundation on Pittsboro Road. The featured speaker will be Penny Rue who will be speaking on "Self Motivation and Problem Solving Techniques for Quitting Smoking." The cost is free and everyone is invited.

There will be an interviewing workshop sponsored by the University Placement Services at 3 p.m. in 209 Hanes Hall. Activities based on the Skills Guide (available in 211 Hanes Hall) will help you prepare for a job interview.

UPCOMING EVENTS

CHEC—the Contraceptive Health Education Clinic, provides information on contraceptive methods, sexually transmitted diseases, pelvic exams and self breast exams at 7 p.m. every Tuesday in 231 School of Public Health. Everyone

More than $500 rolls in Children skating around the sundial in front of the Morehead planetarium, couples rolling along Franklin Street and students gliding through campus all were working for a common cause Sunday afternoon.

Participants in the Alpha Phi Omega pledge class skate-a-thon raised $544.26 for the North Carolina chapter of the National Hemophilia Foundation. The 32 participants who had sponsor sheets with at least $5 pledged paid a 50 cents registration fee while approximately 50 other skaters without sponsors paid $1.50.

The $544.26 will be matched by the K.B. Reynolds Foundation, pushing the pledge class's donation above its $1,000 goal.

Prizes will be awarded to those who brought in the most money. Prizes will include a basketball signed by the Carolina basketball team, a gift certificate for sports equipment, an 18-pound turkey and a night club membership.

North Carolina is the only state which does not support hemophiliacs, said Barbara Palmer, publicity chairperson for the project. Medical costs for a hemophiliac range from $10,000 to $25,000 annually, she said.

Donations still are being accepted at the APO complex in Smith building, from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. daily, Palmer said.
