

The Tar Heel

Volume 89, Issue No. 6

Thursday, July 3, 1980

Chapel Hill, North Carolina

Administrative restructuring still under way

By John Royster

A number of UNC administration changes—many aimed at making the University more responsive to minorities—have recently been made, and more are expected.

An advisory committee has been named to assist Chancellor Christopher C. Fordham III in the selection of a vice chancellor for University Affairs, a newly created position.

A second committee, charged with the responsibility of recommending candidates for the position of University affirmative action officer, has already begun a series of meetings and are accepting applications for the position. (See article this page.)

Other job openings in University administration include those of:

- Vice chancellor for Health Affairs, the position Fordham left when he became chancellor in March.

- Director of Student Health Services, left vacant with the Tuesday retirement of Dr. James Taylor. (See page 4.)

- One of two assistant directorships for student development. That opening was created when Roslyn Hartmann left in June for a job with Fordham University in New York.

In other recent changes, Vice Chancellor for Administration Douglass Hunt has been transferred to the position of special assistant to the chancellor.

Claiborne Jones' resignation as Fordham's executive assistant also became effective Tuesday, but Jones said he will stay on as a part time special assistant to the chancellor.

Eleanor Morris will replace Will Geer, who retired July 1, as director of student aid Aug. 15. (See page 7)

The supervisory responsibility for the University's personnel department has moved to the office of the vice chancellor for business and finance, John Temple.

And the supervisory responsibility for the University Gazette, a UNC news publication, is transferring to the office of the vice chancellor for development and public service, Rollie Tillman.

The vice chancellor for University affairs, when selected, will assist Fordham in enhancing the presence and experience of minorities at the University, said a news release from the University News Bureau.

That vice chancellor also will get many of the duties that Hunt had as vice chancellor for administration—supervision of the offices of the registrar, student financial aid, records and registration, institutional research, and undergraduate admissions.

The advisory committee to assist Fordham in filling the position is chaired by Jack Evans, dean of the School of Business Administration. Other committee members are Doris Betts, Alumni Distinguished professor of English; Charles Daye, a professor in the Law School; Edith Elliott, director of the Campus Y; Daniel McKeithen, an

Boulton

Fordham

Hunt

Jones

undergraduate; and Dan Okun, Kenan professor of environmental engineering.

Daye chaired the minority status committee which recommended in April that an administrative structure to deal with minority concerns be formed.

As special assistant to the chancellor,

Hunt will work mainly in the area of University-government relations. He also will be responsible for overseeing the University's treatment of handicapped students, and will be chairman of the

See ADMINISTRATION on page 6

Committee holds hearing

By Bruce Davies

In a public hearing Tuesday the affirmative action officer search committee heard formal presentations from some of its members, as well as open comments regarding the process of appointing an affirmative action officer at the University.

Seven of the 11 committee members were present, including Chairman Madeline Levine. "We are here to listen to whatever input and suggestions which you may have about what we should be looking for in an affirmative action officer," Levine said.

Levine began the meeting by reading aloud the job description for the new position.

The job description was drafted by the chancellor's office and approved by the chancellor advisory committee, but is still subject to changes by the committee.

Student Body President Bob Saunders expressed appreciation for the addition of two student members to the committee.

The appointees, who were submitted to and approved by University Chancellor Christopher C. Fordham, are William Bynum, ex-president of the Black Student Movement and Caroline Smith, president of the Graduate and Professional Student Federation. Both are graduate students.

See SEARCH on page 7

Staff photo by Sharon Clarke

Reflections

Saunders called for jury

UNC Student Body President Bob Saunders has been summoned as a potential juror for the Greensboro trial of six Ku Klux Klansmen and Nazi party members charged in the November shooting deaths of five Communist Workers Party members during a demonstration.

Saunders, who is from High Point, said he was notified on Friday, and must appear in Guilford County Superior Court July 15.

"They drew about 1,500 (names of) people, and I was one of them," Saunders said. A panel of 12 jurors and four alternates will be chosen for the trial. So far, prosecutors have approved 10 people to serve as jurors in the Klan trial. Judge James Long has ordered a total of 2,250 people to appear as potential jurors.

Saunders said he would not ask to be excused from jury unless the duty removed him from his work as president.

"I need to have more information on the (th trial's) timetable," he said. The trial is expected to be lengthy.

Saunders said he explained his situation on a form provided with the summons. But he also said that the letter he received from the court said that occupational hardship would not be considered as an excuse.

"I've always wanted to serve on a jury," Saunders said. "Hey, I get a thrill just from voting. I look at this as a duty."

Student Government bylaws provide for the speaker of the Campus Governing Council to serve in the absence of the president. The present speaker is Cynthia Currin.

—John Royster

Inside

Committee recommends tenure for Sonja Stone. See page 2.

The Tar Heel

Single-parent adoption. See page 9.

Day trips to Stagville Plantation, Duke Forest, the Asheboro Zoo and Old Salem. See pages 10-11.

Review of Brubaker. See page 12.

The week at a glance. See page 19.