

Dogs roam campus, even attend classes

By DIANE LUPTON
Staff Writer

Dogs roam the UNC campus and sometimes venture into the classrooms. They are not supposed to be there. Chapel Hill has a semi-leash law, Town Clerk David Roberts said. He said the law is not enforced now but a proposal to make the law stricter is on the agenda for the next Town Council meeting.

"The law now requires a dog to be under voice control or on a leash," he said. That means an owner must be able to "holler at the dog" and have it return to him, Roberts said.

Some dog owners leave their dogs on campus while they attend class. Jackson, an Irish setter whose owner is a graduate student, has become a fixture at the journalism school, journalism instructor Raleigh Mann said. "He lies on the front steps of Howell Hall most of the time, but sometimes he runs around campus with his other dog friends,"

Mann said.

Once, a muddy Jackson appeared at the fire escape window of Mann's classroom. "We let him in and he sniffed around and then trotted out to the front door," Mann said.

A student in Mann's newswriting class once brought a dog to class, he said. "The dog was a beautiful light-colored animal," Mann said. "She was very well-behaved and didn't create a problem." The dog, Space, was later a candidate for homecoming queen. "I told the student not to do it regularly because I thought there might be a rule against it (bringing dogs to class)," Mann said.

J.R. Cox of the speech department said a student in one of his classes was bringing a puppy to class this semester. "It whimpered once and that was all," Cox said. He said the student no longer brought the dog with him. "I hope he didn't take it to the pound," he said.

The number of dogs wandering into classes in Bingham has decreased in the last 10 years, Cox said. Most students with classes in other departments, however, have at least one story of a dog who comes in class, acts bored and leaves.

Students also face an expense problem when they try to keep dogs in apartments. Most complexes in Carrboro and Chapel Hill charge a pet deposit. One student said she made it through a year without paying the deposit or having any problem with hiding the dog. "The resident manager would come into the apartment and pet the dog," she said. "But he liked us."

Hunt to campaign for candidates

Gov. Jim Hunt's re-election committee is confident of a win on election day and will spend more time campaigning for other candidates on the state Democratic ticket, assistant campaign manager Stephanie Bass said in a telephone interview Monday.

"We're not overconfident but we feel we can spend extra time and energy helping other Democratic candidates," Bass said. "It's important to have a Democratic team."

The governor's staff has prepared letters of endorsement written by Hunt that other candidates can send to supporters in their areas. Some reports indicate Hunt is considering the possibility of joint radio or television ads with Democratic incumbent Robert Morgan, who faces Republican challenger John East of Greenville in the U.S. Senate race.

Meanwhile, campaign officials said Hunt is scheduled to spend about 90 minutes aboard an Alexander County railroad train car today for a campaign trip from Statesville to Taylorsville. Hunt is scheduled to make campaign speeches from the rear of the train in two towns along the route.

Hunt's recent campaign speeches have included a poll illustrating his campaign theme: North Carolina has made unprecedented progress in the past four years and needs Hunt to help it continue for four more.

"As an incumbent candidate, what you have already done is important," Bass said. "In Hunt's case, the state is voting for industrial recruitment and education."

Hunt said the poll asked "Do you feel like our state of North Carolina is headed in the right direction?" By a 2-1 majority, those questioned answered affirmatively, according to the poll.

Republican rallies

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., is scheduled to speak at a rally and dinner in Wilmington Wednesday night in support of Republican candidates John East and I. Beverly Lake Jr.

For senatorial candidate East, it will be the first of four consecutive nights of rallies. He is scheduled to speak Thursday in Morganton, Friday in Albemarle and Saturday night in Union County.

Gubernatorial candidate I. Beverly Lake Jr. will hold rallies in Thomasboro on Tuesday and in Greensboro and Wilmington Wednesday. Thursday morning, Lake will be interviewed by the editorial staff of the Wilmington Star News.

Both candidates will be in Raleigh for a dinner on Oct. 22. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Sen. H. John Heinz III, R-Pa., are scheduled to speak on behalf of both Lake and East.

Columbus stump

President Jimmy Carter and John B. Anderson vied in North Carolina Monday to demonstrate their commitment to Israel and then both presidential candidates marched in the Columbus Day parade up Fifth Avenue. Republican Ronald Reagan spent the day trying to solidify his California home base.

A new Associated Press-NBC News poll showed Reagan holding his lead over Carter as more and more Americans decided how they plan to vote Nov. 4. But the survey also showed widespread voter dissatisfaction with both Reagan and Carter.

Based on telephone interviews Oct. 8-10 with 1,548 likely voters, the survey showed 43 percent favored Reagan, 35 percent favored Carter and 10 percent favored Anderson. Two weeks earlier, a similar poll had Reagan leading Carter by nine percentage points, with Anderson the favorite of 13 percent of voters. In the new survey, 68 percent of respondents said they had made up their minds, compared with 61 percent two weeks ago.

After marching in the Columbus Day parade, Anderson held a news conference with a group of big name former supporters of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy who announced they now were backing Anderson.

The group included historian Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., actors Paul Newman and Jason Robards, author Kurt Vonnegut and Bartle Bull, who was chairman of Kennedy's New York campaign when the senator was challenging Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination.

In bright sunshine, Carter led the customarily large political contingent in the annual parade. One block behind the president marched Anderson, who ranged from curb to curb to shake hands with spectators.

Another block behind was George Bush, the Republican vice presidential candidate.

University accounts need to be settled

By MELODEE ALVES
Staff Writer

Students' University accounts should be cleared by Friday so they can pre-register for the spring semester, University Cashier Sam Barnard said last week.

Although students are permitted to pay their bills after Friday, they will not be cleared by the Office of Records and Registration in time for pre-registration he said.

"The sooner students clear their accounts, the better off they are. They won't have to stand in line," he said.

If students do not clear their accounts before the end of pre-registration, they can register in the spring after paying their bills, but they run the risk of getting closed out of classes, Barnard said.

Pre-registration begins Oct. 27 and ends Oct. 31 for juniors and seniors. They can pick up forms and permission slips from the schools in which they are enrolled.

Sophomores can pre-register from Oct. 22 to Nov. 4, but they must sign up for an appointment with their advisors before they pre-register. Appointment books are available now.

Freshman pre-registration is Nov. 5 through Nov. 25 and appointment books will be available beginning Oct. 29.

Students wanted for planning board

By AMY PRUGH
Staff Writer

One seat on the Carrboro Planning Board will be filled by a student, and Carrboro officials are asking other students to apply for the two additional openings on the board.

The board has asked Student Body President Bob Saunders to fill one of the three vacancies. Interested students who live within the Carrboro zoning district are encouraged to apply for the other seats.

Board Chairman Robert McDuffie stressed the importance of student representation on the board. He said a seat always had been held open for a student, but there had been a problem in the past with student interest and attendance.

"It would be great if there were two or three interested students," McDuffie said. "Since over 80 percent of Carrboro housing is occupied by University students, most of the issues at the board meetings concern the students."

"We need students to be present at the meetings, to have a voice in what is being done."

Any student interested in applying can call McDuffie at 942-4121 or 929-6074.

The Carrboro Planning Board meets at 7:30 p.m. every first and third Thursday in the Carrboro Town Hall. The objective of the Planning Board is to give the town some means of comprehensive planning and development. The members also advise the Board of Aldermen, the County Commissioners and other town boards.

"Personally, I feel the Planning Board takes pressure off the elected officials," McDuffie said. "By turning an issue over to the Planning Board for deliberation, the appointed board members can express their own opinions, which may not be as guarded as those who must answer to the public."

McDuffie said a Transportation Advisory Board, which will be concerned with busing, is being formed by Doug Sharer, a member of the Board of Aldermen. Anyone interested in working on this board should contact Sharer.
