

Student vote will decide summer fees

By KERRY DEROGHI
Staff Writer

In addition to approving the 1981 Chapel Thrill concert Tuesday, the Campus Governing Council passed several resolutions, authorized campuswide referendums, amended its bylaws and allocated $362 from its unappropriated budget balance.

The council approved a bill authorizing a campuswide referendum on a $2 social fee for summer school students. This summer social fee is separate from the summer activities fee which does not include social programming. Students also will vote on a $2 per session decrease in the summer fee.

The council appropriated another $200 to the Elections Board to cover balloting expenses for the referendums.

Besides the fee referendums, students will vote on a constitutional referendum that will require the CGC to put any questions on an increase in fees before the student body.

The council also allocated $162 from the unappropriated budget balance to cover the cost of computerizing the Student Code. By computerizing the system the council could keep the code updated more easily.

In other action, the council approved a resolution supporting the establishment of preventive legal education for student organizations. Student organizations had previously not been provided legal counsel by the University.

The council approved a resolution requesting that a moratorium be placed on the building of the Shearon Harris Nuclear Power Plant. According to the bill, there are "potential safety hazards that would be dangerous to UNC students as well as the surrounding community."

The council also recommended that further studies be done on the proposed noise ordinance and that further consideration be given to increased aid in student housing by the University.

Four announce CGC candidacy

Four people announced their candidacies for Campus Governing Council representatives Wednesday.

Robert Anthony, a sophomore political science major from Morehead City, announced his candidacy for CGC District 17 representative.

"I feel there should be more student involvement," Anthony said. "And I feel that though the CGC does more than (organize social activities), I think there should be more input."

Anthony is a member of Student Government's Student Affairs Committee and has worked for the summer Tar Heel. Eric Dennison, a freshman political science and economics major from Hendersonville, is running for representative of District 14 which includes Granville Towers.

Dennison said he would not support funding for Chapel Thrill or the Carolina Gay Association. He said he would increase funding to the North Carolina Student Legislature. Dennison was chairman of the UNC Reagan for President organization and is a member of Carolina Students for Life and Young Americans for Freedom.

Ellen Goldberg, a sophomore accounting major from Augusta, Ga., announced her candidacy for CGC District 2 representative.

Goldberg was editor of the Scott College newspaper, The Scott Tissue, and worked as an orientation counselor. She is a member of the women's varsity soccer team and the Delta Phi Epsilon sorority.

"I'd like to improve communications between the CGC and my constituents to get more student input, and I'd like to do this by using the Scott College newspaper," she said.

David Holt, a sophomore education major from Durham, is running for representative of District 15, which includes Morrison and Hinton James.

He said he would like to see more coverage of CGC meetings in dorm newspapers as well as the DTH.

Holt said he would support a Chapel Thrill concert and a system to make textbooks less expensive for students.

Holt was active in high school student government and is a member of the N.C. Student Legislature.

AWS, Di Phi give support

The Association of Women Students made their endorsements Wednesday for various campus races. For student body president they chose Joe Buckner, Thomas Jessiman for The Daily Tar Heel editor and Jake Kelly for Carolina Athletic Association president.

The Dialectic and Philanthropic Literary Societies gave their endorsements Tuesday night to Scott Norberg for student body president.

AWS Chairperson Alicia Swaringen said that the board thought both candidates for student body president would do a good job but favored Buckner because, "he best understood the needs of the women students on this campus."

Swaringen said the decision for DTH editor was extremely close. "We chose Thomas because he gave me a guarantee that women's issues would be a priority of the DTH next year," she said.

Kelly was chosen for CAA president because of her experience and her promise to devote more attention to sports.

Club council elects officers

Alison Pentz, a sophomore political science and speech communications major from Greensboro, has been selected as the Sports Club Council's first female president.

"Promoting, that's the key," Pentz said. "We want the student body to know just what opportunities are available to them."

She said the executive officers all believed that the organization needed to restructure and to unify its 20 member clubs.

"There are so many sports clubs that need participation, and that participation can come on all levels, whether a student learns a new sport or competes in one he or she is already skilled in," she said.

Pentz has served as the council's vice president and was president of the UNC sailing club during her freshman and sophomore years. She was awarded the Panhellenic freshman scholarship.

Other officers elected to the 1981 council were Bill Detmer, a junior from New Canaan, Conn., as first vice president; Jonathan Love, a freshman from Buenos Aires, Argentina, as second vice president and Katie Reid, a sophomore from Boston, as treasurer.

met with three black leaders — the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, Hosea Williams and Charles Evers, all of whom supported his election campaign.

"The briefing that we received, it puts us in a much better position to say to blacks and poor people in America, have no fear. Mr. Reagan is not going to run out and snatch any checks from the needy," Williams said.

"The president gave us assurance that any cutbacks with regards to social programs such as Medicare would not affect the poorest people in our society and those who need it most and we left there greatly inspired," said Abernathy, former director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Abernathy urged the president to cut spending by eliminating federal subsidies to farmers, but he added that Reagan made no commitment on the proposal.

Brady said the president, preparing for the 9 p.m. EST speech, was trying to portray the nation's economic problems in such language that "everyone understands the gravity, the magnitude and the alternatives."

"He's going to make certain it is spelled out," the spokesman said, stating that the rewriting was required because in meetings with mayors and black members of Congress Tuesday, the president discovered that "there wasn't a full understanding of things he wanted to get across."
