

It will be mostly sunny today with increasing cloudiness. The high will be in the mid-40s, the low in the mid-30s. There is a chance of rain.

The Daily Tar Heel

Serving the students and the University community since 1893

The women's basketball team takes on the South Carolina Gamecocks tonight at 7:30 in Carmichael Auditorium.

Volume 88, Issue 94

Monday, February 9, 1981 Chapel Hill, North Carolina

News/Sports/Arts 633-0245
Business/Advertising 633-1183

Tension mounts as candidates enter home stretch

From staff reports

The endorsements are in, the forums are complete and the literature is out. A day before elections candidates and campaign organizations still are politicking intensely for what is certain to be one of the closest, and, unquestionably, one of the hardest-fought campus elections in recent years.

The races for student body president and editor of The Daily Tar Heel have been characterized by intensity and fervor that caused one student to describe them as "paranoia run amuck."

There have been many incidents. Following the Hinton James forum Thursday night, accusations were exchanged between student body presidential candidates Scott Norberg and Joe Buckner and their supporters.

Earlier that day, Norberg campaigned door-to-door on the 10th floor of Hinton James. "There had been some really negative attitudes against Scott," said Tavia Hutchins, who had accompanied Norberg. "Residents had asked Norberg why Chapel Thrill — which he oversaw as an executive assistant to Student Body President Bob Saunders — had lost $9,000."

After the forum, Norberg accused Buckner of campaigning there earlier and "setting him up."

Eli McCullough, Hinton James governor, had campaigned with Buckner early that day. "He (Buckner) asked people to express any problems. They usually brought up Chapel Thrill and Joe tells them how he feels. He mentions that $9,000 was lost," McCullough said.

"I did not mention Norberg's name in any way."

The problem came up when Norberg said (before) that he ran Chapel Thrill. Buckner said.

McCullough also accused Hutchins of pulling down campaign material, an Honor Court violation. Hutchins said she took a Buckner card with the basketball schedule off a suitemate's door, looked at it, and unconsciously threw it away. "I shouldn't have done it, I didn't even think about it," she said.

Deana Williamson, an Elections Board member, said Sunday night that she would investigate the incident. "I feel it is necessary to have it acted upon because I don't want anything hanging over the election."

The DTH editor's race also has been scarred by personality attacks and rumors that seem to have become commonplace during this year's campaign.

After candidate Thomas Jessiman was said to have made anti-Greek statements on a Charlotte television station at the Panhellenic forum, he said, "I wish it had been discussed at the forum where I could defend myself. I think it's a shame it happened behind closed doors."

Jessiman agreed the campaign has been intense and sometimes disturbing. "I've been very disturbed by the number of rumors I've encountered — things I've never said but I've been reported to have said. I don't know where it's coming from but it's disappointing."

"The election is not won or lost by the political rumors or the political hotshots, but by that freshman or sophomore on the first floor in some obscure dorm," he said.

Hummel agreed that "there's a lot of dirt flying around that we don't have control of. In these last 48 hours things are going to get tight, but our methods and tactics are not going to change. We're going to have our people all over the place. We've run a clean campaign and I'm proud of it."

Jessiman, who was endorsed today by The Daily Tar Heel, said, "Of all the endorsements The Daily Tar Heel is the most important in the editor's race, by far. Who is better qualified to judge the best candidate than the newspaper itself? The editor knows best the stress and requirements of the job."

But Hummel remained optimistic despite the endorsement. "It's unfortunate that many times people think the paper's endorsement reflects the opinion of the entire staff. It certainly isn't the case

See ELECTION on page 2

Iranians to expel Dwyer

The Associated Press

An Iranian court convicted jailed American writer Cynthia Dwyer on spying charges Sunday, sentenced her to time already served and ordered her expelled. The State Department said Dwyer would be released to Swiss authorities early today with her departure from Iran to follow shortly.

At his home in the Buffalo, N.Y., suburb of Amherst, Dwyer's husband, John, said he felt "tremendous, grateful, thrilled, relieved" at news of the pending release of his 49-year-old wife, who has been held by the Iranians for nine months and three days. Dwyer denied the spying charges at her trial last Wednesday, according to Iranian press reports.

Her husband said he and the couple's three children had no word of Dwyer's travel plans.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Anita Stockman said the plans would be determined by the Dwyer family. Dwyer "will be released this morning Tehran time to the custody of the Swiss," the spokeswoman said.

The State Department had been informed that Iran wanted Dwyer to leave the country immediately upon her release, she said.

Dwyer is an occasional writer for Humanist magazine. Her husband said she went to Iran to research the Iranian revolution for free-lance articles she hoped to sell.

She was convicted on four charges including "indulging in acts of espionage against the Islamic Republic of Iran," according to Iran's official Pars news agency.

It listed the others as: "establishing contacts with counter-revolutionary agents in order to mediate between them and other American agents; collaborating with an armed outlawed group in order to inform the former American hostages in Iran on the status of social and political affairs in Iran" and "making efforts for establishing radio communication between members of the opposition in Iran and the United States."

A worker examines an engine that was torn loose on impact in a private plane crash ...members of the New Hope Volunteer Fire Department were on the scene to help

Plane crash outside town kills seven

By ANN SMALLWOOD
Staff Writer

Seven persons were killed Saturday night when their twin-engine Cessna airplane crashed more than a mile north of the University-owned Horace Williams Airport.

The aircraft plowed through a thick pine grove on a Homestead Road farm shortly after 7 p.m. Saturday during a light rain and fog.

The farm, owned by Robert B. Daniel, is about a quarter of a mile north of Chapel Hill High School and five miles north of the UNC campus.

The passengers, all killed on impact, included four men, two women and an 8-year-old boy, said N.C. Chief Medical Examiner Dr. Page Hudson. Identities of the victims, some of whom Hudson said were related, will not be available until relatives can be notified. All were believed to be from Panama, Hudson said.

Wreckage of the plane, a Cessna 340, registered in Miami, was found about 200 yards from the Daniel house. Debris was scattered along a 50-yard gash cut through the pine forest. Trees a foot in diameter were snapped in half, about 35 feet up, and were snapped in half or uprooted nearer the crash site. Fuel was spilled all around the wreckage but there was no fire.

A highway patrolman said the plane had its landing gear down when it clipped the first tree tops. As the plane traveled another 500 or 600 yards, its wings were ripped off and the fuselage broke in half and flipped upside down. Rescue workers

See PLANE on page 3

North-South wins give Heels a breather from ACC

By SCOTT PETERSON
Assistant Sports Editor

CHARLOTTE—Going into the North-South Doubleheader, Carolina's opponents looked formidable. St. Joseph's was 15-3 prior to its two losses in the event and Furman had defeated the Tar Heels twice in the last three meetings in the tournament.

As it turned out, the North-South was little more than a breather from a rugged, intense schedule of ACC games. UNC, now 18-5, recorded easy victories—blasting St. Joseph's 87-64 in the opener and downing Furman 79-64 in Saturday's game.

"We just came through nine very tough conference games and I was really concerned whether we would have the emotion and intensity," Dean Smith said following the Tar Heels' opening night win. "Our players got together. Al Wood said 'Don't worry, Coach.' So, I didn't worry. I have to give credit where it's due."

Despite the laid-back, family outing mood of the trip, the Tar Heels were faced with the dilemma of bouncing back from last Tuesday's loss to Virginia. But that worry was disposed of early against St. Joseph's.

Carolina jumped out to a 6-0 lead early when the Hawks opened in a delay offense. That plan failed when St. Joseph's point guard Jeffrey Clark picked up three fouls in two minutes.

Al Wood and Jimmy Black led the fast-breaking Tar Heel offense in the first half that lifted Carolina to an 18-point lead at one time. Wood was perfect from the field and the foul line (4-for-4 and 3-for-3) and Black hit three out of three tries from the field.

The Hawks moved within six points when John Smith hit a 15-foot jumper with 8:46 left, but baskets by Cecil Exum, Mike Pepper, Sam Perkins and James Worthy widened the margin to 16, 28-12. Wood hit a 15-footer and Worthy scored on a pass from Black on the break to give the Tar Heels their biggest lead of the half, 32-14.

Marcellus "Boo" Williams and Bryan Warrick lifted St. Joseph's offense in the second half after the Hawks shot only 35 percent in the first half. Williams finished with 19 points and was St. Joseph's only inside threat because the Tar Heel defense denied center Tony Costner a shot from the field. Warrick scored 16 points for St. Joseph's and Lonnie McFarland added 13.

Nevertheless, the Tar Heels increased their lead early in the second half as Pepper scored the first two baskets after intermission, 41-23. Worthy and Perkins combined for all of Carolina's 12 points in a seven-minute stretch that followed to keep Carolina up by a comfortable margin.

A baseline jumper by Matt Doherty coupled with baskets by Worthy and Jim Braddock put the finishing touches on St. Joseph's with 6:18 left, 68-45.

"You've got to hand it to our seniors, all of them," Smith said after the win. "They got the team together. This was a step toward the NCAAAs."

"Our defense was very active in the first half. Al Wood continues to play like the All-American he is. Jimmy Black continues to play well and Pepper played one of his best games defensively."

"To get the lead in the first half, our fast break was marvelous. It was good in the second half until late. We are a very good fast-breaking team and you have to have rebounding for that. James Worthy and Sam Perkins are good at getting the rebound and making the pass to start the break."

Wood led the Tar Heels with 20 points and Worthy and Perkins had 13 and 12 points when the Tar Heels shot 66 percent from the field for the night.

See WIN on page 3

College students gather to celebrate black history

By PAULA GRAHAM
Staff Writer

Through a program entitled "Discovery: A Celebration of Black History," members of the University's Black Student Movement, along with black students from similar organizations at 26 other schools around the state celebrated February as Black History Month here this weekend.

"The goal of the entire program, at a school where education has been the first priority, is to recognize and re-emphasize black history," LaVie Ellison, chairperson of the event, said.

"The second goal is to see black interaction between blacks here, at State, Pembroke, wherever," Ellison continued.

The three-day event included workshops on Friday and Saturday on topics such as "History and Achievements of Blacks in the UNC System" and "Why is there a Resurgence of Anti-minority Groups?" There was a speech by Wilmington 10 member the Rev. Ben Chavis Friday night and a cultural program Saturday night to showcase the talents of various groups from both the University and other schools represented.

During the speech Friday night, Chavis told a scattered Memorial Hall audience that blacks should find the time in their schedules to celebrate Black History Month, as "a history of protest, a history of struggle, a history of genocide."

He also attacked the Reagan administration for what he called an insensitivity to minority needs and for blaming the country's economic problems on the poor. Also, Chavis advocated the formation of a black political party.

"We must declare our independence from parties that don't serve our interests," Chavis said.

The strength of black unity, Chavis added, lies in the church, and in the maintaining of cultural identity.

"We must believe in what we're doing. We must keep the faith," Chavis said.

"Personally, I think the Discovery program was a great success. I think we brought a lot of insight together and increased the awareness of all of those involved," Bobbie Brown, 21, a political science major from Winston-Salem State University, said. "I will be looking forward to next year's program."

Fred Webb, 24, a special education-math major from UNC-Wilmington, agreed.

"It was a necessary step forward for progressive movement of blacks on state campuses," he said.

Lorenzo Grayes, 22, an assistant to the student body president at Fayetteville State University, said he felt that most students did not know about many of the issues involved, so it became a learning process as well as an entertaining one for the visitors.

"I believe that with all of us going out to spread the word to all students at the various universities, it will grow with each year's Discovery," he said.

The program started simply as an idea of the Black Ink to recognize February as Black History Month. The idea was presented to the BSM Central Committee in October. While the BSM hoped for an enrollment of approximately 150-200 people

See HISTORY on page 3

Polling Sites

CGC District	Dorm or student group	Polling place
Off-campus undergraduates Districts 16-23 may vote at the Carolina Union, Y-Court, Wilson Library, Scuttlebutt, Rosenau Hall, Kenan Labs and Hamilton Hall. Polls are open from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m.
Districts 1,2,4	Graduate students	Hamilton Hall, Law School, Scuttlebutt, Wilson Library, Craige, Y-Court, Carolina Union
Districts 3,5,6,7	Graduate students	Kenan Labs, Rosenau, Med School, Scuttlebutt, Wilson Library, Craige, Y-Court, Carolina Union
District 8	Graduate students	Carolina Union, Y-Court, Craige, Wilson Library, Scuttlebutt
District 9	Alderman, Carr, Kenan, Old East, Old West, Spencer	Y-Court, Spencer, McIver
District 10	Avery, Parker, Teague, Whitehead	Parker, Whitehead
District 11	Aycock, Cobb, Everett, Graham, Grimes, Lewis, Mangum, Ruffin, Stacy, Manly	Cobb, Ruffin, Everett
District 12	Craige undergraduates, Ehringhaus	Ehringhaus, Craige
District 13	Alexander, Connor, Winston, Joyner	Joyner, Connor
District 14	Granville South, East, West	Granville Cafeteria
District 15	Hinton James, Morrison	Hinton James, Morrison

Rev. Ben Chavis speaks Friday in Memorial Hall ...as part of celebration of Black History Month