

Reagan defends economic plans

The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP)—President Ronald Reagan pronounced himself blameless Thursday for the current national recession, saying "our administration is a cleanup crew for those who went on a non-stop binge and left the tab for us to pick up."

Reagan's assertion to 1,600 business and civic leaders came six days after his deputy press secretary claimed the recession began while President Jimmy Carter was in office, then admitted he was wrong.

The president, who promised the recession would end faster than expected, sandwiched his economic remarks between calls for the private sector to voluntarily take over some of the social services long performed by government. That long-standing Reagan theme has yet to catch fire across the nation.

But Reagan made clear that he hoped the group he addressed, called the New York City Partnership, would serve as a model of things to come. The coalition of civic and business leaders, headed by former Chase Manhattan Bank Chairman David Rockefeller, is privately sponsoring nearly 14,000 jobs for disadvantaged youth.

Reagan entered the large ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel wearing a long black scarf with the words, "I Love New York" embroidered in red.

"You are that tough little tug that can pull our ship of state off the shoals and out into open water," he told his audience. "You believe private-sector initiatives are essential to economic and social progress. So do all of us in our administration."

As he began his speech, Reagan joked to Rockefeller: "I came to praise you, not to bankrupt you."

After the lunch, Reagan met briefly with the new secretary-general of the United Nations, Javier Perez de Cuellar, and U.S. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick. It was the first meeting between Reagan and the secretary-general.

Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes told reporters on Jan. 8 that the recession began in July 1980, during Carter's term. Speakes said he received his information from the National Bureau of Economic Research. Minutes later, however, aides handed Speakes a note that corrected the date to July 1981.

ESC cuts protested

By TAMMY DAVIS
DTH Staff Writer

Gov. Jim Hunt and North Carolina Employment Security Commission officials have expressed disapproval of President Ronald Reagan's recent cut in the commission's budget.

The budget resolution trims the Employment Security Commission budget by 12 percent for October 1, 1981, to March 31, 1982.

Hunt press aide Stephanie Bass said the governor was not pleased with the cut. "We have been somewhat upset by the cut since it comes at a time when people need jobs," Bass said.

Bass said the cut would probably further raise the unemployment rate. "It doesn't seem consistent with the way the economy is going and the direction the federal government is moving," she said.

Joe Elliott, assistant administrator of the state ESC office, said the cut came at a time when ESC services were needed more than ever.

"We have yet to get the exact dollar estimate or the number of personnel that will be affected by the cut," he said.

Elliott said significant personnel reductions and closings of local offices seemed likely now, although ESC officials are not yet sure how the budget cut will affect the 55 full-service offices. Local governments are already paying rent for two ESC offices to keep them open.

"One thing we want the public to know is that we're talking about operating funds," he said. "There is no problem with the unemployment insurance checks."

Elliott said the ESC may have to cut costs in how they distribute checks. The dollar value of the checks, however, will not be affected.

"We'll just have to do the best job we can with what resources we have to work with," he said.

News in Brief

Weather blasts other areas too

A "potentially dangerous" new storm hit the Midwest on Thursday, plunging temperatures back below zero, while the South reeled under a third straight day of snow and ice that coated highways and power lines. Since Saturday, 189 deaths have been blamed on the weather.

The snowstorm that pelted parts of the South with the highest accumulations in nearly a half-century was regrouping for a new assault on East Coast states. Traffic was hazardous from Texas to New England, and scattered power outages were reported across the Deep South as the snow moved north.

In Alabama, 750,000 people — nearly a fourth of the state's people — were without power after sleet and snow-burdened tree limbs snapped power lines. Residents left without power bundled up or moved in with relatives.

Saudi Arabia warming to Soviets

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Saudi Arabian officials, irked by what they view as U.S. inaction over Israel's annexation of the Golan Heights, have hinted several times at the possibility of diplomatic relations with the Soviet bloc.

Western diplomats in Saudi Arabia say the campaign appears to have a twofold purpose: preparing public opinion in the traditionally anti-Communist kingdom for eventual ties with the East bloc and warning President Reagan's administration.

"There is a drift towards greater acceptance of the idea, and I think they might be preparing the people for it," said one Western diplomat, who declined to be identified.

Western diplomats add that any move towards full diplomatic relations with the Soviet bloc by Saudi Arabia — the world's largest oil exporter — is most likely to be gradual.

Minister's son found in desert

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Algerian search teams found the son of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher unharmed in the Sahara Desert on Thursday, six days after he dropped out of the Paris-Dakar motor rally, the Foreign Ministry said.

One report said he and two teammates survived in a makeshift tent. A spokesman for the ministry said Premier Mohamed Abdelghani personally telephoned Mrs. Thatcher to tell her that her race driver son, Mark, 28, had been found in the sparsely populated Sahara region of southern Algeria, about 250 miles from the town of Tamanrasset.

The official Algerian Press Service said Abdelghani told Mrs. Thatcher her son was located "safe and sound." The news agency said the driver, his French co-driver Anny-Charlotte Verney and their mechanic, Claude Garnier, had been spotted near their white Peugeot by an Algerian air force pilot.

Health Service received no reports of serious weather-related injuries. Snow was predicted to taper off by today, but hazardous driving conditions were expected to last through the day. Claude E. Swecker, the UNC Physical Plant director, said tractors and sand-spreading dump trucks would be manned throughout the night in an effort to clear streets and parking lots. Although plant workers have been trying to clear streets since Tuesday night, they have been plagued by asphalt surfaces that quickly refreeze, he said. "If it was a layer of five inches of snow, we could just plow and be done with it," Swecker said. "But with all this freezing and refreezing, this is the toughest job imaginable." The Chapel Hill Public Works Department suffered many of the same problems as the Physical Plant.
