

Volunteers sought for health fair employment

By MARK STINNEFORD
DTH Staff Writer

Health is more than freedom from disease.

That is the motto of the North Carolina Student Rural Health Coalition, which, along with a sister campus organization, the Migrant Farm Worker Project, is seeking volunteers in its effort to improve the overall quality of life in rural communities.

"As our motto indicates, we're concerned with the total well-being of individuals within these communities, rather than dealing strictly with medical problems," said coalition member Barbara Latowsky.

Vehicles for the coalition's assistance are 10-day health fairs which are organized in three rural communities each summer. The fairs, staffed by approximately 20 paid student volunteers, provide varied services including free physical examinations, nutrition, and legal rights and benefits counseling.

"Our overall goal is to get the people of an area thinking and working together on problems that affect their well-being," Latowsky said. She cited the development of medical clinics and recreation facilities as a result of community teamwork generated by the fairs.

The Migrant Farmworker Project, along with offering services similar to those of the health fairs, provides migrants with dental services and operates a mental health program, an occupational health project, a shelter project and a pesticide project, member Terri Breneman said. Last year the group's findings on the effects of pesticide exposure on migrant workers were presented before a state-wide symposium in Raleigh.

"Along with the intangible rewards students gain from working on these summer projects, they also get experience in very important job skills," Latowsky said. "Medical students, for example, often conduct their first physical examinations during these projects."

Both the North Carolina Student Rural Health Coalition and the Migrant Farm Worker Project have a limited number of summer job openings available and also need volunteers for administrative support during the regular academic year. Recruitment meetings are scheduled 1-2 p.m. Thursday, in 105 Berryhill Hall and 6-7 p.m. Sunday in the Berryhill lounge. Latowsky and Breneman emphasized that all students, regardless of academic major, were welcome to volunteer.

More conservative College freshmen value prosperity

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — This year's college freshmen are more interested in making money and are more conservative than any other class in recent years, a new survey shows.

The University of California at Los Angeles and the American Council on Education released their 16th annual survey of entering freshmen on Saturday.

The survey was based on questionnaires completed by 284,938 of the 1.7 million freshmen who entered college last fall.

It found that 65.2 percent — nearly two-thirds — ranked "being well-off financially" as a very important goal in life. A year ago 63.3 percent felt that way and in 1967 only 43.5 percent did.

At the same time, 67 percent said a very important reason for going to college was "to make more money." That compares with 63.4 percent last year and only 49.9 percent in 1971.

Alexander W. Astin, a UCLA education professor and survey director, said, "This increasing materialism has been accompanied by increased political conservatism."

Conservatives moved ahead of liberals in the poll, with the number of students labeling themselves conservatives rising from 17.1 to 19.6 percent, while the number calling themselves liberals fell from 19.6 to 18.1 percent.

There were drops in both the "far right" from 1.2 to 1.1 percent and the "far left" from 2.1 to 1.6 percent.

Astin said the majority of students always had identified itself as "middle of the road," including 59.6 percent this year.

But he noted that, "Whereas students on the left of the political spectrum outnumbered those on the right by better than 2 to 1 — 39.1 versus 15.2 percent — 10 years ago, those on the right now slightly outnumber those on the left — 20.7 percent versus 19.7 percent."

He also cited conservative trends in decreased student support for legalizing marijuana — down in 1981 from 39.3 to 34 percent; abolishing the death penalty — from 34.5 to 30.1 percent, and for school busing — 45.9 to 43.8 percent.

Astin also said there was some evidence that high school "grade inflation" had ended, although 20.6 percent of freshmen still reported getting an A average in high school. In 1969, only 12.5 percent had an A average.

News in Brief

Long-distance state rates rise

RALEIGH (AP) — Long-distance telephone calls within the state will cost more under a plan approved by the North Carolina Utilities Commission.

The commission approved a 7.6 percent rate increase Friday, giving the state's 30 telephone companies an estimated $27.7 million more a year.

The changes do not affect federally-regulated interstate long-distance calls to locations outside the state.

The commission said Southern Bell Co., the state's largest company, would get about $15 million more a year.

No change was made in rates for calls between points 30 miles apart or less, but for over 30 miles, the increases are greater for shorter distances.

The change is designed to bring intrastate rates more in line with interstate rates. There was no change in the additional fees paid by callers for operator-assisted intrastate calls.

Dead still receive federal pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has been sending pension checks to hundreds of dead bureaucrats, including one who died 16 years ago, a spokesman for the federal personnel agency says.

Patrick Korten of the Office of Personnel Management said checks continued to be sent to retirees that the agency did not know had died. The confirmation came after Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., criticized the payments to what he termed "the grateful dead."

Korten said the government began matching lists of retirees and deaths several years ago but didn't tell the results until Aspin's criticism.

Aspin said 830 people were listed as dead by the Social Security Administration but retired — and receiving checks — by Civil Service.

Of those 830, Aspin said, 355 have been confirmed as dead and the others are being double-checked. The payments to the dead averaged more than $13,000 and the largest overpayment came to $81,952 to someone who died in 1965 and whose death was confirmed only a few months ago, he said.

M-1 tank may not fulfill hopes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Sunday the new M-1 tank, the most costly ever built by the United States, may disappoint U.S. hopes that it would be better than Russian tanks.

The 58-ton M-1, first all-new U.S. tank in about 20 years, has been counted on to offset by quality a four-to-one Soviet advantage in numbers.

Only last month, the Army began issuing M-1 tanks to U.S. combat troops in West Germany.

"The qualitative advantage we had hoped to achieve by fielding the M-1 tank may be offset by continuing improvements in current Soviet tanks and by the expected fielding of the Soviet T-80 tank," Weinberger said in a report prepared for Congress. He is traveling in the Middle East.

President celebrates 71st birthday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ronald Reagan celebrated his 71st birthday Saturday, the first chief executive to reach that age in the White House.

The birthday cake was a three-layer almond meringue with a hazelnut butter cream mousse filling. A ring of tiny horses made of sugar circled the top of the cake, and a single candle lit the center.
