Crooked Beak of Heaven at 2 p.m. today in 102 Abernethy Hall. This film, an exploration of Northwest Coast Indian art, will be preceded by an introduction by Norris Johnson, assistant professor of anthropology. Admission free.

Legacy at 8 p.m. tonight in the Union Auditorium. The Independent Film Festival continues with an erotic portrait of an affluent woman attempting to survive the collapse of her value system. Admission by UNC student ID or Union Privilege Card.

Science Fiction Film Festival tomorrow in the Union Auditorium. It Came From Outer Space at 6 p.m. In this 3-D film, Richard Carlson and Barbara Rush defend a small Arizona town against aliens. The Incredible Shrinking Man at 8 p.m. Residue from a nuclear blast reduces a man to miniature size, setting the stage for a study of man's place in the universe. Silent Running at 9:30 p.m. Douglas Trumbull's first film stars Bruce Dern as a scientist trying to save the last remaining plants from destruction. The Man Who Fell to Earth at 11:30 p.m. David Bowie plays an alien visitor to Earth.

The Pawnbroker at 7 p.m. and Hester Street at 9:30 p.m. Saturday in the Union Auditorium. A double feature dealing with Jewish-American culture. The first film features Rod Steiger as a concentration camp survivor who closes himself off to all human compassion. The second film presents the problem of a young woman who, after joining her immigrant husband in America, finds he has given up the ways of the Old World.

The Goalie's Anxiety of the Penalty Kick at 8 p.m. Sunday in the Union Auditorium. A disturbing portrait of a man suddenly and inexplicably detached from language and his surroundings.

Northern Lights at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Union Auditorium. This film chronicles the slow and reluctant union of North Dakota farmers to combat the economic pressures. Another film in the Independent Film Festival.
