Mid-East peace depends on Israel's peace initiative

By STACIA CLAWSON

Israel must initiate a plan for peace in the Middle East without U.S. involvement, Professor Bruce Kuniholm said Thursday night in Person Hall.

"The United States cannot be actively involved but instead must be the carrot that induces Israel to follow the stick to peace," the Duke University political science and history professor told an audience of 30.

Kuniholm said Israel would have to make peace because it had limited resources. "The defense expenditures have caused triple-digit inflation which will have a long-term drain on Israel's resources," he said. Israel must make peace because Jewish immigration is declining, and the Arab population will increase relative to the Jewish population, Kuniholm said. "Eventually Israel will lose control over its own fate," he said. "Time is not on Israel's side."

The professor said the United States expected the invasion of Lebanon last spring, adding that the Israelis found an excuse to invade Lebanon.

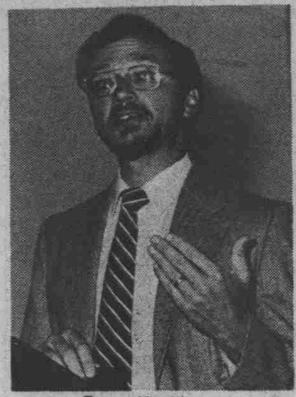

Kuniholm, who served as an intelligence officer during the Carter administration, said the Reagan initiative was useful in generating discussion between the Arabs and Israelis.

While the Reagan peace initiative basically was a re-statement of the Camp David Accords, it called for Israeli sovereignity over only part of the West Kuniholm said Reagan is being careful and cautious now, waiting for U.S. support to build before making any definite plans for peace negotiations. "What will happen is the process will take a long time," he said. "Palestinians want a state and the Israelis want sovereignity. They are just not prepared to negotiate."

The most difficult issue for Israel to resolve is giving up the West Bank, he said. It is like "opening up a can of worms."

Kuniholm was raised in Lebanon and is the author of several books, including U.S. Policy in the Persian Gulf, The United States and The Northern Tier, and the Origins of the Cold War: Great Power Conflict and Diplomacy in Iran, Turkey, and Greece.

CHAPEL HILL - A student arrested in a March protest opposing the training of Salvadoran soldiers at Fort Bragg has been denied admission to the N.C. State Bar.

Mark Alexander Charns, who took the July 1982 North Carolina Bar Examination, received word after a "morals" hearing that he "failed to satisfy the hearing panel that he possesses the qualifications of character and general fitness requisite for an attorney and counsellor at law."

Charns and three other students from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill were charged with impeding traffic on March 27 after they sat down in a four-lane road leading to the military installation near Fayetteville, Because the road was on U.S. military property, Charns faced federal charges. He was convicted in May and sentenced to three months in prison.

"I think what the Board of Bar Examiners wants to do is put a damper on this kind of dissent," said Charns. "I can't think of any other reason for them keeping me out."

CHICAO — A surveillance camera photograph shows a man who is possibly a "prime suspect" in seven cyanide poisonings watching a woman buying the bottle of Extra-Strength Tylenol that later killed her, a Chicago television station reported Monday.

The photograph shows Paula Prince, 35, an airline attendant, at a checkout counter in the Chicago drugstore where authorities say she purchased the fatal capsule, according to

In the background is a bearded man resembling Theodore Elmer Wilson, described along with his wife as "prime suspects" in the killings, the station said.

Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner, who is heading the inquiry into the killings, said the photograph is "not affirmative proof' that Wilson is responsible for the killings. He added that investigators have other photographs of people resembling Wilson.

WASHINGTON - Social Security's old-age trust fund will have to borrow $1 billion to $2 billion shortly after Election Day to cover the Nov. 3 checks for nearly 32 million retirees and their families, a government official said Monday.

That will only be the first installment, The old-age fund, under temporary authority granted by Congress last year, will have to borrow $7 billion to $11 billion from the disability and Medicare trust funds before the end of December to keep paying benefits through next June, said Treasury Department spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

RALEIGH - Former Columbus County Commissioner Edward Walton Williamson pleaded guilty Monday to a bribery charge stemming from an undercover FBI investigation into corruption in southeastern North Carolina.

Judge Franklin Dupree sentenced Williamson, 56, to 10 years in prison after Williamson changed his plea from innocent to guilty in U.S. District Court. He could have been sentenced to 20 years in prison and fined $25,000 for accepting $2,300 in bribes.

Williamson was accused in an indictment of accepting payment to expedite the awarding of a license to undercover agents to sell precious metals. In a sentencing hearing after the plea, however, a federal official said the agents paid Williamson $10,700 for agreeing to do other illegal deeds.

FBI Special Agent Terry Peters said Williamson was paid over a 13-month period beginning in March 1981 in the midst of a two-year probe dubbed Colcor, an acronym for Columbus County Corruption. The investigation has produced indictments against 23 people, including a former state legislator and a district court judge.

Williamson resigned last week from his seat on the board of county commissioners, a position he had held for 16 years.

During the sentencing hearing, prosecutors played videotapes of meetings between Williamson and undercover agents. The tapes showed Williamson accepting money and discussing his actions.

Demands withdrawal of foreign forces

Gemayel praises effort to purge Lebanon of violence

UNITED NATIONS - President Amin Gemayel, on the eve of meeting President Reagan, on Monday hailed U.S. efforts to rid his country of the foreign armies that have turned Lebanon into "an arena for terror and violence."

Addressing the General Assembly, Gemayel also demanded "the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of all non-Lebanese foreign forces from Lebanon."

The Lebanese president called on the 157-nation body "to help Lebanon regain its real independence and rebuild its economy."

U.S. Ambassador Jeanne J. Kirkpatrick and her seven-member delegation joined in sustained applause that greeted Gemayel's demand. Israeli and Syrian envoys, whose countries have deployed armies in Lebanon, sat impassively.

Gemayel asserted there could not be Middle East peace without a stable Lebanon:

"We applaud all positive steps taken by our friends in the international community on behalf of a united and sovereign Lebanon, steps such as the United States' initiative on Lebanon, which we shall explore to the fullest."

Gemayel addressed the Security Council later in support of his government's request for a three-month extension of the mandate of the 7,000-man U.N. peacekeeping force in southern Lebanon. Since Israeli troops overran the force in the June 6 invasion, the council has been extending the mandate every two months, instead of for six as previously. The current mandate expires at midnight tonight.

Speaking in French, Gemayel urged the council to consider ways of making the peacekeeping force "more credible" and to take into account "new requirements for deterrence."

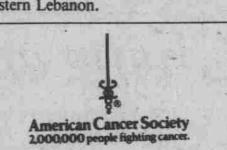

The latter was an apparent reference to Israel's insistence on a 25-mile security zone in southern Lebanon. He could have been hinting at the need for U.N. help in securing such a zone until the Lebanese army was able to take control.

Accusing Israel of violating its 1949 armistice agreement with Lebanon, Gemayel told the 15-nation council, "The withdrawal of Israeli forces constitutes today the fundamental objective called for by your resolutions - this must be achieved." He then reiterated that other foreign troops also must leave.

Gemayel meets Reagan today to discuss prospects for speedy implementation of an American plan for the withdrawal of Israeli, Syrian and Palestinian forces from Lebanon.

The U.S. administration is depending on Gemayel to use his influence with Syria to persuade the Palestine Liberation Organization to withdraw in advance of the departure of the Israeli and Syrian troops as demanded by Israel.

PLO fighters, forced to evacuate their besieged west Beirut bastion in August, still occupy positions in northern and eastern Lebanon.
