Rally held to protest UNC interests in IBM

By ROSEMARY OSBORN
Staff Writer

The voices of protestors rang out Thursday on the UNC campus as demonstrators called for UNC to divest of its interests in IBM, a company they said supports the oppressive South African government.

A rally in the Pit sponsored by the UNC Public Interest Research Group featured Fred Dube, an exiled South African labor organizer.

Dube blamed American involvement in South Africa for many of the problems facing that country. He said the situation of the black South African could be improved if American companies withdrew.

Dube said corporate investments supported the oppressive, primarily white apartheid government which directs its efforts towards oppressing a weak black majority.

"The administration of the U.S. has always said sanctions towards South Africa would not work, but that's not true," said Dube. "You are all lulled by the idea that if we withdrew, we will hurt people by taking out money from the country. This is not true either."

Dube said others said the corporations had a moral obligation to be in the country. "The corporations say they are there to help people and argue that if the companies withdraw, they will be hurting the very people they are trying to help."

The removal of the businesses would take away much of the official government's clout, Dube said. Corporations must agree to make products for military purposes if and when they are needed before they can be located in the country.

Dube stressed that even seemingly innocent products were contributing to the oppression of minorities.

"Tractors appear to be an innocent production, but they can be used to build highways which are there for the purpose of defense," Dube said. The highways could only be meant for possible use by the military because the masses in South Africa are too impoverished to own cars.

Dube concluded his speech with a warning to the protestors: "Be careful of all who call themselves right wing because they will try to label those who oppose them Communists. You must not let them confuse you about the truth."

Following the rally in the Pit, a group of about 30 people marched to Hanes Hall where IBM recruiters were conducting interviews. The chants were loud and clear as they went: "UNC divest, IBM get out, IBM you can't hide — You support apartheid, People united will never be defeated, and N. O. IBM."

When the marchers reached Hanes Hall they tried to enter it for a quiet march through the building, but they were stopped because a group cannot demonstrate in campus buildings. The protestors continued their march when they could not enter Hanes and went to South Building where they resumed their chants.

Following its demonstration at South Building, the group marched to the Pit where it disbanded.

A teach-in will be held in the Pit today as the group continues its protest efforts.

Harvey Jenkins, a member of PIRG, said the rallies were being held to expose people to the issue. "We want to educate people so they can decide if the University should divest the funds which presently are invested in the IBM Corporation."

Jenkins said the University had invested approximately $2 million in 12 corporations in South Africa.

Reagan to tell Arab nations to recognize Israel

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan will tell Arab leaders that the road to peace in the Middle East requires them to "come out of the closet" and openly recognize Israel, a senior State Department official said Thursday.

Briefing reporters on a visit by a six-nation delegation from the Arab League, the official said there are some "constructive elements" in an Arab peace plan adopted last month at Fez, Morocco.

But he said it is essential that moderate Arab nations, especially Saudi Arabia, give Jordan a mandate to negotiate with Israel on behalf of Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. He said he thinks King Hussein of Jordan would negotiate if he has Arab backing.

The Arab League delegation is headed by Morocco's King Hassan and includes the foreign ministers of Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Algeria, Syria and Tunisia. A representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization is attached to the group, but will not be received here, U.S. officials said.

The delegation wants to explain the Arab plan to Reagan in a meeting at the White House today. Reagan also will lobby for his own peace initiative that was unveiled Sept. 1.

The senior official, who talked to reporters on the understanding he would not be identified, said the purpose of the visit is to exchange views and "restore momentum" to the search for a lasting Arab-Israeli peace. "We do not expect a dramatic breakthrough, but rather a thoughtful discussion," he said.

Israel has rejected both the U.S. and Arab approaches, but the Reagan administration still hopes it can convince Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government to join a new round of peace negotiations with Jordan.

Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir conferred here Thursday with Secretary of State George P. Shultz, primarily on Lebanon.

The senior official said the constructive elements in the Arab plan "involve the mention of Israel and the suggestion...of a willingness to recognize and live in peace with Israel."

He said the Fez proposals represent the Arabs' concept "of a framework for peace."

BRIEFLY

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Despite twice certifying human rights progress in El Salvador, the Reagan administration has done little to investigate allegations that Salvadoran security forces have killed thousands of unarmed civilians, according to U.S. officials and a House report.

These sources say U.S. intelligence agencies have developed scant information on the government's alleged involvement in rightist death squads and charges that Salvadoran troops fired on non-combatants during sweeps through the countryside.

But while there is a general consensus on the lack of information, the reasons suggested for it vary.

Some say scarce intelligence resources had to be devoted to studying the leftist insurgency. Others cite the ban on U.S. military advisers going with troops into combat areas and the difficulty of assessing criminal cases in another country.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Militants from both sides of Northern Ireland's religious divide won election to the new assembly Thursday, bringing taunts of "murderer" from Protestants and cries of "we shall not be moved" from Catholics.

Their reaction dimmed any hopes that Ulster's bloodshed will end.

Gerry Adams, a leader of the Irish Republican Army's political front, and his firebrand rival, the Rev. Ian Paisley, both won election to the 78-member Assembly that London set up to bring the minority Catholics into the political process so the British army eventually could get out of Northern Ireland.

Both moderate and extremist Catholic candidates have said they will refuse to take their seats in the assembly, and the Protestants have refused to share power.

The final result will not be known until Friday evening.

Election officials reported a significant swing by Catholic voters to Sinn Fein, fighting an election here under its own colors for the first time since the Provisional IRA was formed in 1969.

RALEIGH — U.S. Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., says he's not worried about an allegation that he received an interest-free $100,000 loan that was reported properly.

FBI documents show that Edward Walton Williamson, a former Columbus County commissioner who pleaded guilty this week to accepting a bribe, made the allegation last May to an undercover agent.

The FBI agent was acting as part of the agency's two-year probe of corruption in southeastern North Carolina, code-named Colcor.

Rose, whose 7th Congressional District includes Columbus County, denied Williamson's statement Wednesday, calling it "a rather pitiful comment."

Williamson alleged that Rose failed to mention his $100,000 loan in his personal and campaign financial disclosure statements. The allegation was made public this week in FBI reports filed in U.S. District Court when Williamson was sentenced to 10 years in prison.
