CGC candidates vie for elected positions

District 1: No candidates
District 2: No candidates
District 3: No candidates
District 4:
Rebel Cole
 • Economics graduate student from Asheville
 • Goals: To get more graduate student input into CGC decisions. To encourage fiscal responsibility in campus funding matters. To provide my district with an effective, responsible voice by attending and voting at all meetings if possible.
District 5: No candidates
District 6: No candidates
District 7:
Allan Rosen
 • Biostatistics graduate student from Brooklyn, N.Y.
 • Goals: Seek reform of the budget process to allow CGC representatives to understand programs seeking funding. Try to have the CGC take firm stands on issues such as increased hiring of black and women faculty. As a graduate student, work closely with the Graduate and Professional Student Federation on various issues.
District 8:
Elizabeth Oates
 • Linguistics graduate student from Durham
 • Goals: To represent the interests of the graduate student population, of course, and to encourage student activism and involvement in the community at large and on campus.
District 9:
Fred Baker
 • Sophomore East Asian studies major from Annandale, Va.
 • Goals: Effective representation of my constituency, of course. Keeping touch with my constituency and (consistent and regular) attendance at CGC meetings are two means to this end. Beyond the obvious goal of being a reliable representative, I see several areas which need review. The CGC budgeting process is entirely too superficial. Along these same lines, I feel much more attention should be given to the DTH issue. I don't think the CGC has enough insight into the financial needs of the DTH to make a responsible budgeting decision. The budget should be left to the DTH Board of Directors.
District 10:
Amy Boyle
 • Freshman RTVMP major from Wrightsville Beach
 • Goals: To provide a more accurate voice for the students in my area through participation and discussion in dorm meetings. I plan to attend every meeting as a representative, not just a single person voicing his or her opinion.
Michelle Emfinger
 • Junior zoology major from Olla, La.
 • Goals: Basically, I'm running for more student control. I think the CGC should be more sensitive to the students' opinions. I'm also concerned about student seating in the new assembly center.
District 11:
Jim Chandler
 • Sophomore economics/political science major from Roxboro

• Goals: I have been greatly disturbed by the recent reports concerning the apparent negligence of some CGC reps. The decisions the CGC makes affect everyone here at the University. These decisions should be taken seriously, and acted upon effectively. The students should know who their representative is, and also be aware of what he or she is (or is not) doing. Most important of all, CGC representatives should keep in mind that they are in fact representatives of the students in their district. Being the voice of so many should be more a duty rather than an honor.
Reggie Holley
 • Freshman criminal justice major from Benson
 • Goals: My foremost objective is to maintain constant contact with the people of my district. The best means to achieve this goal is to attend meetings in the respective dorms. Secondly, I want my vote on any proposal to reflect the feeling of my district. And if elected, I will serve my district with sound, sensitive and positive leadership.
Thomas Kepley
 • Sophomore business major from Columbia, S.C.
 • Goals: Push for improvement of the dorm kitchen facilities. Give the students a chance to choose whether to raise the Student Activity Fee. Provide a greater opportunity for students to present their arguments and suggestions before the Council. Promote cohesion among all student organizations. I would make it my responsibility as a CGC representative to attend all meetings of the CGC and handle all matters in an honorable fashion that would best represent my constituents.
Tim Newman
 • Freshman economics major from Eden
 • Goals: My main objective is to keep my constituents updated about CGC activities. I plan to put out a monthly CGC newsletter for my district and attend dorm meetings to achieve this. I want to see that the CGC becomes more responsive to student needs. I'll carry this out by seeking out suggestions on how to handle major issues from my constituents through opinion polls in my district. I will rid my constituents of ignorance about CGC.
District 12:
Jim Wilmont
 • Freshman political science/economics major from Brantleboro, Vt.
 • Goals: Represent the constituency accurately so that there would be no need for referendums. Apprise my district of my stands and actions taken. Would support a small increase in student fees so that school groups could receive additional and necessary funding.
District 13:
Ron Everett
 • Sophomore political science major from Robersonville
 • Goals: Continue working to allocate funds for HRC Springfest. Also if re-elected, I would continue looking into the cooking policy. I would return to the Student Affairs Committee and make a bid for the chairmanship. I also feel that the next council needs someone who has made it through the Chapel Thrill issue on the winning side. I would continue my strong support for the concert.
Cris Thaxton
 • Sophomore criminal justice major from Asheville
 • Goals: I wish to make myself as well as other members of the

CGC more responsive and available to the student body. I wish to accomplish this with a bimonthly newsletter to my area stressing vital issues upcoming in CGC meetings. Also, I would make a commitment to attend area government meetings to get feedback from the area government officials. I also am endorsing a possible CGC orientation program for incoming freshmen and transfer students which would take place at the beginning of next year.
District 14:
Winston Gilchrist
 • Sophomore history/political science major from Sanford
 • Goals: If elected I hope to responsibly represent the students in my particular district as well as the student body as a whole. I also intend to work for adequate funding for all legitimate student organizations and to support the Student Government Spring Concert.
Randall Parker
 • Freshman business major from Brevard
 • Goals: I plan to represent my district in a very personal manner. I plan to begin an open-door policy for complaints and suggestions. I hope to become a member of the Finance Committee to better represent my constituents' view on Chapel Thrill, etc.
Sherri Watson
 • Sophomore psychology major from Raleigh
 • Goals: In general, to provide a competent and responsive voice for District 14 by supporting campus government issues and policies that will be in the best interest of residents in the Granville area and students attending the University.
District 15:
Keith Bradsher
 • Freshman international studies major from Arlington, Va.
 • Goals: To ensure that there will be a Chapel Thrill next year. To protect the journalistic freedom of the DTH. Conscientious attendance at meetings. Establish office hours on South Campus and at the Student Union.
Brian Dalton
 • Sophomore political science major from Greensboro
 • Goals: I plan to create a situation in my district of close interaction between myself and those in my district. I would keep those in my district up to date on the issues which involve their well-being as students and which involve the allocation of their money paid to attend the University.
James Exum
 • Sophomore industrial relations major from Charlotte
 • Goals: During the next term, I will seek to use my CGC experience to provide District 15 with representation it will be proud of. I hope to exemplify my continuing dedication to the office by maintaining perfect attendance, continuing to solicit constituent response through attending dorm council meetings, and carefully weighing the impact each CGC decision will have on our district.
Greg Hecht
 • Sophomore political science major from Atlanta, Ga.
 • Goals: To get in contact with population and give them the chance to contact me so I can represent their views. The people in the district are most important.

Joel Houston
 • Sophomore industrial relations major from Richlands
 • Goals: My main goal would be to remain as open as possible to all the residents of the district, and to keep in contact with as many residents as possible so as to know their feelings about any matter before the CGC at the time, and to vote accordingly.
Michael Loomis
 • Junior math major from Waynesville
 • Goals: Work to allow hot plates in James and Morrison. Support AWS, BSM, ECOS and SECS.
District 16:
Patricia Wallace
 • Freshman English/economics major from Virginia Beach, Va.
 • Goals: To attend all meetings! To keep my district informed and to find out and represent their needs and wants. I don't see anything wrong with raising student fees by $1.50 apiece. That's not much per person. I'm interested in seeing some projects develop that would bring about a positive interaction between North and South Campus. Chapel Thrill has a lot of potential, but we need to be cautious about tying up $100,000 of student fees for nine months, money that many student organizations need.
Susan Gaddy
 • Sophomore political science and economics major from Raleigh
 • Goals: My goal in running for the CGC is to reverse District 16's past history of apathy. I will be a responsive, open-minded and active member of the Council.
Kris Laughlin
 • Sophomore political science major from Mooresville
 • Goals: I want to narrow the definition of "political" in the constitution, so that groups won't be harassed for attempts to address relevant issues. I also want to see CGC opened up to more student involvement.
Pat Pate
 • Junior political science/religion major from Wallace
 • Goals: Get more publicity to off-campus students. Organize off-campus students so they can form IM teams. Broaden any types of job-finding services or placement services. Give off-campus students more opportunities to participate in on-campus events. Be available to my constituents so they can express their needs and say what they want the CGC to do.
District 17:
Darrell Payne
 • Sophomore history major from Coral Gables, Fla.
 • Goals: Emphasize the responsibility of a CGC representative as the representative of that district's members. Establish a real contact through weekly office hours and occasional newsletters. I favor not raising student fees but instead making a more thorough assessment of the group applying for the funds and trying to include more of the students' opinions in the process.

Rebecca Tillet
 • Senior women's studies major from Coral Springs, Fla.
 • Goals: I want to encourage student participation and control over more aspects of University life. I think students have shown more interest and desire this semester to have a say in their government (Chapel Thrill, South Africa divestment work, etc.).
District 18:
Dan Radovanic
 • Junior political science major from Charlotte
 • Goals: Use Student Government as a tool to influence University policy. Increase the use of the student referendum.
John Wilson
 • Sophomore from Morganton
 • Goals: The CGC is slipping away from its intended function as the implementer of student interests. Directly representing those who live in the Bollinwood, Colonial Arms, Estes Park area means actually talking to them, something never done in District 18 before.
District 19: No candidates
District 20:
Kerry Haynie
 • Sophomore political science major from Kannapolis
 • Goals: I would like to see CGC representatives become more visible and responsible. Recent events within the CGC illustrate the need for concerned representatives who are willing to make decisions beneficial to all.
District 21:
John deVille
 • Junior philosophy major from Highlands
 • Goals: Investigate University investment policies. Investigate University minority hiring practices. Free up more student money for non-political groups which the present CGC Finance Committee designates as political.
Doc Droze
 • Junior journalism/English major from Tifton, Ga.
 • Goals: To integrate more closely the off-campus districts into the mainstream of campus life. Using my CGC background, I hope to present a firm voice in student financial matters.
District 22:
Rania Major
 • Junior political science major from Greensboro
 • Goals: Familiarize myself with my constituents and let them know someone is there to represent them and listen to their qualms. Represent my constituents' desires, even if they conflict with my own personal opinion. Open lines of communication between me and my constituents through the telephone and surveys.
District 23:
Jack Mohr
 • Sophomore chemistry major from Chapel Hill
 • Goals: I would support the student fee increase and funding for organizations in which constituents of my district participate.
