RIYADH, Saudi Arabia — The United Arab Emirates declared OPEC's $34 base price dead Tuesday and Saudi Arabia vowed to take whatever measures are necessary to protect its oil wealth in the face of a global price war.
The two countries met with fellow Persian Gulf OPEC members Kuwait and Qatar amid reports they were considering slashing the price of their oil as much as $7 a barrel, following a $5.50 cut by OPEC member Nigeria and $3 cuts in North Sea oil by non-OPEC members Britain and Norway.
The gulf ministers recessed their talks without announcing any decisions, but Yamani said the talks would continue Tuesday night.
Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani said Iraq and Libya were expected to join the session today which would decide on lowering prices and on further ties with other members of OPEC.

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court told the states Tuesday they may fight the "carnage caused by drunk drivers" by using a motorist's refusal to take a sobriety test as evidence of guilt.
The court said such a refusal "is not protected by the privilege against self-incrimination."
In the drunken-driving case, the justices reversed by a 7-2 vote a South Dakota Supreme Court ruling that had banned as trial evidence a driver's refusal to take a sobriety test.
State and federal courts had split on that constitutional question.

RALEIGH — An amended version of Gov. Jim Hunt's drunken driving bill was scheduled to go before the Senate Finance Committee today, and the committee chairman predicted speedy approval.
Meanwhile, a proposal to let supervised 18-year-olds drink beer and wine, defeated by a House committee last week, was resurrected Tuesday and narrowly rejected in a vote that upset the amendment's sponsor.
The Senate bill, already approved by the Judiciary III Committee, is required to go before the Finance Committee so its monetary ramifications can be considered.

RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Hunt plans to return to his Capitol office today after spending 11 days recuperating from an appendectomy.
Gary Pearce, press secretary, said Hunt will hold his weekly news conference Thursday, and will fly to Washington on Friday for a meeting of the Education Commission of the State's Task Force on Education for Economic Growth.
Hunt underwent an appendectomy Feb. 11 at Wake Medical Center. He was released Feb. 15, but continued to recuperate at the Executive Mansion.
