Bounce back after opening loss

Laxmen prove selves with big win

The playing surface was new — artificial turf on Navy field to give the grass on Fetzer another day to drain after 48 hours of rain.

The time was changed — moved back one-hour to accommodate the Tar Heels' televised basketball appointment in the Eastern Regionals.

And the team was different — on both ends of the field.

Two-time defending NCAA Division I lacrosse champion North Carolina (1-1) rebounded from its first loss in two years and 27 games to stick a visiting Towson State team (0-1) with an 18-7 decision Saturday.

Just one week earlier, the Tar Heels were stunned (along with the rest of collegiate lacrosse) by Hobart College up in Baltimore. The Statesmen, Division III national champions three years running, caught an overconfident and under-impressed North Carolina team napping and woke it up to the tune of a 12-9 upset.

Sure, Towson State is no Hobart. But the men who took the turf against the Tigers last weekend were the same squad that left Maryland as losers in name only.

These guys were hungry. "We were a lot more intense," UNC midfielder Pete Voelkel said of his team's most recent game. "We decided we had to get back on track. We had something to prove out there."

North Carolina had something to prove out there and so it doubled its first game's scoring total and nearly cut its goals allowed in half.

North Carolina had something to prove out there and so it exploded for two goals in the first 30 seconds of the second period and three goals in two minutes to open the second half.

And North Carolina had something to prove out there and so with four seconds left before the intermission and the Tar Heels leading 8-3, UNC coach Willie Scroggs called a time out. Eight may have been enough for ABC, but not for Scroggs.

After a short discussion with his team, Scroggs had Voelkel put the ball in play behind the Towson State goal. Senior attackman Dave Wingate used a screen to break free in front of the net, got the ball from Voelkel and bounced one in off the turf for No. 9.

Voelkel finished the day with three goals and four assists, tops for the Tar Heels. Attackman Michael Burnett had three goals and two assists, while Wingate added three goals and one assist.

Sophomore attackman Mac Ford and freshman midfielder Joey Seivold added a pair of goals each for UNC.

After trading goals with Towson State for a 2-2 tie during the early part of the opening period, North Carolina opened up a two-goal advantage by the end of that first 15 minutes, and then put the game out of reach by outscoring the Tigers 5-1 in the second quarter and 7-3 in the third.

"The great thing about playing so many games is that you've got another one," Scroggs said. "We had another one today and we've got another one next week."

And this time there won't be anything to prove.
