Panel discusses alternatives to cut in N.C. education

By THAD OGBURN Staff Writer

A change in student-faculty ratio and an increase in out-of-state tuition were two alternatives to a proposed 3 percent cut in the N.C. education budget which were discussed Wednesday in a public forum featuring the two state senators and the two representatives from this area.

"We were trying to identify places where we might come up with the 3 percent," said Rep. Anne Barnes, D-Orange, a member of the House Appropriations Committee. "It really was a painful thing to go through."

The biggest cut mentioned by Barnes is a change in the student-faculty ratio which would save the state $14.6 million. The ratio is currently 15 students to one teacher. The state seeks to increase this ratio by doing away with some teaching positions.

Rep. Joe Hackney, D-Orange, said he doesn't think the recent bill to increase out-of-state tuition will pass.

"There will be some moderate increase both in-state and out-of-state tuition." Hackney said.

The salaries of public teachers was also a major topic at the discussion. Both Barnes and Sen. Russell Walker, D-Randolph, said they hoped the state teacher's salary freeze would be lifted this year. Barnes added that it was hard to accomplish this without cutting teaching positions.

"I think the salaries of all public school teachers in this state are much lower than they ought to be," Barnes said.

Hackney said he opposes state funding of private institutions in the state. There are currently 38 private colleges in North Carolina.

"They (the private institutions) are competing with the University system and depriving us of those dollars," Hackney said.

Giving financial incentives to math and science teachers was also discussed at the forum. There is currently a shortage of teachers in math, science and other technical positions because of higher pay for technically trained people in the business world.

"We've got to do something to stimulate getting more math and science teachers," Barnes said.

Sen. Wanda Hunt, D-Moore, said she was opposed to giving technical teachers more money.

The General Assembly needs to look into giving financial aid to prospective science and math teachers as one alternative, said Hackney.

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - All-out lobbying by President Reagan and his high command on Wednesday left Senate critics of Kenneth L. Adelman resigned to his confirmation as the nation's arms control director, barring a last-minute groundswell of public protest.

"If senators are getting no calls from home, and they are getting calls from the president, we are lost," in a showdown vote today, said Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass. An Associated Press survey showed Adelman very close to the needed simple majority.

Tsongas was interviewed shortly after Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., one of a dwindling band of undecided senators, announced that he would vote for Adelman to end "confusion and chaos" in the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

"That's disappointing," said Tsongas. "The fact we lost Chafee is a bad sign."

WASHINGTON - With plenty of votes to spare, the House on Wednesday rejected efforts to dilute a nuclear freeze resolution labeled "a formula for permanent insecurity" by President Reagan.

House Democratic leaders remained confident of victory for the largely symbolic call for a "mutual and verifiable" halt in the arms race. But, with 39 amendments still nending, the House quit work on the measure in the early evening, putting off further consideration until next week.

By 229-190, the Democratic-run chamber rejected a major modification proposed by Rep. Elliot H. Levitas, D-Ga., that would have permitted older nuclear weapons to be replaced by newer ones in lieu of a flat freeze, with the new ones replacing the old ones in a one-for-two "strategic builddown."

GDANSK, Poland - Lech Walesa, chief of the outlawed Solidarity labor federation, was seized and interrogated by police for nearly five hours Wednesday about a clandestine meeting with underground union leaders.

"As a free man, I have a right to meet with anyone, even criminal elements, so long as the meeting has no criminal intent," Walesa told reporters after he returned to his apartment in the early evening.

Walesa, who disclosed Tuesday he had met with the Solidarity underground over the weekend, said he was too tired to discuss the police interrogation and would hold a news conference on April 20.

Walesa's spokesman, Adam Kinaszewski, said Walesa "didn't confirm or deny" to the police that he met with the Solidarity underground. "He simply refused to make any kind of statement to police."

Carrboro Aldermen approve part of thoroughfare

By PETE AUSTIN Staff Weiter

The Carrboro Board of Aldermen Tuesday night approved the portion of the thoroughfare plan that directly affects that town.

The road plan for Carrboro involves only the extension of West Franklin Street to the intersection of Main Street and Jones Ferry Road, Town Manager Richard Hunter said Wednesday.

"We want to make clear our intent to go ahead with the plan," he said.

Carrboro will wait until Chapel Hill approves a comparable plan that coincides with Carrboro's plans before beginning construction, Hunter said.

However, Carrboro does not have to wait if they do not want to, according to Chapel Hill planner Mike Jennings.

The controversial parts of Chapel Hill's plan do not affect Carrboro, he said. The portion of the Chapel Hill plan that affects Carrboro has already been approved verbally by the council, he said.

The Chapel Hill planning staff is working on the remaining parts of the plan, he said.

"We (the planning staff) are shooting to have our analysis completed by the May 17 Planning Board meeting," Jennings said. If the plan is approved by the board, the Town Council must then make its decision on the plan, he said.

The Carrboro plan was approved so that citizens will know what areas will be affected. Hunter said.

A building in the area of the planned extension of West Franklin Street is now for rent, Hunter said.

"We just didn't want anybody to put an office in (a building) where we are going to widen," he said. United Transmissions in Carrboro also would be in the path of construction if Franklin Street is extended.
